A Desert That Blossoms. But Don't Buy Land. Lizards, Toads, Coyotes. More Interesting Than Men.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

HODGE, Cal., Aug. 14.

THIS part of America is on the Mohave Desert 2,000 feet above the ocean, 60 miles back from the Pacific and Los Angeles. The sky is high and clean, mountains and hills, in the distance on all sides. Only a few inches of rainfall, per year, everything grown under irrigation.

HODGE interests you. When you motor to the Pacific, as you must, some day, and take the well paved highway running parallel with the Santa Fe, from Barstow to Victoryville, you will run through this oasis of dark green alfalfa.

Yellow earth, sage brush cactus stretch in all directions. Lizards, in millions, dart about. Heavy land turtles drag their shell houses, and summer water supply with them. Horned toads, as well satisfied with their feeble protection, as Uncle Sam with his inadequate air fleet, defy all creation.

JACK rabbits abound, and defy any fence to keep them out of alfalfa. Coyotes, gliding like shadows, through the sage brush, live on the rabbits, and heavy lynxes take their share. The fashionable "sun tan" may be had here. The sun shines always. Summer temperature from 100 to 110 in the sun and because of the high, dry air, not as uncomfortable as New York at 85, plus humidity.

A FEW years ago, this writer told you of this place, and then, to test his own theories bought a few thousand acres from the Southern Pacific Railroad Land Company. It is pleasing, today, to see on land recently desert, men cutting alfalfa that runs a ton and a quarter to the acre, and cut, not full grown, but in early blossom, while the stems are tender, and the leaves do not fall, and, as the circus man says, "bear in mind and remember," that you cut from six to eight crops a year, averaging seven to nine tons, about $160 to the acre, at $20 a ton, which is low.

THE process of changing absolutely arid desert to the finest alfalfa fields of earth, is interesting. An open well, dug by hand, giving work to homesteaders, struck water at 50 feet. It was dug down to 100 feet and now a 40-horsepower pump, delivering 60,000 gallons an hour to a reservoir 120 feet above the water level can drop the water no lower than 80 feet. The reservoir, 200 feet long, 60 feet wide, makes a good swimming pool for children that come here for the winter. You just water alfalfa generously—1,000,000 pounds of water for every ton of alfalf grown.

YOU could not do everywhere on the desert, what has been done here. The Hodge brothers' land, and that bought by the writer, run close to the Mohave River, one of the biggest in California. The river runs under ground and in many places water is only 10 to 15 feet below the surface.

HOWEVER, be warned. Don't come here to make a fortune. To develop this desert, you need money, or endless capacity for hard work. Who ever has failed elsewhere, would sink out of sight here. Work on the alfalfa fields begins not later than 5 in the morning. In the busy season, it lasts until sunset, and days are long. There is constant work, irrigating, cutting, shocking, baling. The buyers anxious for hay freshly cut, send their trucks and trailers from Los Angeles to your hay field. That helps, but this is no place for a tired man, unless he has plenty of money to hire others.

SUCH a man as Professor Wilson, of the Montana Agricultural College, economizing man power, irrigating thousands of acres from a central point, applying agricultural machinery, efficiently, could make this desert land as profitable as any in the world.

More important, this valley could provide healthful homes for thousands of men and women, with sufficient income to live modestly. Retired teachers, professors, army and navy men could find here health interesting occupation.

THIS is, perhaps, the best place in America for raising turkeys. Young turkeys live here. Elsewhere, they get their feathers wet and die. To wet them here you would have to irrigate them. Just outside this house, turkeys and tame mallard ducks are eating alfalfa beside an artificial pond, and heaven probably, would suit them no better. Melons grow here amazingly, in the hot sunlight.

FROM this point all of the North and South Pacific coast is available by motor, on perfect roads, from Seattle on Puget Sound, to San Diego, at the Mexican border.

Gigantic motor buses roll through on their way from ocean to ocean, and at this moment, a steady stream of private automobiles moves toward the Pacific. Man's real job, repairing natures mistakes, and making the earth what it should be can be tried here, on a big or little scale. Some man like John D. Rockefeller, Jr., interested in constructive development, might experiment here, saying: "The desert shall blossom like the rose, and I am the man that will make it blossom."

COURT BLOCKS CHARTER VOTE

The Metropolitan Charter will not be voted on again at the November election.

The County Commissioners have neither duty nor discretion in the placing of the question upon the ballots and are directed to omit it from the ballot by an opinion handed down todayy by judges James R. Macfarlane, Joseph M. Swearingen and Harry H. Rowand this afternoon.

WILL APPEAL

County Solicitor Heber M. Dithrich has already prepared the machinery for taking an appeal to the State Supreme Court which sits here next month.

The opinion follows a hearing held yesterday, when the question was argued. It was written by Judge Macfarlane, and concurred in by the other judges.

The ruling was on an application for a declaratory judgment on a petition submitted by the commissioners, at the request of the Metropolitan Plan Commission. James P. O'Connor had been granted leave by the court to intervene, in opposition to the commissioners.

In the opinion Judge Macfarlane says:

"The legislative amendment says that if rejected, the charter plan may be re-submitted to the electors in original, new or modified form at any subsequent election until adopted. Article 4 fixed the special election on the

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The stock market zeppelined toward the skies today.

The red flag of possible further Federal Reserve action did not slow up the charging of the bulls to higher levels.

United States Steel, the lone morning and afternoon star for the past few days, shone forth with a new record high price of 245, an advance of 8 points. However, by noon today it was forced to share the spotlight with other throne-climbing aspirants.

Swedish King Bids Zeppelin 'Bon Voyage'

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Aug. 14.—King Gustav, of Sweden, came here with a royal party to inspect the Graf Zeppelin.

"I wish the Hearst-Zeppelin-Round-the-World Flight the best of luck and success," the King told Lady Drummond Hay, only woman aboard the big ship and correspondent exclusively for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst newspapers.

"It must be a wonderful sight in the air. I wish it would come to Sweden. It must be wonderful to travel around the world in this airship.

"The Zeppelin is more marvelous than any surface vessel I have ever seen. I could spend hours here."

Japanese Woman Not to Make Journey as Compatriots Protest to Com. Eckener

By WALTER DIETZEL.
International News Service.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Aug. 14.—The "feminine question" caused a flurry today in the preparations for the departure of the Graf Zeppelin on the continuation of its globe-girdling flight, and was settled in a way that brought tears to Miss Keneko Kitamura, a tiny, doll-like Japanese girl who wished to make the voyage as a newspaper reporter.

Miss Kitamura, understood to have been backed by powerful Japanese interests, booked passage on the Graf to Tokio and paid for her ticket. When the other Japanese passengers—all men—learned that Miss Kitamura was to go they threatened to withdraw on the ground that "a Japanese woman's participation in the flight would make a bad impression in Japan."

ECKENER IN QUANDARY

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf, was in a quandary. Later he announced that, as the Japanese passengers' protest had been sustained by the Japanese embassy in Berlin, Miss Kitamura's passage was canceled.

With the most dangerous portion of the Hearst-Zeppelin Round-the-World Flight ahead of her, the Zeppelin will take the air and head for Tokio at 4:30 a. m. Thursday (11:30 p. m. Wednesday, Pittsburgh time). The time was set by Dr. Eckener.

The second leg of the Graf's journey around the world will take her over a vist expanse of more than 6,000 miles, much of the journey over wide areas of the uninhabited forest lands of Siberia.

For two days it is expected the 20 passengers and 40 members of the crew of the huge craft will be entirely out of communication with civilization.

During that time everything will depend upon the skill of Dr. Eck-

KLINE, MALONE WORRY BOSSES

Republican organization leaders today apparently have failed to arrive at a solution of the puzzling political situation.

With a three-cornered fight for the mayoralty seemingly inevitable—since efforts yesterday failed to induce Mayor Charles H. Kline or Councilman James F. Malone to withdraw—a hands-off policy seems to be in effect for the present.

This policy may be continued by former State Chairman W. L. Mellon and Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong for some time. Senator M. G. Leslie has repeatedly declared his opposition to Kline and generally is expected to back Malone.

MUST MAKE CHOICE

Eventually, however, a choice will be made between Kline and Malone and the weight of the leaders thrown to the one strongest from the organization standpoint.

Unless that is done a divided organization will be left to face the independent threat of Judge Richard W. Martin.

Commissioner Armstrong, who could have been the "harmony" candidate had he been willing to leave his present post, according to

STATE ASKS FOR DEATH PENALTY

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.
International News Service.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 14.—Dr. James H. Snook's guard was doubled today as a precaution. It was thought he might attempt suicide. He has been morose and uncommunicative as the "zero hour" approaches—when he will learn what price he must pay for having beaten Theora Hix, Ohio State University co-ed, to death.

"You, Dr. Snook, are the only one who knows the motive for the killing of Theora Hix, and you haven't told it. And you will never tell it."

Pointing dramatically at Dr. Snook, Myron B. Gessaman, assistant prosecutor, made this statement as he was making one of the state's closing arguments to the jury.

SNOOK WINCES

Snook winced and hung his head. He shifted uneasily in his chair.

Turning back to the jury, Gessaman told them the killing of Miss Hix was the most brutal murder in the history of Ohio. He said the state did not have to prove a motive.

He scoffed at the idea Snook killed her in self-defense, and then, picking up a photograph of the slain co-ed, he took it over in front of the jury and said:

"Look at the face of this beautiful girl. Does she look like a drug addict? Or like the girl he (Snook) said she was?"

Pointing again at Snook, he shouted:

"You made her what she was! And no matter what she was, she had the right to live."

PIRATES FACE BRAVES TODAY

BOSTON, Aug. 14.—The Pirates are here today to begin a four-game series with the Braves. After losing three out of four to the Robins in the Flatbush, the Buccos stopped off in Albany yesterday where they were trimmed by the Eastern League flag-chasers. The score was 8 to 4.

George Grantham will replace Earl Sheely at first base this afternoon in the event of a right-hander pitching for the Tribe. Jess Petty will be on the mound for the Bush-whackers.

Grantham is not entirely well, but the star has improved to such an extent that he can take a place in the battlefront. Sheely will be on first, however, if the home bosses decide to put Southpaw Eddie Brandt on the slab.

POLICEMAN HELD FOR HOLDING UP SAME MAN THREE TIMES

NORTH SIDER DISARMS ANNOYER

Drinking on Night Off, Says Prisoner; Suspended, He Must Face Trial Board

Held up three times in six squares by a man who pressed a revolver against him, threatening to shoot, Julius Rocks, 63, of 1503 Adams street, North Side, grappled with his assailant on the third attack, disarmed him and turned him over to the police.

The prisoner proved to be Patrolman John L. Donovan, 827 Federal street, attached to the North Side Station, who had a night off.

HELD—FACES TRI L BOARD

At a hearing before Magistrate E. M. Hough, Donovan, charged with being a suspicious person, was held for further investigation.

He said he didn't know why he attacked Rocks and claimed he had been drinking. Acting Inspector Anthony A. Block suspended Donovan and filed charges before the Police Trial Board.

THREE-TIME HOLDUP

Rocks testified he was en route to work at 5:30 o'clock this morning when Donovan, in civilian attire, attacked him at Federal and Ohio streets.

The second attack was at Ohio and Sandusky streets and the third at Cedar avenue and Ohio street. After disarming Donovan, Rocks testified, he called to other workmen who summoned police.

CHIEFS TO PICK CANDIDATE

rumors from the conferences which were held behind closed doors, predicted a three-cornered fight.

"From all indications the three candidates for mayor now in the field will remain candidates," he said, upon his return from a meeting with Mellon and Leslie.

WINTERS COMPLICATES

The mayoralty is not the only complicated situation facing the leaders of the organization. Another was the entry of Councilman Daniel Winters, who says he is in the fight to a finish, against Controller Henry Oliver Evans. Evans signed the Malone nomination petition, Winters is for Kline.

The last-minute entry of John A. Fugassi, assistant head of the county road bureau, political associate of Leslie and Alderman John J. Verona, in the councilmanic race yesterday caused a stir. It came as a surprise.

COUNCIL COMPLICATIONS

The councilmanic situation, generally, is a puzzling one. After Armstrong had made his statement concerning the three-cornered fight he called to the reporters who were leaving:

"The candidates I said would stay in the fight referred to those for mayor."

There is the opinion in political circles that some of the 20 aspirants for five council places would withdraw.

Interest in the councilmanic situation is centered on the North Side. Harry A. Little, incumbent, is seeking re-election. The leaders from that section are anxious to have two members. Magistrate Edward M. Hough, former Councilman William H. Robertson and C. B. Connelley, librarian at the North Side Carnegie Library, have filed papers. A meeting was to have been held Monday to select the two to be supported. This meeting was called off pending a decision on the mayoralty.

RUMORS NUMEROUS

While the leaders were meeting, rumors were numerous. One would say that Mellon would support Kline, giving Leslie the privilege of selecting the candidate for sheriff and one place in council. Another was to the effect that Kline had been dropped in favor of Malone, with a Kline selection for controller and council. Every time a report was started that the conference had decided in favor of Kline, another came along that Malone was the choice.

The choice between the two may be made before nightfall. Armstrong is expected to slip out of the city for a few days' rest. There is a possibility of Leslie doing the same thing.

Miss Helen Grimes, member of the Legislature, was a last-minute entry in the council race yesterday.

MALONE RENTS G. O. P. ROOMS

Which candidate for mayor has headquarters in Hotel Henry?

Mayor Charles H. Kline wants the hotel. So does Councilman James F. Malone.

What's more, the latter claims to have it.

On the other hand, Howard Johnson, who is in charge of the renting of the hotel, denies emphatically that the headquarters space on the parlor floor has been rented to anyone.

"Has Malone or his group rented it?"

"No," answered Johnson.

PAYMASTER THERE

"Look for yourself," was the invitation of the Malone forces when they learned of Johnson's statement. Sure enough, the parlor floor revealed a headquarters which had been rented by J. Boyd Euwer, treasurer of the Malone campaign committee.

The result of this investigation was telephoned to Johnson.

"I've investigated for myself and find that they are here," he said. "They got in by a trick. They represented themselves as the Republican organization when they applied for the rooms. The manager is away and they slipped in."

MELLON-OWNED HOTEL

"Then the Malone headquarters are there?"

"They are there now."

The popularity of the hotel is due to the fact that the organization campaigns usually are directed from that point which the candidate in prosession feels is a psychological point in his favor. The hotel is owned by the Mellon interests, Johnson having general charge.

Capt. "Smiles" O'Timmins, diving from a 100-foot ladder into a five feet of water at the Fireman's Carnival in East Pittsburgh yesterday, was injured and was lifted out of the tank unconscious. He regained consciousness shortly, but was taken to a specialist for treatment.

The convention, the thirty-seventh annual gathering of the Western Pennsylvania Volunteer Firemen's Association, went into full swing yesterday with the formal opening in the convention hall. Mayor Charles H. Kline, of Pitts- Secretary William H. Sharah responded.

H. M. Zundel, chairman, took charge of a memorial service, at which Norval R. Daugherty spoke in memory of the firemen who had given their lives in the line of duty over the past year. Buglers B. H. Biestel and James McGivern sounded taps.

Sharah and James H. Steel, of Wilkinsburg, were unanimouesly elected secretary and treasurer, respectively. Both have served in the same capacities for more than 30 years. H. A. Rottler, of Connellsville, and John Thomas, of Crafton, were nominated for president and their factions promise a hot contest. Dave Simon, Stowe Township, Harry Weihagen, North Braddock, and James Conlon, Port Vue, seek election as vice president. Either Monessen or Glandale will be chosen as the scene of the 1930 convention.

Lucky Bucks—New Money for Old

By LUCKY BUCK.

Well, folks, the latest is that I'm getting decrepit, aged, or what have you. Anyhow, I'm told I'm not my former self.

The cause of all this tete-a-tete-ing is the fact that I've allowed the Jones family to get away with murder. Now, folks, when people start to say that about me, I've just got to spar around and find some way out.

Just because the Joneses corral all the luck is no reason to accuse me of losing my grip on the luck in Pittsburgh. But I would like you all to play "Keeping up with the Jonses" a little more successfully.

Here's the racket: Mrs. R. J. M. Jones, 2221 McMonigle avenue, felt that Uncle Sam wasn't doin' right by her. She wanted some more kale, and didn't know where to lasso it. Then old Mr. Lucky Buck, myself, comes along with a brood of succulent suskins and offers a brand new twenty for every one of his litter of singletons found by whom it may concern.

So, with much determination and no few misgivin's, Mrs. Jones confers with hubby and her well-known father, John T. Ayres, and her niece, Helen Ayres, 14, 328 Bailey street, Mt. Washington.

Well, these folks saw their duty, and how they done it. Each one grits his ivories and sets out for a Fortunate Simoleon. Helen goes to a Mt. Washington grocery and gets hers, Pa Jones finds one in a Gammon restaurant, Ma Jones at a grocery on McMonigle street, and Mr. Ayres "just found his."

Well, I asked Pa Jones for a statement, and he just said: "Well, I attribute my success in life to keeping an eye on the Sun-Telegraph and checking over all my bills. Constant vigilance put me where I am today."

And Ma Jones—"I have no system. We Joneses just watch our dollars."

Maybe that's how Mrs. A. Cypher, 1001 Grandview avenue, Mt. Washington, discovered a Big Bill worth $50, brought in by her neice, Miss Helen Waite, who had gone to the store for some groceries. That's what I call bringing home the bacon. And I spent that buck in the Union Trust barber shop only Monday.

And F. B. Carver, Barbara Coyne and C. M. Mathias must be able to attribute their success to some system, as must E. M. Snyder, 1721 Meadow street, Sharpsburg, who grabbed one in a Sharpsburg gas station.

Then I dropped some more around the burg today. One bought me lunch ot the Ritz Pharmacy, 738 Brookline boulevard, Brookline. As a pharmacy, that's a good drug store, bowling alleys and lunch room, folks, and I enjoyed those sandwiches, on account of I was hungry.

And Z86149400D bought me car checks from Conductor 299 on Crosstown car No. 4741 yesterday, while he was busy telling a dame not to get off yet, that it wasn't her turn. And another Lucky Buck left my pocket at the Givens Drug Store, 3411 West Carson street, Esplen. That's the place where they don't watch their dollars, folks, so take a tip from Lucky Buck and follow your noses to Esplen.

And tomorrow, folks, there'll be two singletons at the box office of the Pitt Theater. One'll be given out to one of the ticket buyers before the matinee, and the other'll pass into the hands of some wise bird who gets him a ticket between the matinee and the evening performance. Selah!

ZEPPELIN OFF FOR TOKIO TONIGHT

ener and his aides. The Zeppelin will be out of range of radio stations. Dr. Eckener will have to depend upon charts of the region to be traversed and on his own keen sense of direction and weather. The air charts available are regarded as woefully inadequate.

The Zeppelin will follow a northern course over Siberia which will bring her within the Arctic circle and less than 900 miles from the North Pole.

A tentative decision to take this route was made following a conference attended by Dr. Eckener and a number of meteorological experts.

By going far to the north, the Zeppeline will avoid the dangers of inland storms and typhoons which are numerous in central and southern Asia at this time of the year.

MAY PASS LENINGRAD

The first part of the journey from Friedrichshafen will be governed entirely by European weather conditions. If the latter are favorable, the Graf may head directly for Berlin, thence northeast to come out over the Baltic Sea near Stettin, Germany.

If conditions allow, Dr. Eckener may then head directly north so as to pass over southern Sweden. Yesterday, King Gustave of Sweden lunched with the famous dirigible commander after visiting the hangar and admiring the Zeppelin, and expressed a desire to have the air liner fly over his country if possible.

From the Baltic Sea, the Zeppelin probably will head directly eastward, passing over Leningrad if conditions permit and then heading for the seventieth parallel of north latitude which is just within the Arctic Circle.

She will then continue eastward over Northern Siberia until Sakhalien Island, jointly occupied by Russia and Japan, is reached. At this point she probably will veer to a southerly course and head for Tokio.

ALL READY FOR START

Everything is in readiness for the start of the flight. The airship has been refueled and completely inspected.

A maximum of fuel which will permit the Graf to remain aloft 180 hours has been stored aboard although the flight is not expected to take more than 120 hours.

No freight is being taken because of the heavy fuel load. There will be a consignment of mail aboard, however, and a bust of the late Baron Von Huenefeld, a gift to the Japanese royal family.

All possible precautions have been taken to provide for the passengers' safety and comfort in case of a forced landing.

The airship carries an emergency landing gear and sufficient food to last for an extended period.

Boy Believed Lured From Home by Stage

The call of the footlights lured Michael R. Shomisky, 16, of 2462 Fifth avenue, to New York, his father, Michael J. Shomisky, told officers of the Missing Persons Bureau. The boy disappeared Monday evening after he had finished work at the Aldine Theater, where he was employed as an usher.

WESTINGHOUSE, STEEL UP

Electric did a springboard to 399, up 10¼ points, for another new record top price. Yet another high hat was fashioned by Consolidated Gas, which jumped 5 points to 168¾.

The soaring qualities of the aristocrats of the market strengthened the entire list. In addition, the 7 per cent call money today compared to 8 per cent yesterday, gave a further shot to the bullish enthusiasm.

The gymnastics of the market reflected a remarkable recovery from the break last Friday. However, there was a disposition to interpret the raising of the rediscount rate as a barometer of prosperity. On the other side of the fence, there were brokers who predicted glooming another Black Friday.

MARKET FOLLOWS STEEL.

The optimists pointed out that even at its new high steel was selling at less than 10 times its earnings, that as steel goes so goes the whole list, and that the bulls were running strong and that it takes a lot to stop a bull on the hoof.

United States Steel shared the limelight with a larger group of speculative favorites today than in any full session in a week or more. The bull movement spread with rapidity to the oil stocks, coppers and motors. Investment buying for the trusts and powerful corporations and pools swept the market bare of stocks at anything approximating Tuesday's closing prices.

STANDARD OIL UP

Standard Oil of New Jersey's new climb to 52 was taken as an indication of important developments in the oil industry but speculators were warned away from the oils by the frequency of "false starts" in the last year or two.

In connection with the new-born speculative spirit raging through the country, U. S. Attorney Charles H. Tuttle today declared that "financial speakeasies" (his term for fake stock concerns and tipster sheets) have caused a loss of approximately $5,000,000 to the public.

Tuttle announced that he would ask for a Federal grand jury next month to devote itself entirely to investigating this "public menace."

COURT BLOCKS CHARTER VOTE

fourth Tuesday of June, and provided it shall be the duty of the commissioners to conduct the election.

"No provisoon was made in the act for a re-submission of the charter although section four provided that it may be amended by the legislature subject to ratification by a majority of the consolidated city voting thereon at any general or special election.

"We are of the opinion that the amendment is not mandatory and that legislative enactment is necessary.

"No duty is imposed on the commissioners to decide whether the question shall be resummitted or not, and there are no general laws giving them such authority.

"We do not question the general principle that a constitutional provision is self-executing if it makes sufficient provision, and this clause is sufficient that the charter can be re-submitted, but that is all, and the act of April 26, 1929, may merely provide for the method in which the submission of a question to voters shall be printed upon the ballots, and requires the County Commissioners to provide the proper ballot. This does not affect the question before us."

DIVORCE FRAUD RULING ENDS $300,000 BALM SUIT

CONSPIRACY ANNULS DECREE

Wheeling Woman Returned To Married Status; Action Against Millionaire Fails

WELLSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 14.—A decree handed down today in the Circuit Court here by Judge J. B. Sommerville, annuling the divorce granted to Mrs. Lillian Russell Toothman, of Wheeling, returned the woman to her married status and automatically terminated her $300,000 breach of promise suit in Ohio County against James Hawley, reputed millionaire real estate operator.

The court's opinion held that Mrs. Toothman's divorce from Lawrence Toothman, granted here in 1926, was obtained by fraud, as alleged in the petition of Chancery Commissioner J. A. Gist, through his attorneys, Ramsay and Wilkin. The latter were attorneys for the woman when the divorce was granted and joined with the chancery commissioner in prosecuting the suit decided today.

The suit alleged that Mrs. Toothman conspired with her husband in claiming a residence in Brooke County at the time the divorce action was begun. They lived, as a matter of fact, in Marshall County, and Toothman arranged to be in Wellsburg in order to be served with papers. The allegations in Mrs. Toothman's suit against Hawley contain charges that they were to be married following her divorce. When he declined to take her for his wife, she sued him for $300,000.

During the course of procedure, Hawley's counsel learned of the fraud connected with the woman's divorce in Brooke County and obtained a temporary injunction, restraining prosecution of the breach of promise suit until the Brooke County case could be settled. The decision today has the effect of making permanent the injunction.

NEW ORLEANS RIOTS END

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 14.—(INS.)—Comparative quiet prevailed here today as extra policemen went on duty to prevent a recurrence of Tuesday's rioting.

A mob of nearly 1,000 attacked the city council chamber at noon yesterday and beat four city commissioners.

The mob, composed of street car strikers and their sympathizers, descended upon the chamber when acting Mayor T. S. Walmsley attempted to adjourn a disorderly meeting of council while union spokesmen demanded the removal of a municipal ban on jitneys.

The city commission took its first step in thwarting the new outbreak of violence by ordering Theodore Ray, superintendent of police, to augment his force with any number of men he may need.

Yesterday's flare of mob action was the biggest here since two persons were killed in riots early in the srike when the Public Service, Inc., attempted to resume street car service with imported strikebreakers.

MURDERED GIRL FOUND IN SACK

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—The body of a 12-yearlold girl, believed by police to have been attacked and slain by a moron, was identified by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew K. Aune, as that of their daughter, Dorothy.

The body, wrapped in gunny sacks, was found in a south Minneapolis street today, 12 hours after the girl was reported missing from her home.

Although the wrappings that concealed the body were not removed pending arrival of the coroner, the parents were positive in their identification. Clothing visible through the burlap corresponded exactly with that worn by their daughter when she disappeared, they said.

Police began a search for a middle aged man who had been seen in the neighborhood of the Aune home the past few days.

DIG UP BODY IN INSURANCE PLOT

OCILLA, Ga., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Contents of a modest South Carolina grave with a headstone bearing the name of one of three men indicted yesterday for murder today were ordered exhumed by Solicitor General R. S. Foy, in his effort to connect the men definitely with what the state has described as an "insurance murder plot."

Sheriff W. C. Tyler said action of the solicitor followed "general talk" that the grave held only the charred bones of a goat. Through examination the state will attempt to prove that in the grave in reality is buried Harry Loving, Huntington (W. Va.) youth, allegedly the insurance plot victim.

Harry K. Slight, Irwin County farmer, whose name is inscribed on the headstone, and who disappeared after the burning of his home two years ago to be located several months later following futile efforts to collect $90,000 insurance on his life, and two brothers, James and Aubry Hoover, were charged formally with slaying Loving.

RAIDERS' CARS ATTACKED BY CROWDS

Drys Hooted and Jeered, Tires of Cars Slashed, Engine Parts Removed

Automobiles of prohibition agents were damaged by crowds who surrounded two places raided early today.

While the agents were raiding a saloon at 158 Forty-eighth street, five tires on their car were punctured with an ice pick. As they emerged from the saloon they were greeted with hoots and jeers by a large crowd which had gathered. Michael and Pete Krotec were arrested and a small quantity of moonshine seized, agents reported.

Five garages in the district refused to repair the tires. A sixth garage made the repairs and the agents then took their prisoners to headquarters in the Plaza Building.

A short time later the rotors of the ignition distributors in two prohibition agents' automobiles were removed while they were raiding a club at 3357 Bigelow boulevard. Both cars had to be towed to garages. Wallace Kern, 42, was arrested and later released in bond.

Prohibition agents raided a dwelling at 427 Bailey avenue, Mt. Washington, today and reported seizing a 300-gallon still being operated in the attic. A quantity of mash, 25 cans of moonshine and 300 empty five-gallon cans were reported seized also. Albert Michael, 29, was arrested. When agents attempted to enter, he tried to escape through a cellar window, they said, but was caught in the backyard. He was released in $1,000 bail.

In the saloon of Victor Cherer, at 114 Forty-third street, and the restaurant of Mike Rutkowski, at 3603 Butler street, moonshine was seized and both men were arrested, the raiders said.

Behind a bar in a club on the second floor of 204 Sixth avenue, several bottles of gin and whisky were seized when the agents visited the place, they said. In a room on the third floor of the structure, 72 pints of gin were reported found. Chris W. Lips, 34, and Charles Rahn were arrested in the raid, according to the agents.

EVACUATE RHINE BY CHRISTMAS

THE HAGUE, Aug. 14.—(INS.)—Switching from an aggressive to a milder brand of diplomacy, the delegates in the Hague conference of the British Labor government appeared today to be in sight of a satisfactory compromise agreement upon both reparations and evacuation of the Rhineland.

The financial committee met and terminated its consideration of deliveries in kind after a brief, general discussion. The committee adjourned until Saturday.

It is understood a compromise agreement will be worked out regarding evacuation under which withdrawal of troops from the Rhineland will be under way before Christmas.

On the financial side of the dispute efforts are still under way to bridge the gap caused by the demands of Phil Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer in the British government.

Snowden gave in upon certain issues concerning the Young plan. He notified the other delegations that Great Britain is now willing that the Reparation Commission shall appoint a committee to advise the German Government as to what laws the Reichstag should enact to make the Young plan effective. Previously the British had objected to this procedure.

CHARGE EQUITY WITH THREATS

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—A charge that attempts were being made to "intimidate and terrify" witnesses in the assault case resulting from the beating given Frank Goddard and Harry Deck, film actors, by asserted members of Actors' Equity Association, were made today by Detective Lieut. William Hynes.

Goddard, who is in a hospital as the result of the attack, signed an affidavit stating that an attorney and a woman who visited him at his bedside had "offered to compensate me for my injuries if I would drop the charges." Goddard described the attorney as a "representative of the Actors' Equity Association."

Hynes stated that the pair visited Goddard under pretext of having police authority and that they intimidated Goddard into signing a statement absolving several of the accused men of the attack.

Goddard was beaten when he went to the aid of Deck, who was attacked in front of a Hollywood movie studio last week. Deck told the police he was attacked after refusing demands to renew his membership in Equity.

Three men, identified as members of equity, were arrested. They have pleaded not guilty to charges of battery. Their trials were set for August 28.

Lifer to Execute Pal in Murder Of Woman

HAVANA, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Two partners in crime may meet early next year on the garrote platform in the Cuban Federal penitentiary, one as executioner, the other to die for the murder of a 64-year-old woman, Emilia Munoz.

A ruling today by the Supreme Court said that Enrique Pineda, sentenced to a life term as accomplice in the Munoz slaying and last year named official executioner, must twist the garrote handle in the execution of Zolia Rodriguez, admitted slayer of the old woman.

Rodriguez was arrested at Tampa, Fla., last year after a world-wide search lasting five years. He was returned to Cuba and tried last April.

DENTIST HELD IN DRY RAID

NEW KENSINGTON, Aug. 14.—A Vandergrift dentist and five other men were caught in a liquor raid late yesterday on the home of Mrs. Mary Stankus, of East Vandergrift.

The men arrested on drunk and disorderly charges, each fined $5 with costs by Justice of the Peace Sam K. Hunger, of Vandergrift, were Dr. Edward H. Lace, the dentist, Thomas Blair, Thomas Garrett, Edward Borland, Arnold Bloom and Frank Monthley. Mrs. Stankus was held under $1,000 bond. According to Westmoreland County Detective Sherman Hill, this is the woman's third arrest and one liquor charge is pending in the August term of court.

Two raids at New Kensington resulted in the arrest of two children and their father. Moonshine was found in the home of Frank Stapinski, 45, of 1272 Second avenue, who was held for court along with his daughter, Wanda, 15, and son, William, 16. Earl Wiles, 30, of 726 Third avenue, was arrested and held for court when moonshine was found in a club operated by him.

REPORT FAVORS NEW CALENDAR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—A report favoring revision of the calendar by the formation of 13 months of equal length was presented to Secretary Stimson today by the national committee on calendar simplification for transmission to the League of Nations.

The committee was organized in 1928 under the chairmanship of George Eastman, Rochester, N. Y., at the suggestion of the League of Nations.

The religious aspects of a calendar change, the experience of business concerns with private calendars, and an analysis of the "grave defects" of the present system all were set out in the lengthy report, which declared that any inconvenience in making the change would be outweighed by the permanent advantages of a more simple calendar.

Under the plan of 13 months of 28 days each, the new month would be placed between June and July.

"The three hundred and sixty-fifth day of the year would be dated December 29," the report explained, "with the suggested name of 'peace day' or 'year day,' and observed as an extra Sabbath. Leap day would be placed on June 29 and observed as an extra Sabbath or holiday."

Families Routed As 80-Year-Old House Totters

Two familes were seeking new homes today when their frame house, more than 80 years old, at 156 Pike street, started sinking on one side.

Those routed were Mrs. Catherine McGurk and her son, John, who occupied the first floor, and Mrs. Catherine Visocki and three children, living on the second floor. City building inspectors ordered the two families out.

Adjoining this landmark, an unoccupied two-story frame building at 158 Pike street, owned by F. W. Schreiber, is holding the structure from falling.

DIAMOND TARIFF ELIMINATED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(INS.)—The highly controversial sugar schedule appeared as a mirage on the tariff horizon of the Senate Finance Committee today as its Republican membership struggled vainly to complete the multi-itemed list of "sundries" duties.

At the same time the Senate Republicans moved to wipe out diamond smuggling. The long standing 10 per cent ad valorem rate on uncut diamonds was eliminated.

It was said this duty brought little revenue and caused heavy governmental expenditures in efforts to prevent smuggling into this country. The rate on pearls and cut diamonds was reduced from 20 to 10 per cent ad valorem for the same reason, the belief prevailing that the lower rate would make smuggling unprofitable.

The Senate Finance Committee Republicans today voted, 6 to 5, to place manganese ore on the free list.

BOISE, Idaho, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—United States senators and representatives from all Western states were invited by Gov. H. C. Baldridge to attend the conference of Western governors in Salt Lake, August 26 and 27.

The invitation was extended with a view to starting action in Congress against any move leading toward cessation of Federal support for reclamation and irrigation projects.

5 Dead in Oil Still Blast in California

WILMINGTON, Cal., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—One oil worker was killed outright, four companions died within four hours from burns and one more was not expected to live as a result of an explosion in a cracking still of the Shell Oil Company here yesterday.

The terrific blast was generated by gasoline fumes escaped from a broken line in a "hot" room of the still and contacting the 700-degree Fahrenheit heat.

RICH MAN, GIRL SHOOT SELVES

International News Service.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Gail Hamilton, wealthy New York agency owner, and Miss Montell Mansfield, his young sweetheart, were dead here today—the result of a wild, all-night drinking party in luxurious apartments near here.

They are believed to have committed suicide.

The bodies were found in the dainty cretonne decorated boudoir which Hamilton, owner of a prosperous employment agency in New York and the father of several children, had fitted out for Miss Mansfield.

BOUGHT HER HOME

The two deaths followed almost immediately after a three-cornered quarrel with Rudolph Bachert, a mutual friend.

Several years ago Hamilton purchased the quaint Spring-Top Farm as a summer home where he could visit Miss Mansfield frequently. The house was completely redecorated in old Colonial style. It is located at Salt Point, near Netherlands, and Miss Mansfield had been occupying it since last spring.

DRINKING

Bachert drove there in his car yesterday and he and Miss Mansfield and Hamilton had a number of drinks together, it was learned.

At midnight, after many drinks had been consumed, the three went for a drive through the countryside. Bachert's car was loaded with liquor bottles, it was reported.

They were singing and apparently in high spirits when they left the house.

In the meantime the other guests, Mrs. Henrietta Voorhis, Miss Elizabeth McCure and Fred Navarre, all of Greater New York, dozed in the living room.

It was 5 o'clock in the morning when the trio returned from their drive.

TWO SHOTS

Miss Mansfield went directly to her room and Bachert went to his room. Hamilton remained with the three others in the living room. They said he appeared highly nervous.

Hamilton ran up the sairs.

Miss Mansfield, clad in her summer gown, was stretched on her bed. A wound was in her right temple and she held a .22 caliber pistol in her right hand.

When Navarre reached the room a moment after Hamilton he heard Hamilton say, he told police:

"Oh, my God—why did you do it. I love you!"

HAZY EXPLANATIONS

He was unconscious and lived an hour.

Navarre called Bachert. He told police Bachert was in his room and appeared sleepy when he came to the door. Navarre said he had trouble making Bachert understand what had happened.

Navarre then summoned a physician and the police.

Sheriff Rockefeller and Coroner John Acord closely questioned Bachert. They reported he seemed hazy about the events which preceded the shooting, but promised to make a full statement later in the day.

The others also were questioned.

Miss McCure and Mrs. Voorhis were friends of Miss Mansfield, who had brought Navarre with them.

WASHINGTON AIR LINE STARTS

Pittsburgh's initial air passenger service to Washington officially opens today, a continuance of the line from Cleveland.

The Cleveland plane was due to arrive at Bettis Field at 2:45 p. m. Information received here stated three passengers were booked for the flight, including Clifford Ball, pioneer air mail contractor and owner of the line.

The stopover here was to be only long enough to refuel the plane. The start from Cleveland was scheduled for 1:30 p. m. with the possibility of a stop in Youngstown for mail.

The route was being inaugurated by Ball with a view toward obtaining the Pittsburgh-Washington mail contract, soon to be awarded. Several other Pittsburgh interests also are seeking the contract. Col. Harry C. Fry, Jr., today announced he contemplated establishing an identical line within a few days.

DELAYED START ALLOWS ZEP CHECK-UP

Ship Completely Inspected by Experts Grooming Liner For Flight to Orient

By SIR HUBERT WILKINS.

Famous explorer, who crossed the Atlantic aboard the Graf Zeppelin from Friedrichshafen, and is writing the story of the Hearst-Zeppelin-Round-the-World Flight.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Aug. 14.—With this extra day in hand before the start of the Graf Zeppelin on the second leg of its Hearst-Zeppelin-Round-the-World-Flight, there is no last minute hurry or rush in the final checking of equipment, supplies, engine units and instruments.

Most everything, now, is completely checked and rechecked. Yet, as usual, with all long-distance flights of either heavier or lighter-than-air craft, the mechanicians and craftsmen cannot have too much time for preparation.

Gas Cells Tested

At intervals during the last 24 hours, the huge gas cells have been swelling with new gas, but because of the warm temperatures of the day, they will not be completely filled until the night preceding the start. At times, when the hangar is gas free, the low rumble of the engines turning over is audible for some distance away.

The three wireless operators have been busy tuning their instruments. There are installed one short wave 50-watt transmitter and one long wave commercial set. No emergency portable transmitter or receiver is carried, but a four-horse power gasoline motor, part of the electricians' equipment, can be used in case of an emergency landing or should the wind-driven generator fail.

How Radio Functions

The framework to support the commercial station is made of lighter material, but otherwise is similar in design to those carried by ships. The Zeppelin's wireless, so far as the public is concerned, functions just as that on a ship at sea.

Want No Messages

There will be no radio beacons on the flight to Tokio, although it is possible for a Zeppelin radio man to fix the direction of stations ahead, or vice versa. It may be possible, on occasions or if necessary, to get in touch with the 600-meter Russian stations on the Arctic coast, but the stations we are depending on for general communication are the Norddeich, in Germany, and that in Mukden, and on the Japanese stations toward the end of the flight.

The short wave transmitter works normally at night on 35.4 meters and in the daytime on 25 meters. However, the best results during the Atlantic crossings were obtained at night on 53 meters with some good transmission on 45.5 meters.

This may be of interest to amateurs who are anxious to test their receivers, but it is useless and undesirable that they attempt to get in touch to work our Zeppelin station, for, what with the weather reports, the time signals, the direction finding, not to mention private and press messages, the Zeppelin operators are extremely busy. Thus, any interference adds materially to their difficulties.

Owner of Famous Saloon Leaves Big Estate

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(INS.)—"Jack's," where convivial souls gathered together in the days when brewery trucks ran wild down the avenues of New York, did right by the estate of its owner, John Dunston.

Dunston left an estate of $k694,699, according to the tax appraisal filed here.

"Jack's" was the rendezvous for the sporting, theatrical and newspaper gang of yesteryear.

Swedish King Talks to Lady Hay, Envies Tourists

By LADY DRUMMOND HAY,

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Aug. 14.—King Gustav, of Sweden, came all the way to little Friedrichshafen to see the famous airship Graf Zeppelin, "storm conqueror," yesterday.

"I wish the Hearst-Zeppelin Round-World-Flight the best of luck and success," His Majesty told me as we stood at the entrance to the passenger gondola, surrounded by imposing Swedish court and government officials.

This is not the first time King Gustav has seen our beautiful silver Leviathan of the air. About a year ago he visited "Zeppelin town," evincing intense interest in the Graf Zeppelin, which was then under construction, and telling Capt. Von Schiller at that time he hoped to return to see it when it was completed.

King Misses Flight

Now, that he has seen the Zeppelin in all its beauty, the King of Sweden longs to see it in the air, regretting he will not be able to see it start off on the second lap of its historic world flight.

"It must be a wonderful sight in the air," the King remarked, "I wish it would come to Sweden."

Gustav, the model democratic king, wants all his people to see the Zeppelin, too. The King of Sweden is personally most interested in aviation and is always keen to keep abreast of the latest inventions and developments. This explains the royal enthusiasm in the Zeppelin enterprise and the fact that the King has come a second time to see the Zeppelin; also, the astounding appreciation and understanding of technical details, unaffected interest in the prospect of future Zeppelins and the new, big airdock now being built.

Eager for Gustav

"It must be wonderful to travel around the world in this airship," the King said to me.

"What does Your Majesty think of the Graf Zeppelin?" I asked.

"Marvelous," he answered as his royal eye ran along the symetrical harmony of the craft's perfect silver lines.

The King's visit was eagerly anticipated at the Zeppelin works in the afternoon about 6 o'clock. Everyone remembered his interest and enthusiasm a year ago. And the King, with his classical, royal memory, remembered every face he had seen last year, before warmly greeting Dr. Eckener and the officials.

Accompanied by Admiral Count Ehrenswaerd, chief of the cabinet; Minister Landgren; Maj. Birk, court chamberlain; Dr. Theodore Wanner, Swedish consul at Stuttgart; Baron Von Essen, and Capts. Lehmann and Von Schiller, King Gustav minuetly examined every detail of the Zeppelin.

Walking up the great hall, he admired the airship as its 766 feet were spread in full perspective before him. He mounted the steps to the passenger gondola and would not be satisfied until he had peered over the dainty chint-lined cabins.

Capt. Lehmann tells me he said:

"That's interesting. So lucky No. 7 cabin belongs to Lady Hay?"

Bending his royal head, which is more than six feet high, he penetrated the interior along the catwalk.

The crew's quarters are very comfortable, the King remarked, picking his way on the foot-wide walk. His inspection ended "all too quickly," said the King, and he asked me:

"So, you are the little lady who made the trans-Atlantic flight last October?"

"Yes, sir," I replied, curtseying.

Interested in Tour

He appeared deeply interested in our round-world flight, questioning me generally on conditions and prospects. With the best good humor, he submitted to the demands of delighted cameraman, anxious to photograph the handsome Scandinavian monarch.

Robert Hartman, more a cameraman than a courtier, unhesitatingly cried:

"Your majesty, look my way."

"Smile, your majesty," and when I finally curtsied to the King, thanking him for the honor of being photographed with him, Hartman called loudly:

"Fine, fine! Hold that while I shoot another!"

This was all to the King's amusement, my embarrassment and the disgust of the royal entourage. Lehmann and Von Schiller smiled discreetly, and I am sure the whole Zeppelin works thinks that newspaper and press photographic circles in which they are suddenly plunged savor of a madhouse very foreign to their formal German etiquette and training.

The two Zeppelin captains were full of the King's visit. Von Schiller was astonished because the King remembered him as the guide of a year ago. Lehmann was happy because the King promises to return again to see the new airdock completed and see the projected new Zeppelin. Lehmann said:

"I know the King would just love to fly in the Zeppelin. He is one of the sincere and active supporters of aviation."

Admiral Count Ehrenswaerd asked many highly technical questions on the Zeppelin, and was especially interested in our new gyro-compass and all the details of navigation. He said to Capt. Von Schiller:

"The Zeppelin is more marvelous than any surface vessel I have ever seen. I could spend hours here."

Von Wiegand, Eckener Discuss Probable Routes

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND,
World-renowned newspaper correspondent, who crossed the Atlantic aboard the Graf Zeppelin on its first trans-Atlantic cruise, and who is writing the story of the Hearst-Zeppelin-Round-the-World-Flight.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Aug. 14.—The Graf Zeppelin will be a veritable "flying tower of Babel" when it takes off at dawn Thursday and points its giant, blunt nose to the northeast on the second and most difficult and also the most fascinatingly interesting lap of the Hearst-Zeppelin-Round-the-World-Flight.

No less than seven languages will be heard in the small but comfortable lounge room. This was impressed upon us today with the arrival of Prof. Karklin, the Russian geographer, who represents the Soviet government.

It develops that the Professor cannot speak a word of language save Russian, and there is no one in the Zeppelin headquarters who can speak the Professor's native tongue.

Just how Prof. Karklin is going to communicate to Commander Eckener his knowledge of geography, climate and weather topography along our route is not yet clear, unless an interpreter is found.

Lady Hay Interpreter

While a number of passengers and officers speak two, and even three languages, Lady Drummond Hay is our prize linguist, with five languages, not including her "get-along" knowledge of Russian. And thus, Lady Hay may be pressed into service as the first woman aerial interpreter.

The Graf will also be something of an "Aerial League of Nations," with its 10 nationalities. It certainly is a distinctly varied passenger list.

I had a long talk with Dr. Eckener about the course that is being charted from Friedrichshafen to Tokio. The Commodore explained that, for an airship, no hard and fast route is ever laid down. The course is altered as often as advisable, and the extent to which the air skipper can avoid bad weather and opposing winds and take advantage of pushing or helpful air currents, increasing speed and saving fuel, is the degree of his successful meterological navigation.

Reports that we would go down the Danube or in the direction of the Caspian Sea, Dr. Eckener declared to be unfounded. He said:

"The Caspian is a bad corner in the weather chart this time of the year, and to go along the Danube would extend our distance by many miles."

Maps His Course

Dr. Eckener, going to the huge revolving globe in his office, then laid out our probable route for me in a general way.

The Graf will leave Friedrichshafen and fly in the direction of Berlin, probably passing over the German capital around noon Thursday. Then, we will continue to the northeast; coming out upon the Baltic Sea near Stettin, thence proceeding along the coast of East Prussia up to the Baltic and perhaps passing over Leningrad. He added:

"However, should there be some depression from the north, we may steer our course from Berlin direct for Koenigsberg, passing over the Polish corridor, and from Koenigsberg, lay our route over the edge of East Prussia for Riga and thence for Moscow instead of Leningrad."

This the commander explained as he traced the lines of possible flight on the big globe. He continued:

"My decisions must necessarily be taken after I am in the air, and are subject to change as judgment, based on the weather reports received, may dictate.

"The farther north we go, I am confident, the better weather we will have. Present meteorological reports would seem to indicate that we shall have some nice winds which will shove us along."

Sir Hubert Wilkins, who knows the Arctic regions, heartily agrees with Dr. Eckener on the far northern route as the quickest, best and safest.

Approaching Pole

From Leningrad or Moscow, Commander Eckener proposes to steer sharply to the northeast, possibly skimming over the White Sea and cutting across the Arctic circle up to the seventieth parallel, to within 900 miles of the North Pole!

Skirting the Polar rim of mystery, with the Arctic Sea below us and the full moon above, on the famous "white nights" of the Far North—Not an everyday achievement or experience for even the most fortunate adventurer!

It will be a weird picture at night and fascinatingly interesting in the daytime. Though we are laying in heavy coats and blankets and even arctics, Capt. Wilkins says it will be scarcely colder there than it now is in Germany.

Thus, if Dr. Eckener takes that route, we will pass around the Ural mountains instead of over them.

This, of course, would carry us over the Arctic for hundreds of miles along the shelf of Siberia, past the mouth of the Ob and the Yenisei Rivers, and then southeastward with a bearing upon Yakutsk. Then we would head for the northern point of Sakhalien Island.

It would be a veritable voyage of discovery, for on this trip, we pass over portions of Siberia which no man has yet seen, and which are merely the large white spots on the maps.

May Cross Urals

"It is possible, of course, that instead of going around the Urals, we may pass over the northern part of the chain and then bear farther south than I have indicated here."

This was Dr. Eckener's comment as he placed his index finger at the mouth of the Yenisei, then adding:

"But that is, I believe, the shortest and the safest route."

When I asked if it were not better to stay farther south in Siberia and run along parallel with the trans-Siberian Railway, the commodore shook his head vigorously and said:

"No. That is where the air currents from the table lakes and deserts of Central Asia and China meet with those from the north, causing turbulence and considerable bumpiness.

"There are also heavy rains in the mountainous regions over which we would have to pass. All this is avoidable by the extreme northern route."

Then, I remarked, indicating a spot on the map:

"But we will be more than 1,200 miles north of the trans-Siberian Railway if we should have to make a forced landing in the vast forests of unknown Northern Siberia."

The commodore, with a confident smile, quietly replied:

"I will not set you down up there."

Light at Night

"We will have white nights and long days up there. The sun goes down about 9:30 and rises a little after 3, but even during the night hours, it is not dark.

"That, I believe, will be the ideal air route from Europe to Asia, and we shall be the ones to blaze the trail along the top of the world from West to East."

Long we stood over that huge globe and discussed this and that route through the great unknown, far north, until I began to feel that I am about to become an explorer.

Though Dr. Eckener and his officers exhibit in the air the greatest confidence in the successful completion of the longest non-stop flight ever undertaken in point of distance, nothing will be neglected to cope with any predictable emergency.

Even should worst come to worst and we be compelled to land in the far north, we are equipped to take care of ourselves in the wilds of Siberia. The Russian government is giving us regular and special weather services. Aside from that, the Soviets have made arrangements for an emergency landing at Vladivostock should head winds hold us back and our fuel be in danger of running out before reaching Japan.

Radio Keeps Watch

All Russian wireless stations have been instructed to be on the lookout for us. American and Japanese ships and naval and commercial wireless stations in the northern Pacific will be on the qui vive. In fact, the American and Japanese navy squadrons, from the Philippines to Behring Sea, are alertly mobilized to aid the Graf with information.

Manila will send special warnings to us through the radio station at our Peiping legation, while the Navy will broadcast from Cavite a special weather service on a schedule of specified hours for the Graf.

The Russian stations at Takutsk and Vladivostock will give us the weather of Eastern Siberia, and the Japanese have organized a special service for us while we are in range of their stations.

It is planned to broadcast the positions of the ship every four hours. If nothing should be heard from the Graf for some time after we get out of range of the Leningrad radio station and before we are in touch with those in Eastern Siberia, it should not cause alarm.

The range of the wireless station aboard the Graf is, unfortunately, limited, as we again discovered on the first leg of the world flight, from New York to Friedrichshafen. A large part of the second day we were out of touch or could not "get through" the static conditions. It is not only probable, but almost certain, that nothing may be heard from us for a period of from 24 to 36 hours while on the edge of the Arctic, although Chief Radio Operator Dumke assures me that every effort will be made to send news dispatches and broadcast our position at night with the short wave transmitter.

Dr. Z. Megias, King Alfonso's personal physician, who is going with us, arrived from Madrid yesterday. Among the other passengers also to arrive were Dr. Seilkopf, Germany's chief meteorologist; D. S. Geisenheimer, of Frankfort; Lieut. Col. Iselin of the Swiss army. Leeds and Lieut. Jack Richardson will return from Paris today.

In the great airship dock, the work of grooming the Graf is progressing programmatically. The tightening of the cover will be finished by noon, when the filling of the remainder of ballonets will be resumed.

By midnight tonight, the ship will be clear for the start across Europe and Asia to Japan in the Pacific Ocean.

Water Company Seeks Two Plants

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—The Public Service Commission heard the application of the Citizens Water Company, of Scottdale, Westmoreland County, to purchase the property and franchises of the Mount Pleasant Water Company and the physical assets of the Trotter "B" plant of the Trotter Water Company. The gross purchase price is approximately $400,000.

Counsel for the Citizens company denied that his company planned to resell the proposed acquisitions, or raise the rates. He said that the rates now applied to the Citizens territory would be extended to the Mount Pleasant and Trotter consumers. The borough of Scottdale, it was brought out, favors the merger.

Sayings from "PICK"

Extract from Pickering's Broadcast August 12, 1929.

WJAS

"—You know business is always good when one makes it good. Things may appear to be dull, buying slack, but there is always a PUBLIC WANT in all lines of merchandise, and if one has had the foresight to supply one's self with the right kind of wanted merchandise at a price that strikes the happy medium of the times, one will attract the larger proportion of what demand there is, and that proportion, no matter how small the whole, will be sufficient to keep one's establishment more than busy all the time."

We cannot say that there is a lack of demand for our products, we cannot say that we are better merchants than others, but we do know that we are busy, that we cannot complain about our business, and if that has any virtue, it may be because we do know that we are TRYING all the time to serve better, to satisfy more, to give value, to preach quality, therefore economy to keep our stocks new and clean. Our methods are honest and reliable. OUR RECORD OF FIFTY-SIX YEARS BACK OF US IS ALWAYS THE STAR AHEAD OF US, and if this is the road to success then we are going to keep to it for your benefit. For your benefit is our benefit. Your satisfaction our success.

The National Union Fire Insurance Company of Pittsburgh will begin immediately the erection of another stone structure in the imposing group of buildings north of Fifth avenue in Oakland. The estimated cost is $460,000. Application for a building permit was made yesterday for a seven-story office building in Thackeray street opposite the Logan armory. It will be in the rear of the National Union's present administration offices and will be built of the same material and along similar architectural lines.

The building will be 73 by 104 feet and will be of fireproof construction. The plans were drawn by Abram Garfield and A. C. Robinson, III., associated architects. The contract was awarded to the W. T. Grange Construction Company. It was announced that the new building is necessary to house the increasing number of employes in the National Union Fire Insurance Company and its subsidiary companies.

Newell's Hotel building, a downtown landmark at 335 Fifth avenue, is to be transformed into a modern office building. Extensive alterations will be made on the lower floors. The improvements will cost more than $25,000.

Clarence F. Botsford has bought from Arthur Martin through C. L. Saxton Company a lot 124 by 150 feet at 4701 Perrysville road containing a six-room brick building, a four-room stucco building with nine brick garages and a stock of automobiles and accessories. The consideration was $25,000. Botsford has taken possession of the property and announces many improvements.

The King Real Estate Company announces the sale of seven new dwellings at 744-56 Monticello street for Morris Brawdy. I. L. Shapiro is the purchaser.

A. M. Scully will build an addition to his residence at 725 Devonshire street, Seventh ward, costing $15,500.

The Murdock Development Company has obtained permits for the erection of two brick dwellings and garages at 1227 Bennington avenue to cost $30,000, and a brick dwelling at 1220 Inverness street to cost $12,000.

Ralph Smith, assistant United States attorney, is having plans prepared for a new residence in Edgeworth.

Sub-bids are being received for a block of eight dwellings to be erected by Flora Z. Miller in Oakland avenue. The plans were prepared by Hannah & Sterling.

Blame Explosion, Fire on Bombing

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Aug 14.—Detectives investigating the explosion which wrecked the home of Mrs. Angelo Perri, in Patterson Township, believe a bomb was planted under the building. Nearby residences were shaken and endangered by fire which followed. The Patterson Township fire department extinguished the flames. Damage is estimated at $6,000.

There was no one in the house. Mrs. Perri is in the Providence Hospital recovering from a major operation. Her husband died two months ago.

Woolsheer Ensembles

$39.50

One of the most startling developments in the Paris Openings was the preponderance of new models—most of them jacket ensembles—made of sheer woolen fabrics.

But an inspection of Horne's "Woolsheer" costumes will convince you that—even without the approval of Paris—these modes would have many supporters.

The tailoring first attracts . . . unexpected curves, deft seams and tucks, . . . then the feminine touch of the satin blouse . . . or the practical detachable vestees that permit the use of a separate blouse.

BRITAIN BUILDS SPEED LINER

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—A Belfast dispatch to the Daily News today said the keel of the new White Star liner Oceanic has been completely demolished to make way for a new vessel to take up the speed challenge of the new German liner, Bremen.

The keel was laid last October and was nearly completed when work was suddenly ordered stopped July 23. It was understood that a new ship, to be even greater in length than the 1,000-odd feet originally proposed for the Oceanic, was to be built. The old plans called for a ship of 60,000 tons.

Snook Guard Doubled to Forestall Suicide Attempt

Seyfert had made one of the defense arguments to the jury. The thirteenth juror had been substituted for juror No. 8, who had reported ill at the opening of court. In his talk, Seyfert claimed Snook killed in self-defense.

In a calm, self-contained manner, Attorney Gessamen declared, with quiet emphasis, that "Snook lied to the prosecutor, to the police and to his own lawyers."

RIDICULES BRAIN STORM

Declaring that Snook's wife and mother had been "paraded" in the courtroom to arouse sympathy of the jury, he asked how much "mercy" Snook had shown Theora Hix.

"You never showed any mercy to her mother and father."

Gessaman ridiculed the plea that "something snapped" in Snook's brain after he hit the girl, and said the defense had "dropped the contention that Snook was insane like a hot potato."

During the investigation of the crime, Gessaman said, Snook was "cool as a cucumber." The Thursday morning when he finally confessed, he said, Snook was permitted to sleep and talk to his lawyer before he signed the statement admitting the killing. He pointed out, also, that before Snook confessed, "his cunning mind" started to work, and he asked an explanation of the different degrees of homicide. Then, said Gessaman, Snook decided upon self-defense to "make it just as easy for himself as he could."

Touching upon the cause of death, Gessaman pointed out that the most any witness said was that the hammer blows "might" have killed the girl. He quoted Snook's confession, that before he severed Miss Hix's jugular vein, the girl was moaning and moaning, and that when he left, she was "still."

STRESSES THROAT

He argued that the absence of blood clots in the brain showed her throat had been cut while she was alive; and that after Snook severed the vein, he turned the body over and smashed the back of her head.

The indictment says Snook killed the girl with a pen knife, but makes no mention of the hammer blows.

On the question of premeditation, Gessaman asked the jury to remember that the girl was not killed in a quarrel, but when the vein was cut, following the hammer blows.

Under Ohio law, Gessaman said, premeditation need be only long enough for one to "realize the condition and make the decision."

"Snook," he said, "knew the condition when he took out his pocket knife. And he made the decision to sever the vein."

"That is the element, right here, that will justify you in sending him to the chair. He knew what he wanted to do and he did it."

PUTS BLAME ON SNOOK

Gessaman declared Miss Hix "was a good girl until she met Snook." When she went away to New York, away from his influence, she made fine progress in her summer school studies.

"But she was back in Columbus only 10 minutes when this man was after her," Gessaman declared.

In concluding at 11:45 a. m., Gessaman told the jury to remember that "that man sitting over there, with the calm manner and cunning mind, severed this girl's throat and left her lying, face down, in her blood." He told the jurors to bear in mind, when they deliberate the case, the parents of the slain girl.

Attorney John F. Seidel began the final defense argument at 11:50 a. m. He first emphasized that the jury must, above all, arrive at the truth in reaching a verdict.

Taking a bible from the table he read excerpts to remind the jury that the creator recognized the frailities of human nature. He quoted the injunction: "Go thou, and sin no more."

Defense pleas for Dr. Snook continued when court convened this morning with a bitter denunciation of the slain girl's character and habits.

"I would like to say peace to her ashes," Defense Attorney Max C. Seyfert shouted to the jury, "but I cannot do so with the life of a man at stake. I am forced to throw aside the mantle of charity and call your attention to the facts."

Juror No. 8, C. F. Butche, a carpenter, reported ill today and the thirteenth, or emergency, juror, Newton L. Tracey, a railroad foreman, was substituted in his place in the jury box by agreement of council for both sides and the defendant himself.

SNOOK SATISFIED

Snook was asked by Judge Henry L. Scarlett if he was satisfied with the new juror.

"I am," replied Snook.

Attorney Seyfert, speaking in a clear, resonant voice, reviewed the case briefly and scored the prosecutors for the manner in which they "wrung" a confession from Snook.

Then he swung into the attack on Theora Hix whom, he said, he was "forced" to assail by the very nature of the case.

"She has to be ridiculed, to be pictured as she was," Seyfert said. "She was the type that was quiet but sneaky."

Seyfert told the jury that if Snook had not killed Miss Hix, she would have slain Mrs. Snook and her baby.

"She warned Dr. Snook she would do it," he asserted. Describing Miss Hix's "life of sin," Seyfert declared that "the flames of passion licked up her soul and body."

CHESTER, POLICE ASSAILED

Pounding a table, he assailed Prosecutor John J. Chester, Jr., as "an octopus, a sea-devil with nine arms." He classed the police who helped Chester get the confession from Snook as "wolves."

"They are trying to send Dr. Snook to the chair on trumped-up testimony," Seyfert shouted.

Seyfert portrayed Snook as a man who was led on by a woman, much younger than himself, who finally "dominated" him.

Snook "had to kill" Miss Hix, Seyfert told the jury. He related the events that transpired at the rifle range the night of the crime and of her "attacks" upon Snook in the parked car.

"He was really afraid of her—afraid she'd kill him," said Seyfert. "She was a strong, athletic girl, weighing 145 pounds. She was a good shot, too. She could shoot 25 bulls eyes out of 50 at a distance of 60 feet. And when she reached for her handbag during their quarrel he thought she was after the pistol to kill him as she threatened to do.

BRAIN SNAPPED

"Something must have snapped in Snook's brain after he hit the first time. The next thing he knew he was sitting on the running board, his head in his hands."

Zero hour is approaching for Snook. By 3:30 p. m. (5:30 Pittsburgh time) the fate of the smug-faced college professor probably will be in the hands of the jury. A verdict by nightfall is expected by many of the trial's followers.

Whether the jury, comprising one woman and 11 men, will return a quick verdict or deliberate at length was a matter of conjecture and no little wagering today. The longer the jury is "out" the better will be the chances of Snook escaping the electric chair.

SNOOK BORED, DETACHED

Snook, slumped down on the small of his back, is listening to the closing arguments to the jury with the same detached, almost bored manner that has characterized his demeanor throughout almost all of the trial.

The only time he has manifested any emotion was when he wept on the stand for a few seconds the day he told why he hammered and slashed the co-ed to death on a lonely rifle range on the night of June 13.

Now and then the bald-headed, rather scholarly looking defendant, removes his nose glasses and closes his eyes. He remains lost in thought for long stretches at a time. No matter what is being said in court, whether he is being assailed or condoned, his "poker face" never reveals his own reaction. He has the steel nerves that might be expected of a man who was for years the world's champion rapid fire pistol shot.

CONTENTIONS OUTLINED

The contentions of both the state and defense were revealed in the opening of the closing arguments to the jury by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Paul Hicks and Defense Attorney E. O. Ricketts yesterday. Attorney Hicks told the jury that "Snook is entitled to no mercy at your hands for he took away God's greatest gift—the right to live."

THERE IS NO OTHER ALL-STEEL REFRIGERATOR

THE only all-steel refrigerators in the world... these rugged General Electrics. Built of sheets of steel—as strong and long-lived as a safe. They cannot warp because steel cannot warp. Their doors will never sag. Their latch and hinges will never loosen—they are bolted right into the frame of steel.

Because their doors always fit so tightly and because of specially effective insulation, these refrigerators actually maintain perfect temperature (always safely below the 50 degree danger point) on the least possible current. Heat cannot leak in and cold cannot seep out ... and that is the secret of economical refrigeration.

Just as an all-steel cabinet is superior to other types, so is the hermetically sealed mechanism of the General Electric in a class of its own. It is dust-proof and worry-free. Operation is extremely quiet. It never needs oiling. It has an accessible temperature control. Many other points of superiority will be obvious when you study the refrigerators yourself. As evidence of guaranteed reliability—there are now more than 300,000 users and not one has spent a single dollar for repairs! See, at our display rooms the various models, any of which can be purchased on conveniently spaced payments.

water and irrigation plant, giving retired public servants first chance to try the country without risk of permanent investment. But some one should do that, here, and elsewhere, on a big scale. It is a satisfaction to see fruit trees growing on what as desert. And wide stretches of alfalfa in place of dry yellow soil, swept by clouds of sand.

THE young ladies of Deauville College, in Buffalo, will be able soon to obtain more information from the fellow student, Miss Helen Fisk, now here visiting her aunt, Mrs. Lucy McLean Hodge and writing a book about the desert. Do not come here in search of money, come to spend it. The Hodge brothers, for whom the place is named, coming after the war to develop land taken up by Robert Hodge when he left the Army, built their alfalfa "lands," their 350,000-gallon reservoir and dug their well, with their own hands.

AND they did that work, in the late evening, and early morning, doing a full day's work on neighboring ranches between times to earn a living and buy ranch equipment. That is the type called for by this country, it is a type not numerous.

BUT the man with money, who can afford to buy a few square miles, and a mountain or two, might well come here. He can, eventually, not soon, make his investment pay. He can dwell as far as he likes from other beings. To some, that is worth money. He can ride his horse over a new desert trail each day, or across desert and hills with no trail. He can follow the old Mormon trail, that took the wanderers from Salt Lake, to the Pacific. Or, lost in the hills, with only an occasional rattlesnake to divert his attention from the sky, he can feel that he really lives on the earth, and realize that it is beautiful. You can do none of those things in the land of corner lots, bonds and stocks.

The Princess

By ELEANOR WILMOT.

HILDA HAMMOND worked on the stocking counter in the Boston Department Store. Very few knew why this big, humming beehive was named for the famous "Hub of the Universe," and the few who did know had probably forgotten all about it. The management prided itself on a general atmosphere of refinement, and good-looking and courteous clerks.

And Hilda was goodlooking—hair like spun gold, a complexion of satiny smoothness and delicately vivid in coloring, eyes that were deep pools of lovely purple lights.

As a rule, her patrons were women—old, young and middle aged. Once in a while, men folks strayed in to buy silk stockings for gifts, or with which to pay a bet—or to seek special favor. And Hilda usually looked these men folks over a bit critically and asked herself some such question as this:

"Now how would I like a man like that for a husband?"

When the men were young and good-looking, Hilda held herself to answering the question. When they were older and getting fat, she sort of wondered what they had been like when they were young.

It was a bright morning in late June and customers had not been very many. The lure of the outdoors was strong. Hilda had been dusting boxes and arranging stock and the glass counter case which was her particular charge. My how she wanted to get out in the lovely weather.

Suddenly a shadow fell across the crystal top of the "silent salesman" in front of her, and Hilda found herself looking directly into the eyes of the handsomest young man she had seen in many a day!

For a minute, her heart sort of stopped beating, then it went pit-a-patter, for she fell strangely impressed with the thought, "Now who in the world does he remind me of—somebody I've known long ago!" But aloud she said with an adorable smile, "Good morning, what can I show you in hosiery?"

The young man was a moment answering, for he was saying to himself, "What a lovely girl! By Jove, the sort of a girl I've always been dreaming of!"

Aloud he replied, "Something in the newest shades of hosiery for an elderly lady—my grandmother. She has a birthday tomorrow," he explained with a grin.

Hilda giggled.

"You'll be safe," she said, "to take her some of these newest sun-tan shades. The older women are quite as youthful in their tastes as the flappers."

Their eyes met again and they both laughed. When he had finished his purchase, he still lingered.

"Believe I'll get some for my mother too," he said. "She's about 45 and a club woman," he added vaguely. 'Better give me something she can wear with any colored gown,—she's got every color there is."

Again they laughed joyously. And when he finished that part of his purchase, he still lingered.

"There'll be hard feelings in the family," he added, "unless I take my sister some. Fortunately I've got her size, and she hinted broadly yesterday just what she'd like.

'Say," he exclaimed, "it has just come to me that you remind me amazingly of The Princess."

Hilda stopped in the act of lifting down several boxes of hosiery. There was a startled expression on her face.

"The Princess!" she repeated—"what princess?"

"Oh," smiled the young man, "about a hundred years ago when I was a kid, I had a playmate. I used to dream she was my sweetheart, and once when she came to school and had on white shoes, and would have to walk over a muddy place in the road, I took off my rain coat and put it down for her to step across on—and—"

"Then you are Sir Walter Raleigh!" burst out Hilda, dropping one of the boxes and not even noticing that she had spilled the contents all over the floor. "I thought I knew you," and her color came and went, and the elusive dimple in her cheek appeared. "Why, Walter Rathbourne, where have you kept yourself all of these years? I'm glad to see you!"

Sir Walter Raleigh put out his hand and shook that of The Princess cordially. Hilda couldn't tell why, but a feeling of confusion seized her, and not knowing just what to say next, she remarked, "And by the way, can you tell me why you labelled me The Princess instead of Queen Elizabeth?"

Sir Walter nodded emphatically. "Sure I can," he replied. "Don't you remember, I said you were Queen Elizabeth, and you said you weren't and never would be, for she wore black velvet nightgowns, and was jealous of her cousin, Mary Queen of Scots."

Hilda laugher.

Oh, yes, it all comes back to me now," she said—"and how we nearly quarreled. Then to make up with you, I gave you a ring which I got at the five and ten, and you were to send it to me if ever you were in trouble anywhere. Have you forgotten that?"

Sir Walter shook his head.

"I've got the ring yet," he admitted. "It has diamonds in it."

Then because they were young and it was June, they both laughed softly and happily.

"Say," suggested Sir Walter, "my people have a lot more money than they had in those days!"

"And mine have lost theirs," confessed Hilda. "And Dad and Mother are both dead—"

"Will you go out to dinner with me tonight, and then for a spin in my car?" Sir Walter asked.

Hilda shook her head and her lips set firmly.

"No," she returned a bit coldly. "You don't have to renew the old acquaintance. I'm just a working girl now—although," she added kindly, "it has been good to see you."

Sir Walter leaned his two elbows on the plate glass top of the show case and rested his chin in his cupped hands.

"Princess," he scolded sternly, "you've no right to be horrid to me just because you're proud! Don't you know that it's June and perfect weather, and the stars will be abloom tonight in the meadows of heaven. Princess dear, please eat with me and ride with me. I'll bring you home safely. Didn't you promise if I needed you I was to send you the ring. I'll do better, I'll bring it myself. Surely, there isn't anyone else—for I know I've been waiting for you."

The Princess stooped and picked up the spilled hosiery.

"You haven't selected your sister's stockings yet," she said.

He looked at her searchingly. "Answer me, Princess."

"No, there isn't anyone else—and since you insist"—and she flushed again, "I'll go for the sake of auld Lang syne."

A hurt look mirrored itself on his face, and impulsively Hilda put down the box and leaned forward.

'Of course I want to go, Goosie," she confessed.

The words were out before she realized what she was saying. His face was radiant.

"Princess there'll be a new ring—in case the old one doesn't fit—and besides I never want to part with that one!"

A Wise Teacher

How can the public benefit and the truth penetrate? We can only delude and deceive ourselves by refusing to be guided by the experienced teacher, and before we can realize truths, we must see ourselves as others see us and pray for those who would do us harm. A hint to the wise is all-sufficient. Greed and avarice help mould our destiny. In defense of the public, this message will surprise many thousands of people. During the past seven years the public has been taking substitutes for Blood Cell Protein Serums. "Just as good—just the same—and cost one-half as much"—all of which is good sales talk but will not help the sick. Now for the truth—no one can give that which they have not, never had, or know anything about. We obtained this exclusive license from Dr. H. D. Reynolds, of Chicago, Ill., seven years ago, who created and discovered this wonderful serum. The public should beware of substitutes, which have no curative force—too late to think after the patient has had a stroke—there is great harm done and no good can come from wrong-doing. We don't wish to tell you what to do, what to say or what to think, but to be "forewarned is to be forearmed." No Blood Cell Protein Serum can be given outside of the Pittsburgh Research Laboratory, Exclusively Licensed.

So you who labor for the cause of humanity, follow the light of your high vision. Write your best and last prescription for a suffering world, that we may have more faith, more hope and more charity for each other.

Blood Cell Protein Serum was Doctor Reynolds' best and last prescription. No one is too poor to enjoy their benefits.

Why drug the stomach when your blood cells control High Blood Pressure and most all Chronic Diseases?

The Object of This Laboratory:
To create and maintain a welfare clinic where the suffering can obtain relief whether they have money or not. To furnish guideposts for the afflicted after a blood examination.

POLICE SCORED BY MAGISTRATE

"This is persecution by the police. They have no right to arrest merchants for selling to customers who are on the sidewalk while the merchant is inside his store."

So declared Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today when he discharged Mike Kocan, 17, of 317 Dupont street, and Louis Olmstead, of 213 Catherine street, employed by Hendel Brothers, fruit merchants, Diamond and Wood streets.

City detectives made the arrests, they testified, following complaints that the clerks were selling to customers on the sidewalks. The store is in a miniature building which stands on a 6-foot lot.

Husband Can Go, But Not With $6,500

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 14.—Mrs. P. Russell Smith, of Despard, told police her husband, a mine foreman, had eloped in the night with a neighbor, Mrs. Helen Mayles, 28. The latter's husband, Herbert, substantiated the report and police started a search for the pair.

Smith, according to his wife, took $6,500, their savings, along with him. Mrs. Mayles took $41 from her family purse, according to Mayles. Each left four children for the deserted spouses to care for.

"Husbands may come and husbands may go," Mrs. Smith told police, "but $6,500 is a lot of money."

Capital thrives under proper direction. Its accumulation and conservation are neither self-starting nor self-sustaining; it can be obtained and held only through careful, scrupulous management. Every successful person applies this management persistently.

This form of supervision requires time, skill, diligence—the continuous presence of the supervisor. Heirs, left a business, a share in the business, or other property, frequently find the work involved taxes their time and strength. They therefore wisely choose a financial manager, whose application and responsibility are established beyond question.

The Union National Bank of Pittsburgh, through its Trust Department, offers this type of management. Through successive generations this institution has capably, carefully managed capital. It meets the critical test of size, age, reputation, and record.

The advantages of appointing our Trust Department as agent or trustee are briefly set forth in a booklet, "Living Trusts and Agency Accounts." We will gladly send or give you a copy.

Notice to Samuel McKelvey and Margaret McKelvey, their legal heirs and successors, or whoever may be the owners of the ground rent hereinafter mentioned:

Take notice that on the 2nd day of August, 1929, Margaret A. Jamison, Martha A. Jamison and Inez M. Jamison and Martha A. That there is an unextinguished ground rent on a part of the same premises reserved by George Sutton in a conveyeance to Andrew McConnell, dated September 1, 1806, and recorded September 6, 1806, in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County in Deed Book Volume 13, page 501, in the sum of thirty ($30.00) dollars payable in semi-annual installments. That said ground rent was conveyed to Hugh McKelvey by Sheriff's deed dated January 16, 1826, and recorded in Appearance Docket 15, page 592, and the said Hugh McKelvey died July 13, 1833, testate, devising his property to his son, Samuel, in fee tail with a devise over to his sister, Margaret. Al Steele, who leads the Fairfax String Ensemble in the dinner concert over WJAS, has performed at many radio stations, among them WPG, WLW and WMCA.

Very interesting is an epistle received from Frances Doherr, WCAE, and her husband, Edward, who are touring radio stations in the east and central west. The letter, postmarked in Ottawa, tells of a visit at Schenectady.

"Immediately upon arriving at the Van Curler Hotel, we called WGY for an inspection tour," Mrs. Doherr writes. "Among numerous General Electric buildings we finally found the one in which the radio station is located. On the first floor of the building are located the main studio, an auxiliary studio, control room, reception room and offices. Two operators were at the control board and an operator was on duty. Although quite dark the towers of the main plant a few miles out of the city were visible, each tower having a red light on the top. There is also an auxiliary sending station of much less power, in town."

The Doherrs go on to explain the beautiful country thus: "The scenery with mountains, rivers, sunsets and odd villages, is beyond words. Of course an artist can't paint and no one can explain a sunset as one views it when traveling in the mountains and along these so-called trails. For miles and miles we traveled on a highway road, not seeing anything or anyone. Had a squirrel crossed our path we would have died from fright."

"An Actor's Romance"

Life back-stage, with all the hidden and often tragic interludes in a thespian's life which the audience seldom hears of, will be presented by the cast of the "Maybelle."

The play concerns the marriage of "Harry Davenport," a leading man, to a young woman from outside the profession, and of the subsequent attempts on his life by a jealous member of his company who had hoped some day to win his love.

Details of stage mechanics are made clear during the action of the piece; the stage is "set" before the audience, a view of the "gridiron" is presented, and the dressing rooms are visited.

The attack on the hero of the piece, made from a stage box during the performance of "Romeo and Juliet" climaxes the performance, while comedy relief by favorite members of the "Maybelle's" company insures a never lagging performance.

YOUNG ACTOR SEEKING SCREEN CAREER GETS CARPENTER JOB AT FIRST NATIONAL STUDIOS

By DOROTHY HERZOG.

(Copyright, 1929, by Premier Syndicate).

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 14.

CASTING directors get curious assignments, F'r inst., the C. D. at Famous, was requested to engage "two pretty maids and 11 beautiful girls" for a scene in "The Love Parade."

Trekked to the Edgewater Beach Club at Santa Monica 'tother day for luncheon, and who should be partaking of the menu, too, but Jack Dempsey. Jack joined us later. Said he and his wife, Estelle Taylor, were living there for the summer. That Estelle only recently had her tonsils bobbed. That he was leaving the next day for Chicago, where he has become affiliated with fisticuff interests. That he was detouring via airplane to Salt Lake City. His parents would join him there for a fishing trip ere he continued to the Loop village.

Estelle Taylor.

The Edgewater Club is really the only beach hostelry in this lap-o'-the-Pacific. It went bankrupt, some months ago, but new interests have taken charge and it is again open. Unless there is a last minute hitch, Dempsey will become affiliated with this outfit. He's something of a hotel chieftain, you know. Yeah, Jack owns a hostelry in Los Angeles. And he has swell renovations in mind for the Edgewater resort.

---

His name is Allen Howard. He's a good-looking lad. He used to be a big shot in the woodvil racket. Dancing and singing. Mostly dancing. But he hankered for the flicks. So to Hollywood he traipsed. And found the gates bolted. Allen cogitated and decided he had to crash a studio. He succeeded in getting a job as carpenter on the First National lot. And hammers right smart. Thus far, He's still carpenter, but mebbe one of these days he'll get his grease-paint break. After all, Monte Blue got his by not being proud. Um, he day-labored at D. W. Griffith's studio in the early starvation days. D. W. spotted him and gave him a chance. Now look at the Blue boy. On the other hand, D. W. isn't with First National . . .

Stowaway Prefers Bus to Blind Baggage

BRIDGEPORT, O., Aug. 14.—Trans-Atlantic airships have to contend with stowaways, and now the Red Star Bus Company, pioneer on the National road in Eastern Ohio, has the same problem.

When the Cambridge-Wheeling bus, driven by Clarence H. Bishop, of Barnesville, pulled into Hendrysburg, persons about the gas station saw someone lying among the baggage on top of the bus. A young man who said he is Isadore Lazar, Philadelphia, told the spectators he had crawled over the rear of the bus in Cambridge when it stopped at a traffic light. Lazar said he was en route from Chicago to Philadelphia and that the top of a bus is a better place to ride than the rods of a railroad car or blind baggage.

Stylist Heralds Longer Dresses

SCREENALITIES: Phyllis Haver, now Mrs. William Seaman, of New York, and her husband have returned from a honeymoon jaunt abroad . . . Zasu Pitts says she never did feel comfortable in a bathing suit. She wears an old-fashioned, but one-piece suit that reaches to her ankles in scenes for Billie Dove's "Painted Angel" talky. Between shots, however, Zasu dons an apron over the suit! . . . Howard Greer, style-ist, has returned from a two months' sojourn in Paris. Howard brings sad news. The dresses this year will be from four to five inches longer. Who'll be brave enough to be old-fashioned and 1929?. . . Football stars may lend their brawn to flicks once in a while, but they don't take over much interest in the celluloid game. 'Tother day, Director Eddie Cline was telling 'em what to do in the next "Forward Pass" "take." His voice conflicted with a drone of plurals. Whereupon he yelled: "I'm talking and nobody's paying any attention to me!" From the rear chirped a basso trying for a tenor pitch: "I'm paying attention, Eddie." Whee. . . .John Boles enjoying good luck. John grabbed off parking space on crowded Hollywood boulevard and saved himself a coast around the block . . . Lois Wilson and Lila Lee are amongst those who will be bridesmaids when Patsy Ruth Miller marries Tay Garnett the 15th of next month . . . And—that's all.

Connellsville After Suspicious Roamers

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 14.—Chief of Police George L. Grubb has instructed patrolmen to question persons loafing about the streets after midnight. If satisfactory explanation is not forthcoming the chief has directed that they be locked up. The latest robbery was Sunday night, when the home of Walter T. Smith was entered and $100 taken while Mr. and Mrs. Smith were at church.

Not Character Index

THIS idea of reading a person's character by the facial expression cannot be depended upon. It is true that strong emotion shows in the face, but the cause of the emotion as an index of character is not so revealed.

HISTORIANS say that several of Shakespeare's tragedies were not printed until the publication of the author's collected works after his death. Of Shakespeare's 337 plays 17 were printed separately in quartos.

Baumer, Kropp Wounded When Shell Hits Among Marching Soldiers

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Paul Baumer and his soldier comrades all enlisted at 18. During their training, they were abused and persecuted by a former mail-carrier, now Corp. Himmelstross. Hating him, they beat him up the last night. Later, at the front, he appears. One of the privates calls him a "dirty hound." He threatens court-martial. Light sentences are imposed when the lieutenant learns the whole story of the corporal's abuse in camp. Paul and his comrades are back in the front lines. On the way they passed piles of new coffins. Their spirits are low. After days of fighting, the trenches are wrecked. Food is scarce and the barrage is so heavy that none can be brought up. Baumer and his comrades are in hand-to-hand fighting defending their position. After a successful counter-attack, night comes and all is quiet in the trenches. Again the shelling begins; attack, counter-attack, charge, repulse. Young recruits, with little knowledge of warfare, fall the easiest victims. Paul's company has been relieved and casualties are found to be numerous. While in swimming Paul and his comrades speak to several French girls across the canal. That night they visit the girls' home. Paul is granted a furlough but is sorry when he leaves his comrades. Everything at home seems changed and he is not at ease. He hates the silly questions asked about the fighting. Paul goes to see Mrs. Kemmerich and lies to her about the way her son was killed. He has reported back to the camp where he had his first training as a soldier. Paul returns to the front and is glad to be with his old comrades again. The Kaiser reviews the troops and they are disappointed in him. Paul, out on patrol, loses his comrades during a heavy barrage. He seeks shelter in a shell-hole. Suddenly an enemy soldier jumps into the hole and Paul stabs him. The man dies and Paul is remorseful. Looking through the dead man's wallet Paul finds pictures of a woman and little girl. Paul returns safely to his own trench. Left to guard an abandoned village, his comrades find a supply of food.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

ABOUT 2 o'clock we start the meal. It lasts till 6. We drink coffee until half-past seven—officers' coffee from the supply dump—and smoke officers' cigars and cigarets—also from the supply dump. Punctually at half-past seven we begin the evening meal. About 10 o'clock we throw the bones of the sucking pigs outside the door. Then there is cognac and rum—also from the blessed supply dump—and once again long, fat cigars with belly-bands. Tjaden suggests that it lacks only one thing: Girls from an officers' brothel.

Late in the evening we hear mewing. A little grey cat sits in the entrance. We entice it in and give it something to eat. And that wakes up our own appetites once more. Still chewing, we lie down to sleep. But the night is bad. We have eaten too much fat. Fresh baby pig is very gripping.

Burning houses stand out like torches against the night. Shells lumber across and crash down. Munition columns tear along the street. On one side the supply dump has been ripped open. In spite of all the flying fragments the drivers of the munition columns pour in like a swarm of bees and pounce on the bread. We let them have their own way. If we said anything it would only mean a good hiding for us. So we go differently about it. We explain that we are the guard and so know our way about, we get hold of the tinned stuff and exchange it for things we are short of. What does it matter anyhow—in a while it will all be blown to pieces. For ourselves we take some chocolate from the depot and eat it in slabs. Kat says it is good for us.

Almost a fortnight passes thus in eating, drinking and roaming about. No one disturbs us. The town gradually vanishes under the shells and we lead a charmed life. So long as any part of the supply dump still stands we don't worry, we desire nothing better than to stay here till the end of the war.

Tjaden has become so fastidious that he only half smokes his cigars. With his nose in the air he explains to us that he was brought up that way. And Kat is most cheerful. In the morning his first call is: "Emil, bring in the caviare and coffee." We put on extraordinary airs, every man treats the other as his valet, bounces him and gives him orders. "There is something itching under my foot; Kropp, my man, catch that louse at once," says Leer, poking out his leg at him like a ballet girl, and Albert drags him up the stairs by the foot. "Tjaden"—"What?"—"Stand at ease, Tjaden; and what's more, don't say 'What,' say 'Yes, Sir'—now: Tjaden!" Tjaden retorts in the well-known phrase from Goethe's "Gotz von Berlichingen," with which he is always very free.

After eight more days we receive orders to go back. The palmy days are over. Two big motor lorries take us away. They are stacked high with planks. Nevertheless, Albert and I erect on top our four-poster bed complete with blue silk canopy, mattress and two lace coverlets. And behind it at the head is stowed a bag full of choice edibles. We often dip into it, and the tough ham sausages, the tins of liver sausages, the conserves, the boxes of cigarets rejoice our hearts. Each man has a bag to himself.

Kropp and I have rescued two big red armchairs as well. They stand inside the bed and we sprawl back in them as in a theater box. Above us swells the silken cover like a baldaquin. Each man has a long cigar in his mouth. And thus from aloft we survey the scene.

Between us stands a parrot cage that we found for the cat. She is coming with us, and lies in the cage before her saucer of meat, and purrs.

Slowly the lorries roll down the road. We sing. Behind us the shells are sending up fountains from the now utterly abandoned town.

A few days later we are sent out to evacuate a village. On the way we meet the fleein inhabitants trundling their goods and chattels along with them in wheelbarrows, perambulators, and on their backs. Their figures are bent, their faces full of grief, despair, haste, and resignation. The children hold on to their mothers' hands, and often an older girl leads the little ones who stumble onward and are for ever looking back. A few carry miserable-looking dolls. All are silent as they pass us by.

We are marching in column; the French do not fire on a town in which there are still inhabitants. But a few minutes later the air screams, the earth heaves, cries ring out; a shell has landed among the rear squad. We scatter and fling ourselves down on the ground, but at that moment I feel the instinctive alertness leave me which hitherto has always made me do unconsciously the right thing under fire; the thought leaps up with a terrible, throttling fear: "You are lost"—and the next moment a blow sweeps like a whip over my left leg. I hear Albert cry out; he is beside me.

"Quick, up, Albert!" I yell for we are lying unsheltered in the open field.

He staggers up and runs. I keep beside him. We have to get over a hedge; it is higher than we are. Kropp seizes a branch, I heave him up by the leg, he cries out, I give him a swing and he flies over. With one leap I follow him and fall into a ditch that lies behind the hedge.

Our faces are smothered with duck-weed and mud, but the cover is good. So we wade in up to our necks. Whenever a shell whistles we duck our heads under the water. After we have done this a dozen times, I am exhausted.

"Let's get away, or I'll fall in and drown," groans Albert.

"Where has it got you?" I ask him.

"In the knee, I think."

"Can you run?"

"I think—"

"Then out!"

We make for the ditch beside the road, and stooping, run along it. The shelling follows us. The road leads toward the munition dump. If that goes up there won't be a man of us with his head left on his shoulders. So we change our plan and run diagonally across country.

Albert begins to drag. "You go, I'll come on after," he says, and throws himself down.

I seize him by the arm and shake him, "Up, Albert, if once you lie down you'll never get any farther. Quick, I'll hold you up."

At last we reach a small dugout. Kropp pitches in and I bandage him up. The shot is just a little above his knee. Then I take a look at myself. My trousers are bloody and my arm, too. Albert binds up my wounds with his field dressing. Already he is no longer able to move his leg, and we both wonder how we managed to get this far. Fear alone made it possible; we would have run even if our feet had been shot off—we would have run on the stumps.

I can still crawl a little. I call out to a passing ambulance wagon which picks us up. It is full of wounded There is an army medical lance corporal with it, who sticks an anti-tetanus needle into our chests.

At the dressing station we arrange matters so that we lie side by side. They give us a thin soup which we spoon down greedily and scornfully, because we are accustomed to better times, but are hungry all the same.

"Now for home, Albert," I say.

"Let's hope so," he replies, "I only wish I knew what I've got."

The pain increases. The bandages burn like fire. We drink and drink, one glass of water after another.

"How far above the knee am I hit?" asks Kropp.

"At least four inches, Albert," I answer. Actually it is perhaps one.

"I've made up my mind," he says after a while, "if they take off my leg, I'll put an end to it. I won't go through life as a cripple."

So we lie there with our thoughts and wait.

In the evening we are hauled on to the chopping block. I am frightened and think quickly what I ought to do; for everyone knows that the surgeons in the dressing stations amputate on the slightest provocation. Under the great pressure of business that is much simpler than complicated patching. I think of Kemmerich. Whatever happens I will not let them chloroform me, even if I have to crack a couple of their skulls.

It is all right. The surgeon pokes around in the wound and a blackness comes before my eyes. "Don't carry on so," he says gruffly, and hacks away. The instruments gleam in the bright light like malevolent animals. The pain is insufferable. Two orderlies hold my arms fast, but I break loose with one of them and try to crash into the surgeon's spectacles just as he notices and springs back. "Chloroform the scoundrel," he roars madly.

Then I become quiet. "Pardon me, Herr doctor, I will keep still, but do not chloroform me."

"Well now," he cackles and takes up his instrument again. He is a fair fellow, not more than 30 years old, with scars and disgusting gold spectacles. Now I see that he is tormenting me, he is merely raking about in the wound and looking up surreptitiously at me over his glasses. My hands squeeze around the grips, I'll kick the bucket before he will get a squeak out of me.

He has fished out a piece of shell and tosses it to me. Apparently he is pleased at my self-control, for he seems to be more considerate of me now and says: "Tomorrow you'll be off home." Then I am put in plaster. When I am back again with Kropp I tell him that apparently a hospital train comes in tomorrow morning.

"We must work the army medical sergeant-major so that we can keep together, Albert."

I manage to slip the sergeant-major two of my cigars with belly-bands, and then tip the word to him. He smells the cigars and says: "Have you got any more of them?"

"Another good handful," I say, "and my comrade," I point to Kropp, "he has some as well. We might possibly be glad to hand them to you out of the window of the hospital train in the morning."

He understands, of course, smells them once again and says: "Done."

We cannot get a minute's sleep all night. Seven fellows die in our ward. One of them sings hymns in a high cracked tenor before he begins to gurgle. Another has crept out of his bed to the window. He lies in front of it as though he wants to look out for the last time.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Becoming cynical at her mother's wish to have her marry for wealth and social position, Nancy Hollenbeck, young and beautiful, accepts the ardent attentions of Jack Beamer, supposedly an Englishman of noble birth, who is married to a wealthy invalid. On a mountain trip Nancy, after a brief courtship, makes a hasty marriage with a handsome ranger, Roger Decatur. Sickening of the loneliness, with Roger away, she returns home to resume her old life, still keeping her marriage a secret. When Roger, deeply in love with Nancy, comes to take her back, she tells him unless he makes his home in the city she will divorce him, although she realizes her own love for him. After Roger leaves, Nancy continues her clandestine affair with Beamer, whose wife, aware of his philandering, refuses to free him. Louise, Nancy's sister, always second with men, now has a rich, though elderly, suitor. Beamer takes Nancy out to his stock farm on a jaunt. Mrs. Beamer unexpectedly arrives and Nancy is bundled into the kitchen. Beamer decides to placate his wife to protect his own financial welfare. Nancy, though humiliated, forgives all when he phones. At home Nancy assails her mother for catering to Lachman, Louise's rich admirer. When Louise, who is in love with Mat Tully, forgets her family dinner for Lachman, disaster impends. When her family is all together, Louise suddenly announces she is going to get married. At first her mother forbids her to do so, but later relents. Louise and Mat are married and leave on honeymoon. Jack tells Nancy he intends to visit his wife in the High Sierras. Meanwhile, Nancy hears he has been formerly a groom at a race stable in England.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLVI.

COMING home in the taxi—Jack still insisted that she charge all the taxis to him—Nancy leaned back and let her hands lay limp in her lap. Not that she believed May Belle's malicious gossip . . . it was perfectly absurd, of course. Still, little pictures of a corpulent Jack Senior in a cook's cap and spotted apron fluttered in and out of her troubled mind, and of course it wasn't hard to think of any English gentleman as a groom, they all knew so much about horses, and had such red complexions. . . . Why did May Belle repeat it? Did she think it would matter particularly to her? Had she heard of their meetings? . . . But she couldn't have . . . they had been so careful. . . .

"I can't say that marriage has improved May Belle!" she thought angrily, glaring at the nice new gloves her hot hands had ruined. "Keeping up with the Neils has been too much for her, that's what. It has gone to her head. And she hasn't nearly so much to crow over as Lou, marrying a cool two million . . . that I could have had, if I hadn't listened to mamma . . . not that I care. I'm glad old Lou is going to have everything, only I with . . . oh Jack, Jack, don't fail me! Don't make up with Anita. . . . Oh, I'm so unhappy . . . so alone . . . Oh, Jack, come back to me, for you're all I've got left!"

She was crying in earnest, when the taxi stopped at the door.

Anita Beamer was crying too. She wished she had not come. She felt well—amazingly well. Better than she had felt for years. And Jack was kind enough, almost too kind. "Sure you feel all right, dear?" he asked her constantly. "My wife isn't very well, I'm worried about her," he told everyone they met. So that people looked at her curiously, wondering why an old, sick woman had come on such a trip.

An old, sick woman . . . that was the way she looked when she held the mirror close to the window and the bright, clear light betrayed every wrinkle, every blemish, every fold of puffy, sagging skin. The bright, sport clothes she had brought were impossible. The salesgirl must have been secretly laughing at her when she sold them . . . but they did look different in the store, with the light soft and her makeup just right . . . You couldn't do anything with makeup here, the light was too bright, and without a maid . . .

Anita sighed, and wiped off the rouge she had tried, experimentally. Little jars and boxes of cream and powder littered the dresser, exquisite silken things were flung carelessly over chairs. It was past dinner time, and Jack would be waiting irritably, trying to control his impatience, trying to be nice to her . . . perhaps secretly ashamed . . . "I look like his mother, not his wife!" she cried miserably, staring at her ravaged face, her poor, broken, bleached hair. The slow tears streaked the powder, undid her patient work. She flung herself on the narrow bed, and wept.

"Maybe it was a mistake after all," she told him, late that night. "Wouldn't you rather go somewhere where there's a golf course, dear? Del Monte, or Coronado?"

He stared at her, hands thrust deep into the pockets of his old Norfolk jacket—(nobody dressed for dinner here in the mountains)—powerful legs in whipcord breeches and high laced boots, wide apart. "So that's it," he said at last. "Want to get back to your specialist and the smelling salts, eh? Well, I'm not surprised. I knew it. I knew perfectly well that you'd weaken once you got here. It was your idea, wasn't it? Not mine!"

"But I was only thinking of you, dear!"

"Of me!" he snorted. "Of me! That is good!"

"Yes, you aren't yourself, dear. You're so nervous—"

"I? Nervous! My God!"

"I mean, you seem to be worrying so over me. I know you think I'm not well enough to take the trips, but I really feel fine. Truly I do. So I just thought, if you had a golf course, and I could run into a few people I knew—" She stopped when she saw his face, heard his mumbled oath.

"Well, then let's take a trip tomorrow!" she cried brightly. "We'll start early, and take horses and our lunch . . . won't that be fun . . . and go off to that new camp, and stay over night—"

He interrupted viciously. "Oh, why do you talk like that? You know you won't go! Afraid of a horse, afraid of a hill, afraid of your own shadow — God! I'll go alone!"

"Have I wavered once since I've been here? Have I even asked for a helping hand?"

"Oh, you didn't say anything—but I'm expecting you to flop on me any minute!"

Which was not strictly true. Anita's strange vitality had been as unexpected as it was baffling. He had walked her over rocky trails that even tired him. He had ridden with her on narrow ledges, overlooking terrifying pinnacles of slippery rock. And she had followed close at his heels, panting, obstinate. Determined not to give in. Sometimes he really doubted that her heart was bad. He yanked at the strap of his wrist watch, scowling at it, pretending to punch a new hole. For two pins he'd give up. Leave her. Let her keep her money. Light out somewhere with Nancy, go to work. . .

Down came her fist on the dresser, making the enamel topped bottles jump. "Jack Beamer, you aren't being fair to me! I—I think you're awfully unkind. I'm going tomorrow, whether you want me or not. I'll show you. I'll go anywhere you'll go. I'll go if it kills me!"

"Is that any way to talk?" he asked huskily, eyes still on the troublesome strap.

"No, but you goad me—you make me say things I don't mean. . . . Oh Jack, dear can't you see I love you? That I'm just trying to win you again—to keep you from that other girl . . . oh my dear, my dear—" Sobs choked her. Her clinging arms went around his rigid shoulders. She cried loudly, uncontrollably, like a lost child.

"There, there." He soothed her woodenly. When he could escape from her moist embrace he went to the desk in the office, and ordered horses and lunch for the following day.

The pretty college girl who was working there for the summer, tried in vain to make him talk. He had nothing to say, and he looked almost as old and haggard as his wife. "I certainly don't see anything fascinating about him!" she told her chum when they went to bed. "My word, he must be a hundred and ten!"

Grandma Hollenbeck sat in the kitchen, silver rimmed glasses on her nose, a black tin box open on the table before her. She read one yellowed paper after another, refolded it, put it away.

Kitty was out, calling on Aunt Ellie Watson as usual. Grandma was glad of that. A weight seemed to be lifted off her chest when her daughter-in-law was away. There had been so many scenes, so much unhappiness, she envied folks who could buy their way into nice, sunny old people's homes . . . not that she begrudged Nancy the money she had given her to buy her freedom . . . poor child.

Grandma wiped her spectacles. So much trouble in the world. Thank goodness that Louise was happy, and surely life would give Nancy another chance, Nancy, who was so young, so pretty, so unhappy now.

If only she knew more about business! It was so confusing, with all those meaningless words, and first parties, and second parties, and wherebys and wherewiths, and the big red seals.

She had not been sleeping very well. The strange phrases swam under her eyes, her eyes closed, her head noded. She slept, with the yellowed papers scattered about.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

Our Smashed Illusions

"CAPTAIN KIDD was NOT a pirate," says Ripley, author of "Believe It Or Not."

This is the worst shock in my life. But, even Mr. Ripley is two years behind the scenario writer, who made Don Juan a faithful lover, perfectly devoted to one woman.

* * *

You can tell me ANYTHING, after that! That Solomon was a one-woman man; that Catherine di Medici was a Sunday school teacher; that Bluebeard shaved twice a day; or that Cleopatra was a man-hater.

HELEN ROWLAND

Most of the great heroes, villains and lovers of history seem to have been misunderstood, anyway.

Take Henry VIII, for instance. He may have been merely an "idealist," constantly searching for the right soul-mate and the perfest lover. Who knows?

And there was Bluebeard, who may have been only a long suffering, misunderstood husband. One who was determined to have a WHOLE closet to himself, where he could find his Sunday shoes without having to wade through an ocean of georgette crepe, and be sure that his fishing clothes were safe.

* * *

Abelard may not have been the constant lover he has been pictured, if he and Eloise had not been separated by the distance that lends enchantment, and prevents a woman from getting on your nerves. The love that has to be stretched over long distance never sags in the middle.

* * *

Lochinvar got to the wedding on TIME; but it was not his OWN wedding. If it had been, he might still be telephoning from some road-house that he was tied up with motor trouble.

George Washington told the TRUTH—but he didn't tell it to a WOMAN. If he had, there would have been some reason for immortalizing the cherry tree incident.

* * *

No doubt Omar Khayyam clung faithfully to the loaf of bread and the jug of wine, of which he sings so tenderly. But, if we could know the whole story we should probably discover that he changed the "THOU" occasionally.

Samson has our sympathy. But any woman who has had to tell her husband half a dozen times to get a hair-cut, will grant that Delilah had her provocation. Besides, he kept telling her half-truths—and to know only half the truth maddens any woman.

* * *

As for Don Juan, I simply CANNOT believe that he was ever devoted to any one woman. I have not the scenario-writer's imagination.

* * *

But, he may have been merely an experimenter, with the "collector's complex." Some men collect ivories, some collect pictures, some collect books—and some collect hearts and women, after-dinner stories and alibis.

If Captain Kidd was not a pirate and Don Juan WAS a marrying man, perhaps Napoleon was a pacifist and Nero was Little Lord Fauntleroy.

It's a shock a minute, these days!

First Catch of the Season -:- By Madge Geyer

"MY vacation is going to be a REAL rest! No men, no dancing, no late hours! I'm going to live the life of a hermit so that I'll be all rested for the Winter season!"

Haven't you heard a lot of girls say that when they start out? I have, and they go away to the mountains or the country and for the first few days adhere strictly to the program they have laid down for themselves. And then ——— they forget all about it! Lonesomeness overcomes them and they wander away, perhaps for an idle hour of fishing and when they come back what has happened? They've landed the first catch of the season—and he's dangling on her glances and every word as though he were a poor little fish that had been tempted by the bait.

Oh well! Resolutions are but made to be broken, so what are you to do? At any rate, the first catch is likely to prove the best—and Dan's always on the alert for just such happenings!

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Bereavement

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

This is a strange argument to settle, but I know you can and will. Recently there was a bereavement in the family and everybody sent floral pieces. In due time one of the family wondered why no acknowledgment was received, as this particular piece of flowers was wired from a distant city. The husband was asked in regard to the matter and he replied that it was not necessary to send cards or acknowledgments to the family. This is not a matter as to whether he should or should not have done so, but to enlighten the rest of us as to what is correct.

WONDERING.

FOR every letter of sympathy and for all flowers that are sent in the time of bereavement, a note of acknowledgment and appreciation should be written. Sometimes, if the death occurs in a family of great prominence, it is permissible to send engraved cards of acknowledgment. But this is not nearly such good form as the writing of a note of thanks. This is personal, as it should be, since the gesture of sympathy was personal also.

And this note of acknowledgment should be made whether the letter of sympathy or the flowers are sent by the friends of the family or relatives of the family. I never can understand the point of view of people who maintain that members of the family should not be thanked. As a matter of fact—why not? Manners, like charity, should begin at home!

The Bride's Shower

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am planning to have a shower for a girl friend, and I should like to get one question settled for once and all. Is it proper for the intended bridegroom to be present at a shower for the intended bride? L. N.

USUALLY a shower for a bride-to-be is of such a "feminine" nature that only the bride's women friends are invited. Indeed, it is a party for the "girl friends." However, sometimes the shower is given in the form of a tea, and, after the tea party the gentlemen are invited to come in. It really means two separate parties.

Not Yet Engaged

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Is it proper to accompany a young man, who has been visiting you, to the railway station when he leaves?

2. We are not engaged, but he has asked me to keep "steady company" with him and to give up all my other young men friends. He wants to pay my train fare to the city in which he lives, so I can visit him occasionally. Is it proper for me to accept the money? I have relatives living in the same city that he lives in with whom I spend part of my time.

3. He has asked me to accompany him this summer to his home in another state. Since we are not engaged would it be all right to go? MISS A. H.

YES, if you wish to.

2. No, it is not proper for you to accept this money.

3. It would be quite all right for you to go if the invitation comes from his mother or whoever is the hostess of his home. But it would be the worst possible manners for you to accept his invitation.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Footprints in Sand Tell Story of Georges' Disappearance.

AS Mary's frantic cry rang out, I saw that her terror was justified. The car upon which her shaking hands were laid was indeed empty. Whatever fate had befallen Prince Georges, whether he was alive or dead—the answers to these imperative questions were somewhere beyond the black curtain of mystery which had dropped between us and the hapless young man.

Hurrying after her from Noel's car, I had reached her side just as she made the discovery that Prince Georges was missing, and I held her tightly as her knees crumpled under her in the first shock of the discovery. But only for a second or two did her dauntless spirit yield to the exhaustion due to her grueling race for aid. Then she straightened herself in my arms, and spoke crisply.

"I'm all right. Come on! We've got to find him. Oh! why did I leave him?"

Her voice rose shrilly in the self-accusation which, when I had seen the empty car, I had known would be hers. But my heart was filled with a deep thankfulness that she had to run to the nearest habitation for aid when she found herself unable to revive Prince Georges. Whatever had happened to him could not have been averted by Mary's slender strength, but I knew that she gallantly would have risked death or maiming in his aid.

"You did the only possible thing, dearest," I assured her. "You were sure that the man who shot him had gone with his companion, and what else could you have done?"

"That's what I thought," Mary returned dolefully, "but they must have come back again after I heard them running away through the underbrush. But where can they have taken him?"

Her eyes were traveling the space lighted by our lamps and that of the wrecked car as though she could wrest the answer to her frantic query from that tiny illuminated space. For a second no one answered her. I think the others shared my feeling of helplessness. Noel's face, clearly outlined by the lamps, was white and set, and I knew that something more than chivalrous concern for his rival's fate was gripping him. To his keyed-up imagination, Mary's grief was that of a girl for a lost lover, and I knew that it would be difficult to convince him of the truth that her remorse and wild anxiety would have been as great if Jerry Ticer—to name the humblest of her masculine admirers—had been in the car with her.

But I knew that we must make some sort of effort to find out what had become of the young prince, and with a remembrance of Lillian's training when I was her humble assistant in the wartime secret service, I spoke to Noel.

"Have you a flashlight?"

"Yes, a large one," and running to his car he delved into a pocket and sped back to me, flashlight in hand.

"Let us look to see if there is any trace of the way the prince left the car," I said, and we carefully examined the car and the ground around it.

"Here are footprints!" Noel exclaimed. "Mary's—see these small ones, and there are these others—two men—shouldn't you say?"

"Yes, a large one," and running was sandy and the footprints were easy to read. At the side of the wrecked car nearest the wheel the ground was so trampled that it was impossible to distinguish the footprints. Here was where Mary had stood in her futile attempt to get the prince's unconscious figure out of the car, and it was easy to deduce that the two men had succeeded in lifting him clear and carrying him bodily away, for there were no indications that his body had touched the ground.

"Look, Auntie Madge!" Mary said excitedly. "Here's where I got out of the car on the side opposite Georges and ran around to him. And then over here's where I ran into the road. There's only a single line of mine going one way, but these other two—you can see where they came up to the car and went back again."

I nodded as I studied them, thankful that when Noel had drawn up his car behind the other, we had rushed up to it from the rear and at the left so that we had not confused these other footprints, which had left a clear trail for any observant person. The footprints coming toward the car were irregularly spaced, with the heel prints less defined than the soles as would be the case if men were running lightly. But those returning toward the road were evenly parallel and showed that every part of each foot had been deeply pressed into the sand. It was plain that two men had run lightly toward the car, and had carried a heavy burden away from it. I followed those footprints to the road, which Noel was examining closely. As I came up to him he pointed to the track of a tire.

"I think here's the trail of the car which took him away," he said.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Right Living the Greatest Beautifier

IT WAS stated at a convention a while ago that considerably more than $2,000,000,000 is spent annually for powder, cold cream, perfumes, lipsticks and other aids to beauty and personal attraction. If it is true, it represents a sum of money equal to that spent for automobiles. It is more than a quarter of the entire proceeds from the farms of America. It would pay the national debt in a few years.

DR. COPELAND

Eighteen million boxes of rouge and $7,000,000 worth of hair dye were purchased by our wives and sweethearts. All this material was used to camouflage youth and health.

It is a perfectly laudable ambition for a woman to look her best. She isn't to be blamed for this. On the contrary, she is to be commended for her decent sense of self-respect.

I have no objection to cosmetics as such. Most of them are perfectly harmless things. Of course, there are certain hair dyes which are not safe to use. But most creams, powders and rouges are compounded of simple and harmless ingredients.

The objection I have to cosmetics is that they are too commonly applied as a substitute for the color and clearness of the skin that health guarantees. Too often they are used to cover up defects which the regular use of soap and water would remove.

Every girl wants red lips, pink cheeks, good teeth, firm muscles, sparkling eyes, hair of lustre, and a skin which is sweet to smell and pleasant to touch. She wants them as a girl and as she grows older, she never gets over wanting them. When she get past middle life she weeps if she does not retain them.

The chemists and beauty experts have done wonders. They have placed at the disposal of the fair sex boxes and tubes, jars and pencils, all the paraphernalia to imitate youth and vigor. So much for that!

Simple and well-chosen food, plenty of water to drink and for bathing, sunlight and fresh air, exercise and regular habits—these are the things which will cut down the cosmetic bill. There is no color like the color of red blood showing through the transparent skin of perfect health. This color comes from no pot or tube. It is the result of the chemistry of Nature, more perfect than the product of any human chemist, no matter how clever he may be.

But if I were a girl and didn't have what Nature is willing to give, I should contribute my share to the two billions for cosmetics. And the ladies—bless their dear hearts—they will buy them anyhow.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, August 15

A DAY of obstruction and hostility in many directions is presaged from the important aspects of malefic planets. With determination, persevenance and a firm grip on the tongue and temper, an augury for successful launching of new projects may operate. But calm manipulation and thwarting of aggravating conditions must be the force to turn things into fair channels. Be on guard against sensational or surprising denouements in all relations.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year calling for all their resources, self-control and good management, if they would push through to the desired goal and projected new undertakings. Shun quarrels, haste and spectacular developments, both business and private life.

A child born on this day may have many peculiar traits making for success, possibly by stratagem or intrigue, but it should be trained in self-control and calmness under aggravation and trial.

"IN EIGHT WEEKS I FOUND HEALTH IN NEW KONJOLA"

Carnegie Lady Lost Weight, Could Not Sleep—Then Freed of Kidney Trouble and Other Ills.

All who suffer from the ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and from rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness, are urged to call on the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, and hear how Konjola sends its 32 ingredients, 22 of them the juices of roots and herbs, to the very source, the fount of the disease and cleanses and invigorates, paving the way for the return of new, glorious and lasting health. Is it not logical to believe that what Konjola has done for countless thousands of men and women it will do for you—for everyone? Hear the wonderful story of this wonderful medicine from the Konjola Man. He will tell you only the true, verified facts about Konjola. He does not have to make promises nor claims, for Konjola stands on a bed-rock foundation of triumphs and achievements. Hear of case after case like that of Mrs. Beatrice Walton, Paul Street and Glen Avenue, Carnegie, near Pittsburgh, who said to the Konjola Man a few days ago:

MRS. BEATRICE WALTON

"In eight weeks I found health in new Konjola. That is why I am so enthusiastic about this medicine. I hope that others will profit from the lesson my experience teaches.

"My health was in a pitiful condition. My system was rundown and I felt bad all the time. Lack of appetite made me weak and underweight. Loss of sleep made me tired and worn-out all the time. The weakness and disordered condition of my kidneys brought on severe pains across the small of my back. I tried medicines without end, even taking special treatments at a hospital, but to no avail. Daily I got worse and day and night I suffered. To say that I was discouraged is putting it mildly. I thought I would never see another well day.

"When hope was at the lowest ebb I heard about Konjola and the wonderful accomplishments of this medicine. Could it do anything for me? There was but one way to find out and so I secured several bottles. Now I am glad to indorse this medicine so that the world can understand why it is really the master medicine. In eight weeks Konjola made me well and happy again. In a month I gained four pounds. My appetite was improved, my system was cleansed, my kidneys were strengthened and all pains were swept away. I have greater strength and energy and actually feel like a different person. That is why I am enthusiastic about Konjola."

So it goes—the same old story of success wherever this medicine is known. It is said that no sufferer can afford not to give Konjola a trial. All this medicine asks is the chance to make you well.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's) Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine.

There is also a Konjola Man at Dow's Drug Store, Diamond and Smithfield — also Dow's Drug Store, 5939 Penn Avenue, East Liberty.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

PITTSBURGH talent is supplying the entertainment in the most colorful place in Atlantic City, the popular retreat for tired stenographers and clerks of the Pittsburgh district. It is in a place technically known as a honky-tonk where the waiters warble as they serve you, and where a piano player massages the ivories with fingers of genius.

Tommy Dixon at the piano can play the popular airs like the man who wrote the book. He can improvise and interpolate in a fashion that causes the listeners to wonder that in all his years of piano playing and orchestra leading Tommy has not composed a melody capable of rolling the customers into the aisle or causing every boy and girl to whistle or sing the song into an early grave.

Mr. Dixon is the sole musician in the place, boasting that his is a three-piece orchestra, coat, vest and pants.

Nat Rodgers, from time to time, adds a banjo obligato, but Nat usually is kept so busy repeating request vocal numbers, that his banjo is harboring moth balls. George Eckert, a Mt. Oliver boy, alternates with Nat in singing the popular ballads of the day.

Customers become so enthused over the stirring songs of home and mother, the little home in Dixie and the melodies about the moon that they flip quarters and half-dollars and small greenbacks onto the floor while the singers are at their work. Sometimes the noise of a silver dollar rapping the floor just as Nat or George are reaching for a high note tend for disharmony, but Nat and George are not temperamental artists and they put up with the racket. At the end of their songs, George and Nat being tidy fellows and disliking to see the floor cluttered up with debris of any kind busy themselves picking up the money. I noted that Mr. Dixon plays by ear so well and has the touch system down so fine that when Nat and George are picking the money off the floor Tommy never has to look at the piano keys while he plays his numbers. Nat and George when they are picking up the money look and wonder how it happens that Tommy never has to turn the pages of his music sheet. They are a happy Pittsburgh threesome and furnish some of the very best entertainment in Atlantic City.

A honky-tonk, of course, is an old institution. It was in a honky-tonk somewhat inelegantly nicknamed Nigger Mike's in New York where a young singing waiter learned the harmonies that were later to turn him into a millionaire composer. His name happened to be Irving Berlin.

At the present time Sophie Tucker, who can still put a tear into a popular song, is starring in a movie theme labeled "Honky-Tonk," so that there is still romance attached to the institution which was the forerunner of the cabaret, later christened night club.

BETWEEN numbers, by the way, Tommy Dixon will come to your table, and in a lingo that comes from a life of night time piano playing, punctuated by short junkets in the tank towns as a member of "The Three Dreamers," a harmonious trio of boys in songs and merry quips, will give you the low-down on this and that in the merry whirl known facetiously as "the rackets." Tommoy gets out his cigaret paper, dumps just the right amount of loose tobacco into it, and with one or two twirls, is ready for the match. Tommy is of the old school and I'm willing to lay 10 against 1 that he will always wear garters, will never go without a hat.

One of the dancers on the program was a cute little colored boy of not more than six, who could shake his dogs like a premature Bill Robinson. The customers were so taken by the little fellow that they tossed many a quarter at his jigging feet and while it would be nice to say that every morning the little fellow either sent the money home to his mammy down South or put it in a bank for an education later on the unhappy truth is that the little fellow galloping into the ripe old age of six is a veritable fiend at a game known as craps.

This was a hammering scene at Diamond and Ross, where workmen knocked certain boards from the high fence and erected them backwards. You'll notice in this picture one of many political signs that were on the fence. They were securely—very securely—pasted.

THIEVES GET JEWELRY, CASH

Engagement Ring, Watch And $165 Among Loot; Doors Opened With Chisel

An engagement ring, watch and $165 cash were obtained by robbers who last night forced open the safe of the Pittsburgh Auburn Company, 5740 Baum Boulevard.

The robbery was discovered by William Tanner, porter, when he opened the place this morning. The combination knob had been hammered off the safe and a chisel used to pry open the doors. From the cash box the money and jewelry were obtained.

The jewelry was the property of Mr. and Mrs. J. Jowsack, who, before a tour, had placed it in the box for safe keeping.

J. A. O'Malley, manager, reported to police that a rear door was found open.

MISSION FILES CONTRACT SUIT

The Providence Mission and Rescue Home, 24 Sycamore street, Mt. Washington, has filed suit for $20,600 in Common Pleas Court against the Thomas Cronin Company, contractors, and the receivers and bondsmen of the company, charging that they have failed to carry out a contract to construct a roadway across the Mission property.

Defendants named in the suit include George Vang and George Lanz, receivers of the Cronin Company and the Southern Surety Company. It is charged that the Mission contracted with the Vang Construction Company on September 2, 1925, for a roadway across their property, to cost $20,600.

On July 1, 1926, it is averred Vang assigned the contract to the Cronin Company and the bond was given by the surety company. It was agreed in the contract, it is charged, that the Cronin Company, which had the contract for building the Mt. Washington roadway, was to be allowed to use the Mission's property while building the roadway. Since its completion, it is charged the company had refused to build the Mission's road.

The chairmanship of the committee has fallen to the lot of Harry J. Hall, prominent in Pittsburgh veterans' activities. Backed by his experience with eight annual veterans' reunions, he is expected to aid materially in the organization of this picnic. Many thousand veterans are expected to be present.

Other members of the general committee as announced by Bingham are: Col. Samuel Evans, chairman of the Union Veterans' Legion; R. M. Spolen, chairman of the Grand Army of the Republic; Thomas A. Coleman, chairman of the United Spanish War veterans; Charles G. Lane, past chairman of the American Legion; P. D. Seybold, chairman of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Thomas Duerr, president of the Disabled American Veterans.

MUST ANSWER IN SHOOTING

Walter Brown, Negro, of Brownsville avenue, was held for court on charges of carrying concealed weapons, felonious shooting and assault and battery by Magistrate John J. Sweeney in South Side Police Court yesterday.

It was testified by police that on July 27, he shot Fellman Brown, Negro, in front of his home, 92 Brownsville avenue, during an argument. Brown, suffering a bullet wound in his jaw, was released from the South Side Hospital shortly before the hearing.

Charles Pittman, Negro, also a neighbor, arrested with Brown, was discharged by the magistrate.

COUNTY BONDS' SALE VOTED

County Commissioners today acted on bond issues and county indebtedness involving a total of $6,700,000, as follows:

First, authorized sale of $4,200,000 in bonds from 1928 Peoples' bond issue for work under construction.

Second, authorized sale of $1,000,000 Commissioners' bonds for work under construction.

Third, voted to increase indebtedness $1,500,000 for Lincoln Highway share.

The peoples' bond issue action provides funds for contracts now under construction. They are: Roads, $800,000; McKees Rocks Bridge, $1,000,000; Ohio River boulevard, $700,000; County airport, $500,000; Moss Side boulevard, $300,000; Allegheny River boulevard, $600,000; County parks, $500,000.

The sale of these bonds will clean up the amounts provided for the county parks and the airport.

In increasing the amount of commissioners' bonds, the $1,000,000 was divided into two items. Roads under construction will receive $575,000 while $425,000 was provided for the removal of the morgue.

The county indebtedness increase of $1,500,000 authorized for one-half share in the $3,000,000 Lincoln highway improvement program does not provide for the sale of bonds at this time. The action merely authorizes the increased indebtedness to assure work on the project.

The board of directors of the Sentinel Club, at 1601 Center avenue, last night voted to present the name of Samuel Rabenoff, of 169 Fullerton street, to the membership as the club's candidate for alderman against Alderman John J. Verona in the Third Ward. Rabenoff is a tipstaff in the County Court.

How Long Will It Take Zep to Circle World?

With the Graf Zeppelin at Friedrichshafen, ready to start on the second leg of her flight around the world, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph is starting a contest to compute in advance the time required for the dirigible to complete the trip.

Can you figure the length of time it will require for the Zeppelin to circle the globe. When will the ship reach Tokio? Los Angeles? Lakehurst?

For best answers The Sun-Telegraph offers $400 divided into 139 cash prizes to be awarded as follows:

For the nearest correct answer as to the number of hours and minutes the Zeppelin will require to fly around the earth $100 in cash will be awarded. Second prize will be $25, third $15 fourth $10, fifth $5 and fifty prizes of $1 each.

The actual flying time only is to be computed from the hour the Zeppelin left Lakehurst until it returns to the same point, allowing for stops along the route.

ADDITIONAL AWARDS

In addition to the grand prizes, cash awards will be made to contestants who compute the time necessary for the Zeppelin to reach the principal stopping points along the route. For the best answers as to the time required to reach Tokio, Japan, after leaving Friedrichsafen, Germany, the prizes will be:

First prize $25, second $10, third $5, and twenty-five prizes of $1 each.

To the contestants who give the nearest correct time for the Zeppelin to travel from Tokio, Japan, to Los Angeles, Cal., cash prizes will be awarded as follows:

First prize $25, second $10, third $5, and 25 prizes of $1 each.

For the nearest correct answers as to the time it takes the Zeppelin to fly from Los Angeles to Lakehurst cash prizes will be awarded as follows:

First prize $25, second $10, third $5 and 25 prizes of $1 each.

Entries in the Friedrichshafen-to-Tokio contest should reach the Zeppelin Editor of the Sun-Telegraph not later than midnight next Friday. Time limits for the other four answers will be announced later.

Everybody is eligible in the Hearst Zeppelin Flight Around the World Contest!

You may participate in one or more of the contests. In other words, you can win one of the grand prizes as well as a prize in the smaller contests.

Each answer or set of answers should be accompanied by a slogan of not more than six words graphically describing the flight. Here's a sample slogan "Linking the Earth by Air."

TIME OF ARRIVAL

The time of arrival of the Zeppelin at the various points, as given in dispatches received by The Sun-Telegraph, will be used as authority in selecting prize-winners.

You need not be a reader of The Sun-Telegraph to take part. The coupon printed below is for your convenience, but you may write your answers on a plain piece of paper if you wish.

In the event of a tie the full amount of the prize tied for will be awarded to each tying contestant.

The prizes will be awarded after the around-the-world trip is accomplished.

Should the Zeppelin fail to reach any of the pointts of destination and the flight be abandoned, the contest will be considered withdrawn.

The judges' decision will be final. No entries will be returned.

DOUBT IDENTITY OF CAR VICTIM

Morgue attaches who believed they had cleared up the identity of a man killed by a street car at Third avenue and Grant street July 31, today were doubtful as to whether the identification would hold. Mrs. Mary Bitner, of Meadville, and her brother, P. J. Reany, of 146 Ulysses street, who several days ago said the dead man was their brother, Barney, today were ready to withdraw their identification.

Mrs. Bitner and Reany said their brother disappeared from his home here several days before the accident. They say he has white hair, but the corp at the morgue has dark brown hair. The brother and sister also reported the missing man had a scar on the top of his head. The body has a scar on the scalp. Friends of the missing man said that the hair has been dyed.

Odors Laid to Garbage, Not Mortuary

Following much testimony to the effect that an objectionable odor arose from a garbage burner in their own home, rather than from an undertaking establishment next door, Judge James R. Macfarlane in Common Pleas Court refused to grant a preliminary injunction asked for by Thomas E. McCann and family, 4821 Friendship avenue against John J. McCabe, undertaker, 4825 Friendship avenue.

Several neighbors testified against the McCann garbage burner. McCann charged that the building code did not permit of an undertaking establishment in the neighborhood and said a permit had been refused.

McCabe avered that he did have a permit allowing him to conduct funerals from the premises and said that no embalming was done in the building.

Boy Stranded Here Given Fare East By Firemen

Pittsburgh firemen are generous, polite and charitable. So thinks Vincent Turcotte, 16, formerly of Boston, who today is in New York on his way to his former Boston home, thanks to local firemen who were generous enough to finance his trip east.

Vincent was living in Boston with relatives when his mother died in her home in Canton. The relatives sent the boy to his father, but upon arrival in Canton, Vincent learned his father, a former city fireman, had left for parts unknown. Canton firemen financed his trip here and gave him a letter to local firemen.

Monday night Vincent wandered into No. 47 Engine Company on the North Side and showed them his letter. John Heinz, president of the City Firemen's Protection Association, was called and he arranged for meals and a bed. Yesterday the lad was given a ticket to New York, and a letter to firemen of that city. It is hoped the New York firefighters will see him on his way to Boston.

Kin Seeks Traces Of Carl Anderson

City Clerk Robert Clark has received a letter from Gust Anderson of R. D. No. 4, Edmere, North Dakota, asking for information about a relative, Carl Anderson, whose last known address was in Pittsburgh.

Col. Ray's Say

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 14.

Biggest news in the papers was that Col. Lindbergh had won the horseshoe pitching contest out in the Black Hills of Virginia at Camp Hoover.

What's the matter with this country when an aviator can walk off with a horseshoe pitching contest. Is there no limit to this man's cleverness?

California morning papers all starting subscriptions for relief of earthquake victims in New York and Pennsylvania, Senator Fletcher of Florida had the best and most sensible line (that is for a Senator).

Speaking of the fruit fly process whereby you freeze him to death before allowing the fruit to be shipped, he said, "90 per cent New Yorkers would rather eat a live fly than they would a dead one."

DRIVER JAILED FOR ATTACK IN COLLISION

Nine Hurt as Cars Crash in Swissvale; Man Loses Arm As Moving Van Overturns

Seventeen persons were injured in automobile accidents in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County yesterday and last night.

Nine were hurt when the automobiles of A. W. Sereno, 42, of 7721 Canon street, Swissvale, and Harry Gelman, 24, of 2304 Carson street, collided at Braddock and Westmoreland avenues, Swissvale.

Gelman was arrested on an aggravated assault and battery charge by Lieut. Buff Farina when he attacked Serena after the crash, police said. Gelman was released on $1,000 bond.

AUTO STRIKES POLE

Mrs. Josephine Jacobs, of 1006 Braddock avenue, Swissvale; Shirley Reba, of Squirrel Hill, and Mrs. Rose Kitner, of 5873 Shady-Forbes terrace, and four others whose names were not learned by police, all passengers in Gelman's car, were injured.

Serena's wife suffered a laceration on the chin. She was able to go to her home.

When their automobile struck a pole while rounding a curve in Bell avenue, North Braddock, yesterday, Samuel Visco, 22, of 300 Cliff street, East Pittsburgh, and Mike Sateck, of 525 Bessemer avenue, East Pittsburgh, were injured. Visco is in the Homestead Hospital suffering a fractured right leg. His companion was only slightly hurt.

Hit by an automobile near her home yesterday afternoon, Clare Williams, 8, of 112 East Eleventh street, Homestead, suffered a fractured skull. The child was reported to be in a critical condition today in the Homestead Hospital. Police arrested Wan White, Negro, of 126 West Fifteenth avenue, Homestead, driver of the machine.

HURT AS VAN UPSETS

Louis J. LeLoup, 30, of Indianapolis, was injured seriously when a moving van he was driving upset in Penn avenue at East street, Wilkinsburg, last night.

The truck, owned by the Red Ball Transfer Company, was on Penn avenue, when LeLoup lost control, Wilkinsburg police said. In attempting to stop, LeLoup swerved into a curb. The impact caused the van, which was loaded with furniture, to upset.

LeLoup was pinned beneath the wreckage, and was released by pedestrians. He was taken to Columbia Hospital, where it was said that his right arm had been severed.

Ruth Flack, 13, of 3784 Liberty avenue, and Gladys McNeil, 10, of 4780 Lytle street, were taken to Montefiore Hospital after having been struck by an automobile driven, police said, by Philip Polk, 28, of 5101 Carnegie avenue, last night. The accident occurred near the Carnegie Library in Forbes street. Polk was arrested.

Sitting on a curbstone in the 700 block in Forward avenue, Samuel Chroda, 12, of 703 Forward avenue, and Ernest Vivian, 20, of 537 Forward avenue, were bruised when an automobile struck them.

LYSLE IN RACE TO HOLD JOB

Mayor George H. Lysle, of McKeesport, yesterday announced that he is a candidate for re-election to the post he has held for 15 years.

He has been a resident of the Tube City for 56 years. Prior to his first election as mayor in 1913, he served 19 years in the city council.

Following the Federal rum ring probe in McKeesport last spring, Mayor Lysle suspended several police officers named in indictments. At that time it was predicted that strong opposition would develop in the fall election, but thus far only one candidate has announced himself to oppose him. He is Charles L. Weissert, Jr., a contractor.

College Boys Tug at Saws, Swing Axes in Building Greensburg Airport

PAUL KLINGENSMITH DICK JAMISON HARRY L. BRINDLE REGIS MAHADY

Embryo lumberjacks these college men must be in their work of clearing out woods for the new Pittsburgh-Greensburg airport under construction near Greensburg. Klingensmith is basketball center at Penn; Jamison an F. and M. student; Brindle, W. & J., and Mahady enters Harvard Law in the fall. They agree the exercise hardens them for college sports in the fall.

FELLING A TREE FOR AIR PROGRESS

Brindle, with a few hefty swings to drive in his wedge, felling a tough tree which has claimed its share of sawing and chopping from his mates. The airport when completed may figure as an important one in cross-country flying.

STUDENTS CUT AIRPORT TREES

GREENSBURG, Aug. 14.—The woodsman craft has taken on new dignity hereabouts with the hiring out of five college men to a contractor clearing a field of timber to make way for the new Pittsburgh-Greensburg Airport, future base of operations for the Main Aeronautics Corporation.

And a fine crew of woodsmen they are—two from Harvard, one from Pennsylvania, one from Washington and Jefferson and one from Franklin and Marshall. Paul and Regis Mahady are the Harvard boys, Paul Klingensmith boasts of Pennsylvania, Harry L. Brindle wears the W. & J. colors and Dick Jamison hales from Franklin and Marshall.

It's hardening these young fellows want and hardening is just what they are getting out of it—steely muscles, healthy bodies and "lots of fun," this their own boast.

Mighty oaks—tall and lofty ash—the sturdy trunks hewn to the heart by well-directed ax blows, are crashing all about to the keen delight of these sinewy young college chaps. They whistle and sing at their work and sometimes chat of the days past and days ahead in school.

"Who, me? Not on your life, fellow. I know how you swing. Hold your own wedge."

But the trees fall and the timber is cleared and soon the 700-acre tract will be transformed into an airport.

Ohio Man Brings Back Tooth of Mastodon

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Aug. 14.—S. C. Robinson, returning from a visit at his former home in Utica, Kan., brought with him an 11-pound tooth of a mastodon. It is one of several dug up by a former neighbor opening a spring. The largest weighed 11 pounds.

Skin troubles—pimples, boils, eczema and sallow complexion are usually but symptoms of a deeper, a more dangerous trouble—a lack of the normal count of red-cells in the blood.

No one can afford pimples

HAPPY is the woman who has a clear, smooth, flawless skin! Both men and women admire such captivating loveliness.

First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. Neither can they be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.

A lovely—clear skin—is within the reach of all. To those who have lost it, hope is offered. You, too, may have a beautiful skin, rose-petal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

Strong, healthy blood nourishes the body and fights against infection and disease.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

Many thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking S.S.S. It is Nature's own blood tonic for raising the body's power of resistance to disease, improving the appetite, building firm flesh, and clearing the skin. S.S.S. promotes constructive metabolism (healthy body building). It increases the number of red-blood-cells.

When you take S.S.S. to get rid of pimples, boils, eczema and such skin troubles, you are building up the system to ward off the graver diseases of which these blemishes are Nature's warning.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

Sky-ward.....To Success

Can You Qualify for This Great Opportunity?

THE opportunities ahead of the skilled Pilot are practically limitless. Aviation—fast developing into the world's greatest industry—is in immediate need of men who will be the pilots, engineers and executives in the vast aerial enterprises of tomorrow. But a thorough course in flying training is essential for real success in all branches of aviation.

IN this locality, there are young men with the high moral, mental and physical qualities necessary for advancement in Aviation—men who, with proper training, can achieve outstanding success. This message is addressed to those men.

SO far as permanent success in aviation is concerned, the day of haphazard training is past. There is no position for the inadequately schooled pilot. The airways must be made safe for industry and travel. Pilots must be carefully, thoroughly and scientifically trained in their profession.

PENN School of Aviation, operated by a subsidiary of Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation, offers you the instructing personnel, the advanced aeronautical knowledge, the system and equipment that will make you—not just another pilot—but a skilled and trustworthy aviator, measuring up to the highest standards required by the Government for licensed Private, Limited Commercial and Transport Pilots.

AT Pittsburgh-Butler Airport, a 600 acre site picked by aeronautical engineers for its ideally safe flying conditions, a class of carefully selected student pilots is now being instructed in the United States Army system of flying training, under the guidance of experienced graduate officers of United States Army flying schools, admittedly the safest and most thorough in the world.

THE cost of instruction at Penn School of Aviation is higher than at some flying schools, but with Penn Training, the chances for immediate advancement will be more than proportionately greater. Nothing has been neglected—no expense spared—to place Penn School in the front rank of flying schools soon to be recognized and licensed by the Department of Commerce of the United States Government.

THE opportunities afforded the Penn Trained Pilot are unique, because Penn School is operated by a subsidiary of Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation, one of the largest aviation concerns in the country, backed by the most prominent business men of the Pittsburgh district and controlling a large group of companies operating in practically every field of aviation.

A NEW class in flying training will begin at Penn School on or about September 1st. If you are interested in a career in any branch of aviation and believe you have the necessary qualities required for enrollment, write immediately or complete information and questionnaire to DIRECTOR OF FLYING TRAINING, Penn School of Aviation, 725 Oliver Bldg., Pittsburgh, Pa. No personal interviews will be granted until questionnaire is filled in and returned.

GROUPS START EDUCATIONAL VOTE DRIVE

Civic Organizations Join Campaign to Inform Public Concerning Election Facts

An educational campaign to acquaint residents of Allegheny County with the requirements that must be met before they will be eligible to cast their votes at the primaries has been launched by several civic organizations here.

Through the distribution of literature, the organizations sponsoring the drive hope to explain all the necessary requirements in time for all to register and vote.

The organizations sponsoring the campaign are the Civic Club of Allegheny County, the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, the Allegheny County Elections Association, the Congress of Clubs and Club Women, the League of Women Voters and the Allied Boards of Trade.

The movement is non-partisan and its object is good citizenship. This is the second year that the same organizations have united for the educational work. The campaign is being launched with the placing of 150,000 leaflets in the "Transit Guest" boxes of street cars. The leaflets also will be distributed by the various boards of trades.

The leaflet tells of the registration days for Pittsburgh and other parts of the county, the date of the primaries and general election and the number of offices to be filled in addition to all the requirements.

Park Head Itemizes Outlay; Commissioners to Buy Radio for Weather Man

Paul B. Riis, county superintendent of parks, yesterday notified County Commissioners that the North and South Parks golf courses have cost the county more than $90,000, and are yet uncompleted.

His itemized report disclosed that the expenditures were augmented by the cost of tractors, materials, labor, tools and equipment.

DROUGHT BLAMED

Due to the dry weather, Riis wrote, difficulties are being encountered in construction of the links. The top soil is pulverizing six feet deep, he wrote, causing a slowing up of excavating work.

The commissioners voted $75 to buy a radio receiving set for W. S. Brotzman, government meteorologist, which will enable him to receive weather reports sent out every three hours over a belt 400 miles wide and 1,000 miles long.

FUNDS NEEDED

In a letter to the commissioners, Brotzman said that he could give out aero weather reports only once every 24 hours. He asked the donation because available funds for that purpose have been used up by the government.

With the new set, he said, he could furnish weather reports to fliers entering and leaving Pittsburgh eight times daily.

MOVES GOODS PADLOCKED

Federal Judge R. M. Gibson signed an order directing United States Marshal J. C. McGregor to open a government "padlock" on the first floor of a building at 146 South Seventeenth street, to permit August Piraino to remove his furniture. Then the first floor is to be closed again until the termination of a one-year padlock decree.

Piraino, not aware of an injunction suit involving the property, rented it from the owner, Rosalio Cancillo. Just about the time he was comfortably settled in his new home a deputy United States marshal placed a government padlock on it and posted a notice that it was closed by order of the court because of violations of the prohibition law.

Piraino appealed to the United States attorney, who consented to the issuance of the court order to open the building long enough for Piraino to remove his belongings. The injunction decree was against Carl Stofosky, who used the front part of the building for a storeroom, and Mrs. Cancillo, was named as the owner of the property.

'COUNT' NABBED FOR FORGERY

Menelas Cacaris, known in the Pittsburgh Greek colony as "The Count," is under arrest in New York, and proceedings will be instituted to bring him to Pittsburgh to answer a charge of forging a United States treasury check. He was arrested last September and placed under a $2,500 bond.

When he failed to appear for trial in December he was traced to Chicago and other Western cities by secret service operatives. He evaded arrest until he went to New York, where he was arrested by Gabriel DiFiore, a secret service operative who was formerly stationed in the Pittsburgh district.

Johnston, is sending regular dispatches to Sun-Telegraph readers.

ANOTHER CELL YIELDS HURT PRISONER

Aged Man, Believed With Fractured Skull, Second Mistaken as Intoxicated

Another prisoner, the second in two days, was removed from a cell in the Central Police Station last night to the Allegheny General Hospital, where one died Monday.

Henry Welth, 89, said to have no home, was taken from a cell to the hospital, several hours after he had been arrested on a charge of drunkeness, police said. Hospital authorities believed Welth to be suffering from a probable fracture of the skull. One stitch was required to close a cut over his left eye.

The first victim, arrested on a like charge Sunday, was identified at the county morgue last night as John Jasinski, 58, of 2709 Spring way, morgue attaches reported. Nick Giancola, of 1709 Cliff street, his son-in-law, who identified the body, told deputy coroners that Jasinski was sober when he left after visiting him at his home Sunday afternoon.

COMPENSATION CHARGES MADE AGAINST 11

South Side Business Men Held Accused of Violating State Workmen's Statute

Eleven South Side businessmen were at liberty on bonds today following their arrest yesterday on charges of violating the state compensation law.

The campaign against the violators was instituted several months ago by Peter Glick, secretary of the State Department of Labor and Industry. Those arrested yesterday were released on bonds for hearings before Alderman John P. Keacher, of South Thirteenth street. They are proprietors of meat markets, restaurants and groceries.

Their arrests resulted from their alleged failure to take out compensation for their employes. The violation is a misdemeanor, and provides a maximum fine of $500, a jail sentence, or both.

Young Ladies' Club Holds Lawn Party

The Young Ladies of St. Joseph's Church last night held a lawn party at 408 Fifth avenue, Carnegie. Bridge, 500, old maid and euchre was indulged in.

Given Jail Term For Having Morphine

Israel Cohen, 35, an alleged drug addict, was sentenced to 45 days in jail by Judge R. M. Gibson in Federal Court for unlawful possession of 18 grains of morphine on July 7, 1924. He pleaded guilty to the charge. The imposition of sentence was delayed because of Cohen serving a 22 months' term in the Michigan State Penitentiary.

Short Council Meet At Castle Shannon

Castle Shannon Council met at its regular monthly meeting in the borough building last night. Routine business only was transacted, and no ordinances passed. CAPTAIN HAWKS wants something that will really go

NEW YORK TO LOS ANGELES AND RETURN IN 36 HOURS, 48 MINUTES

That's an average of 152 miles per hour—and the great record set by Captain Hawks on June 13th to 14th last.

THIS Marmon 68 will give Captain Hawks all the action he's looking for on the ground . . . Furthermore, he found in it all the new advances of automobile engineering . . . It was but natural that Captain Hawks would select a straight-eight—knowing as he does what multiple cylinders mean in aircraft. Every time you leave it to the mechanically informed, Marmon will invariably win out. Possibly you don't want to think in terms of things mechanical, but certainly you do want these greater results.

Don't buy any other car until you try a Marmon and find for yourself what a remarkable difference there really is in this more modern eight-cylinder car.

Gentlemen:

In selecting a Marmon automobile for my personal use, I made observations such as I do in planning my transcontinental flights. I studied all the qualifications of your car and found they answered what in my opinion were the needs for the best in motor car operation.

Power, flexibility, ease of control, simplicity of operation, sturdiness and beauty of design, were the answers that I was looking for, and they are all embodied magnificently in the Model 68 Coupe which I purchased. I thoroughly enjoy the car and am proud of it.

Yours very truly,

Frank M. Hawks

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Martha Fleming Rutan To Marry Bryn Mawr Man in October

WITH the first of September just a little more than two weeks off, Pittsburghers who have been preoccupied all summer long with summer resort life are beginning to turn their thoughts homeward. Early September will see many of them returning, and already they are making plans for fall days at home.

Since the debutante entertainments will begin earlier than usual this fall, many folks will return earlier. And then fall weddings always bring people back.

Autumn weddings will have precedence on the social calendar, since the very first of the debutante events will not take place until mid-September.

The list of nuptials for the fall is steadily growing. I happen to know one wedding of great interest that will take place in October. Although the date has not yet been definitely set, Martha Fleming Rutan, daughter of Mrs. Frank E. Rutan, of Sewickley and Philadelphia, will become the bride of Louis B. Wells, son of Mrs. Benjamin G. Wells and the late Mr. Wells, of Bryn Mawr, during that month, I happen to know.

IN the meantime members of the social set are making the most of the last days of summer. Eloise Dorrance, daughter of the Harold J. Dorrances, of South Negley avenue, is entertaining at a small house party at the Dorrance summer home, Harvey road, Foxburg, Pa. Eloise has just returned from the Horton Ranch, Buffalo, Wyo., where she was the guest of Florence Arrott, daughter of Charles F. Arrott, of Amberson avenue. On Tuesday Florence went to Foxburg to be the guest of Eloise.

Later in the week Vardi Marshall, daughter of the Lee Holmes Marshalls, of Dunmoyle street, will arrive at the Dorrance summer home. Vardi has been in Bass Rocks, Mass., for some time, by the way.

La Salle Dorrance, another daughter, is cruising with the Walter T. Seymours, of Providence, R. I., on their yacht, The Whistler. She will bring the Seymours' daughter, Ruth, home with her the latter part of the month, I understand.

Mrs. Howard Erskine and Dr. and Mrs. Lee Burton Peterson, of Steubenville, O., are planning a house party in honor of La Salle and her guest.

MRS. EDWARD GRANT CAUGHEY, of Sewickley, and Miss Mary Caughey, of Washington, have retuned from a motor trip through the West. Accompanying them were Dr. and Mrs. George Martin Guest, of Cincinnati. Mrs. Guest is the former Mary Lapsley Caughey.

Another member of the social set who has returned is Mrs. David Wellington Miller, of Edgeworth. She is home after spending some time in New York.

One of the debutantes of last season has returned from Cape May—Betty Guiler, daughter of the Leonard K. Guilers, of Squirrel Hill avenue. At the New Jersey resort she has been the guest of Rebecca Follansbee, daughter of the John Follansbees, who came out last winter, too.

The John S. McCormicks, of Darlington road, and their daughter, Cecilia, have been at Nantucket for the summer. Before returning home the McCormicks will go to Lake Placid, where their son, John McCormick, Jr., has been for some time.

News has reached us that Mrs. Margaret F. McGeary, of Sewickley, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Henry Halsey Miller, of Buffalo.

AMONG the Pittsburghers in Atlantic City are Mrs. Robert K. Cochrane and her mother, Mrs. John Crom, who are spending the remainder of August at the Windermere Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. V. Royal Caldwell are at the Chalfonte-Haddon Hall, and so are Mr. and Mrs. Omar S. Decker and Mrs. A. H. Games.

MR. AND MRS. C. E. FRAZIER, of East Beau street, Washington, Pa., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Gladys Elva Frazier, and James Crawford Hoffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hoffman, of Mannington, W. Va., which solemnized August 1 in Cumberland, Md., by the Rev. J. E. Moffitt. Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman are traveling in Canada, and upon their return will be at home in Charleston, W. Va. The bride is a graduate of the National Park Seminary, while Mr. Hoffman was graduated from Mercersburg Academy and attended Washington and Jefferson College. He is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

MRS. FRED GRIFFITHS, of Forbes street, who has been traveling abroad for the last three months, landed in New York Monday on the Minnetonka.

* * *

MRS. IRENE NEELY BREMER, of Alum Rock, Pa., entertained at luncheon today in the Shippen Inn, Shippensville, Pa., in honor of Mrs. Herbert Curll, of Chicago. Bridge followed the luncheon at the home of Mrs. Joseph McMillan in Shippensville and later the party attended the Drake Theater, in Oil City. Mrs. M. M. Dougherty and Mrs. Henry Chalfant Miller were Pittsburgh guests.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM W. WEIDMAN, of Lemington avenue, Penn Township, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Grace Estella Weidman, and Elmer Joseph Keep, son of Mrs. Albert Graham, of Pointview street, which was solemnized Monday. After September 1, Mr. and Mrs. Keep will be at home in Mt. Vernon street, Homewood.

THE first Carter-Wilson family reunion was held Sunday at Louise, W. Va., with 98 members present. Plans were made to make the reunion an annual affair.

THE marriage of Miss Beatrice Russell Stahl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvah F. Stahl, of Rochester, N. Y., and John Matthew Biggs, of Rochester, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Biggs, of Ingram, which was solemnized July 30 at Indian Lodge, on Lake Canandaigua, the Stahl summer home, by the Rev. Dr. Henry F. Robins, of the Colgate-Rochester School of Divinity. Miss Mary Stone Biggs, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and Curtis A. Rhodes, of Buffalo, was best man. A breakfast followed the ceremony and later Mr. and Mrs. Biggs left for a motor trip. They will be at home in Sibley place, Rochester, after September 1.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the marriage of Miss Martha M. Annis, daughter of Mrs. Harry Franz, of the East End, and John E. Luttig, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Luttig, of Mississippi avenue, Dormont, which was solemnized yesterday morning at 7:30 o'clock in St. Bernard's Catholic Church by the Rev. Thomas Bryson. A breakfast for the families followed the ceremony at the Verandah Tearoom, Mt. Lebanon. After September 1, Mr. and Mrs. Luttig will be at home in Dormont.

MRS. WILLIAM S. FLOWER, of the Schenley Apartments, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Sarah E. Flower, to Herbert L. Sandler, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Sandler, of Linden avenue.

GOLDEN RULE SISTERHOOD, Dames of Malta, is sponsoring a lawn fete and card party to be held Friday afternoon and evening, August 23, at Charles street and Wilson avenue, North Side. Mrs. Anna Waddell, chairman of the Perrysville avenue district, will have charge of the refreshment booth.

Greene County Fair Gets Under Way

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Aug. 14.—The Greene County Fair season opened yesterday with the starting of the sixty-third annual fair and race meeting at Jacktown. Located on the top of a high knoll, the fair grounds at Jacktown are circled by a one-third of a mile race track which follows the grade of the hill in many places.

A genuine horse traders alley, where the farmers of the community annually mingle with gypsy traders for three days of equine bartering, is another picturesque feature of the Jacktown fair, which always delights city visitors to the exhibition. It will continue until tomorrow, wth racing today and tomorrow.

Keel of New British Ocean Liner Junked

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—A Belfast dispatch to the Daily News says today that the keel of the 60,000-ton White Star Steamship Oceanic, to have been the greatest liner of the world, has been demolished and plans are being prepared for a new vessel to take up the speed challenge of the new North German Lloyd liner Bremen. The keel was laid last October and was nearly completed when work was ordered stopped on July 23.

Penna. Drivers Most Reckless, Says Sheriff

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Aug. 14.—Illinois drivers are more careful than those of other states, according to Sheriff Ford Moore discussing tourists who use the National roads through Belmont County. Moore said since he took office only one Illinois car has been involved in a traffic accident.

Pennsylvania drivers are the most reckless of those in the foreign license class. They pass other cars on brows of hills and take steep grades with reckless abandon. As a result, many have been in accidents.

BRANDS JUDGE 'SOFT-BOILED'

SAN JOSE, Cal., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Taking the stand in his own behalf, Hyland A. Baggerly, Los Gatos publisher, testified concerning articles he published regarding Police Judge Percy O'Connor's recent handling of the reckless-driving case against Miss Josephine Grant, San Francisco heiress and society girl.

The articles in the Los Gatos Mail-News resulted in a criminal libel suit being brought against Baggerly by Judge O'Connor on which a preliminary hearing is being held.

Baggerly, in testimony, asserted as the two articles were read in court that he bore no malice or animosity against Judge O'Connor.

Asked about O'Connor's reputation in dealing with reckless driving and liquor cases, Baggerly said: "He is usually hard-boiled in these cases, but this time he was evidently soft-boiled."

BOOK REVIEW

It isn't part of my job to review books—but there is a new textbook out which deals with the most important subject—health. It is compiled by the Pittsburgh Natatorium and is entitled "Body Culture." Charts and measurements for the ideal proportions of men and women, together with sound advice on reducing and body building are contained. It describes minutely the various devices which are in use at the body cultural laboratories at the Natatorium, explaining just how they aid in developing the healthful figure. Women in particular will like this little booklet—which may be had free by calling in person at the

PASTOR, SINGER RETURN HOME

HARRISBURG, Aug. 14.—(AP).—The Rev. John W. Gable, former pastor of the Enhaut Bethel Church of God, and his choir singer, Mrs. Maude Miller, mother of four children, returned from Florida to their families last night. They had eloped on July 23.

The Rev. Mr. Gable, who was released by his congregation after the elopement, said he and Mrs. Miller had returned after receiving letters assuring them of a welcome from their families. He said he and the choir singer had prayed for guidance after leaving Enhaut and subsequently had written home to learn their relatives' attitude toward them. When the letters inviting them back were received, they returned at once, he said.

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern

A SMART FROCK.

Gracious styling is shown in this simple but pleasing model. The diagonal closing and split curve of the yoke front are outstanding features. The wide plait formation is new and becoming. Flat crepe was chosen in this instance. Flannel or rajah are also suggested. Fine serge in navy blue with banding of black, beige or a little blue is also pleasing.

The pattern is cut in five sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. To make the dress for a 38-inch size will require 3⅝ yards of 39-inch material. To finish with braid or binding as illustrated in the large view will require four yards. The width of the dress at the lower edge with plait fulness extended is 2⅛ yards.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

SPORT COMMENT

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

Davis on the Job.

Receives Support.
Boost for Locke.

RECALLING FLOYD ROSE'S PART

K. E. DAVIS GORDON LOCKE

DIRECTLY north of here you see a familiar figure back in harness.

He is K. E. Davis, former graduate athletic manager and alumni secretary of the University of Pittsburgh, who recently buckled down to the same duties for Western Reserve University, of Cleveland. The man sitting at the desk is Gordon Locke, athletic director and football coach of the Cleveland institution of higher learning.

Davis was in Pittsburgh over the last week-end preparing to move his family to Cleveland. After more than a week on the job at Reserve he was keenly enthusiastic about his new work.

IT WILL be recalled that when Reserve came here in the fall of 1927 to be mopped up by Carnegie Tech at Forbes Field, its football team was jocularly referred to as Western REVERSE. Davis' first job is to make the gridiron public of Cleveland and the nation conscious of the fact that Reserve really is going ahead; in other words, to turn the Reverse into Reserve, as it was intended to be, and he already has taken some important steps in the right direction.

Reserve's big home game comes right at the start of the season, on October 6, with Tech, at Dunn Field, the American League park in Cleveland, which is to be Reserve's home grounds until the new $2,500,000 Municipal Stadium, with a seating capacity of 80,000, will be available there in another year or two. A huge banner has been strung against the fence inside the park, where it hits the eyes of the baseball fans every day, bearing the legend:

"Western Reserve Will Play Its Football Games Here This Fall."

The Chamber of Commerce, the Cleveland Athletic Club and the Cleveland newspapers and civic organizations have welcomed Davis with open arms as the sort of up-and-doing athletic chief Cleveland has needed all along to put it on the football map. Billy Evans, former American League umpire and now business manager of the Cleveland Indians, is glowing with enthusiasm about the prospects of putting over some big gates and is working hand-in-love with Davis.

DIRECTOR LOCKE, we are told, is tickled to death to have such an experienced manager as Davis associated with him and the pair seem destined to work along in perfect harmony. During the time Locke has been on the job at Reserve up to now his light has been hidden under the proverbial bushel, and, so far as the football world has been concerned, he has been just another coach. Davis has brushed off Gordon's glorious gridiron career and reminded the folks of Cleveland that in Locke they have the great quarterback of the Iowa team that came East to defeat Yale, 6-0, in 1922, when he was named on 130 all-America teams.

Locke is a player of the build and personality of George McLaren, former Pitt fullback star. Last year, his Reserve team lost only to St. Xavier, but nobody kicked up his heels over the record. This year, Cornell will be met at Ithaca, N. Y., in addition to Tech at home, and another big home game will be with Ohio Wesleyan, which last year defeated Michigan and Syracuse.

DAVIS sees in Cleveland a fertile field for football growth. The colleges there never have had the play that rightfully should be theirs. The high schools draw big crowds to their games and one of them, Shaw High, has a stadium seating about 15,000 that would be the envy of many colleges. Yet most of the good playing talent has been permitted to drift away to other sectors, as was the case in Pittsburgh before Pitt, with Davis in the saddle, put an end to all of that. Benny Friedman, a star of stars, was a Cleveland boy who went to Michigan. Crip Sauer and Ed Hanley came to Pitt from Cleveland. Saul Mielziner came to Carnegie Tech and numerous others have gone to Cornell, Princeton, Penn State and other colleges and universities. Davis hopes, by making Reserve a football giant, to keep all of this talent at home for the edification of Clevelanders.

ANOTHER plan of K. E., is to build up a natural triangular rivalry among Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Columbus. As matters stand now, the average Clevelander who wants a Saturday afternoon of football drifts down to Columbus to see Ohio State play a Western Conference opponent. Why not come to Pittsburgh or have the Pittsburghers come to Cleveland? is Davis' slogan. The three cities are about equidistant apart.

Some idea of the size of Reserve may be gained from the fact that it has an enrollment of 12,000 students of all kinds, full course, night course, etc., with about 2,000 eligible for varsity athletics. It has 15,000 alumni, many buildings and a $3,000,000 building expansion program now under way and a campaign for $10,000,000 more to follow. Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, is an alumnus and booster and so is W. R. Hopkins, city manager of Cleveland, while many of the leading professional men of the town also are Reserve alumni who have been just waiting for somebody to pep up things back on the old college campus.

AN EXTENSIVE intramural system of athletics is in effect and all athletics are under faculty control, Director Locke being a member of the faculty. The one-year residence rule is in effect, along with all of the other standard restrictions. The sports program embraces football, baseball, basketball, track, golf and wrestling.

---

IN LOOKING ahead, none realizes more than Davis the necessity of steadily strengthening the schedule if Western Reserve is to climb to the top in the football world with the meteoric speed of Pitt, and already he is getting ready to negotiate for games next year and the year after. It would seem to this writer that, with a manager of the known ability of Davis at the helm at Reserve, it will be a smart rival that will bestir itself to get on the Reserve schedules now, for Cleveland will be a big money spot in football during the next few seasons. Techites will get a sample of the influence of the Davis box office whoopee in its battle in October.

INCIDENTALLY, Davis expects a visit in Cleveland shortly from Floyd Rose, vice president of the Colonial Steel Company, of Pittsburgh, who will look over the Reserve situation while attending a convention in the Ohio city. Rose, it will be remembered, is the man who stood shoulder to shoulder with Davis, A. R. Hamilton, Alex Stevenson and Pop Warner in the building of the Pitt football fortunes and had to drop out of the picture because of pressure of business. In the general recounting of Davis' success at Pitt, at the time Karl made his connection with Reserve, there was a tendency to overlook the part Floyd, a keen football man and an old Pitt star, played in the making of the Panthers.

SOUTH HILLS STAR GETS FINE 71

John Graham, of the South Hills Country Club, scored a fine 71, one under par, to set the pace for the first 18 holes of the 36-hole qualifying test in the annual Western Pennsylvania amateur golf championships at the South Hills Club today.

Graham, who was beaten by Maurice (Ski) LeBosquet, of the Highland Country Club, in the West Penn amateur final last season, scored even par 36 on the out nine and clipped one stroke from perfect figures with a 35 coming home. His card:

Out ..... 4 4 4 3 4 5 3 4 5—36
In ..... 5 4 3 4 4 3 3 5 4—35—71

LeBosquet, the defending champion, finished well back in the field by negotiating the first half of the qualifying test in 79, and should he falter on the second 18 holes of medal play this afternoon he will be dethroned before the match play gets under way.

Two Oakmont veterans, Richard C. Long and Greer McIlvaine, shared second position with par 72 each. The scores:

BUCS TRAIL BEARS BY 81-2 GAMES

By Staff Correspondent.

BOSTON, Aug. 14.—The Cubs came from behind to taste the sweets of another victory before leaving Boston last night, and thus they are eight and one-half games in front of the Pirates as they prepare to invade Ebbets Field and the Polo Grounds. It is altogether likely that Joe McCarthy and his hustlers will run into some stubborn entanglements while opposing the Robins and Giants, yet they have a dandy lead on which to ride, even if they do skid a little.

The Bushwhackers are anxious to keep the Bears within striking distance for the big doings of late August at Forbes Field. As soon as the Pirates return home they will take on the Bruins in five battles in the Oakland Orchard. The series will open with a doubleheader on Wednesday, August 28.

A SIDE SPLITTER

Dazzy Vance, celebrated pitcher, and a big time monologist sprang a side-splitting Cotton Tierney story on the Brooklyn bench a day of two ago while the athletes were discussing hard hit balls. Tierney, according to Dazzy, was in a peeved frame of mind one afternoon. He vowed he would take his revenge on the harmless little ball, and as he walked to the plate he remarked.

"When I get through hitting today, they'll have to scrape the outfielders off the fence with a putty knife."

The Pirates have 49 games remaining of their schedule, not counting today's scrap. Twenty-six of the number are on the books for the Oakland Orchard with 23 to be staged on foreign fields. Boing away from home, however, doesn't bother the freebooters when they are in their stride; they have shown they are a better road club than a home winner.

MAY STRENGTHEN STAFF

The critics of the Cubs, by the way, will have to revise their statements on the Bears concerning the so-called failure of the Bears to win while in hostile territory. These observers aver that the Cubs are big winners only on the home lot, but they had a fine trip through the East on their last excursion and they have made a big start on the present jaunt.

The collapse of the Pirate pitching staff with Burleigh Grimes out of order may speed up the Pittsburgh officials in the matter of strengthening the staff for the next campaign. Ervin Brame, Steve Swetonic and Larry French should be consistent winners next season, but Manager Bush can hardly have much confidence in most of the others in view of the events of the past month.

Jess Petty, however, has been closer to his oldtime form in the past two weeks.

Doubtless Chick Fraser, Bill Hinchman, Joe Devine and other Dreyfuss operatives are combing the Bush league high and low in quest of good sharpshooters, and other players who might be able to sparkle in the big show.

---

Rolly Hemsley, young Pirate catcher, expects a new arrival in the Hemsley family and he was excused from duty to return home.

LOCAL STARS BEATEN AT CULVER

CULVER, Ind., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Two more favorites in the National junior tennis singles found too much competition yesterday and a new star loomed for the championship round. William O'Loughlin, of Pittsburgh, seeded ninth, lost to Earl Bossong, of Cincinnati, 4-6, 6-2, 6-1, and William Schommer, of Milwaukee, seeded No. 6, was removed from consideration by Robert Bryan, of Atlanta, Ga., 6-4, 5-7, 6-0.

WEST DOMINATES

Eight youths representing every section of the country yesterday pounded their way into the quarter final round. California dominated the list, three coast players surviving the stiff competition to take places in the select eight. Keith Gledhill, of Santa Barbara, the favorite; Ellsworth Vines, of Pasadena, seeded No. 2, and Hugh McArthur, of Los Angeles, seeded fifth, will battle for California today.

The middlewest has two hopes in Junior Boehmer of St. Louis and Earl Bossong of Cincinnati, while the East and South will depend on one each. Fred Roll of Philadelphia is the lone Eastener and Robert Bryan, Atlanta, Ga., is the sole survivor from the south. Karl Kamrath of Austin, Texas, will represent the Southwest.

William O'Loughlin of Pittsburgh, eliminated Kendall Cram of Nashville, Tenn., and before he bowed to Earl Bossong.

PETTY SLATED FOR MOUND IN OPENER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

BOSTON, Aug. 14.—To stave off a possible rout on their last eastern invasion, the Pirates were ready for the Braves today. The Bushwhackers start their second series with only one triumph to show for the tour to date.

The eleventh-hour setbacks sustained by the Freebooters in the last two games in Brooklyn tended to shake the morale of a club that was just beginning to get its punch again on top of a series of misfortunes. Instead of losing three out of four to the Robins, the Pirates contend they should have had three triumphs while they sported themselves in the Flatbush.

The post-mortems, however, will not help the Pittsburgh outlook, the players being in the mood to make the most they can of the future. The teams are now into the back stretch and provided the Cubs are slowed down in their mad gallop a lot of exciting things can happen before the tape is reached in October.

PETTY TO HURL

Jess Petty, veteran lefthander, whose recent showing on the slab has been very pleasing to Manager Bush, will endeavor to trim the Braves this afternoon in the first game of the series. Charley Hargreaves will be behind the plate, owing to the absence of Rolly Hemsley, who has been called to Pittsburgh on account of his wife's illness.

The Pittsburgh chieftain will go through with his intention of benching Earl Sheely in favor of George Grantham if the Tribe puts a right-hander on the mound. In the event of Eddie Brandt's appearance on the slab, Sheely will stay at the bag for antoher day, which eventually would be pleasing to Bush, as this would give Grantham another rest day and the injured star seems to need a little more time in which to get himself ready.

The Braves, as a rule, give the Pirates plenty of trouble on the home lot. But it is hardly necessary to warn the Buccos of the dangers of over-confidence these days. What they passed through in Brooklyn on top of their many setbacks before leaving home is enough to make them bear down. Then, again, there is the flag chance, which is sufficient to spur any club along.

PHILS NEXT

The Bushwhackers will play single games here on the four remaining days of the week. On Monday they will open a four-game series in Philadelphia, a doubleheader being set for Monday. When this is completed they will invade the Polo Grounds for four battles with the Giants.

The main body of the team reached Boston late last night from Albany, where yesterday the big leaguers were given a pasting by the Albany Eastern League Club. The score was 8 to 4.

Most of the Pittsburgh pitchers, accompanied by Grantham, came to Boston yesterday direct from New York. Yesterday's score:

Arrangements have been made with the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company to provide coaches at the entrance to Schenley Park, which will make trips as rapidly as possible to the oval, carrying those who desire to see the meet.

After the athletic events are over, these coaches will take the spectators back to the park entrance, where they can board street cars for their homes.

Grays Out to Beat Hilldale Friday

A continuance of their present form in the American Negro League games with the Hilldale club, with whom they open a series on Friday evening at Forbes Field, by the Homestead Grays, may result in the Philadelphians being tumbled from their lofty position. The Grays seem to be going better right now than ever before this season and should Posey's proteges be able to flash their present stride when they encounter Hilldale, the followers of the local club look for them to dislodge the Daisies.

Hawkins Fouled By George Godfrey

Italian Duckpin League Here Planned

The Italian Civic Club of Brushton has started a movement to organize an Italian Club Bowling League in Pittsburgh, and A. P. Ferragonio, secretary of the Brushton club, and his aides are eager to weld all Italian clubs of the district into a duckpin league before the new bowling season gets under way. The Brushton sportsmen propose to make the Italian League a permanent organization. The communication of Secretary Ferragonio, of the Brushton club, follows:

"To create and bring about closer friendship, the Italian Civic Club of Brushton wished to hear from other Italian clubs throughout the city in regard to the organization of a Central Pittsburgh Italian Duckpin League. We are very anxious to hear from every club in the city. If interested please write to us so that we can get together and make arrangements for a first and successful year for the Central Pittsburgh Italian Duckpin League.

"Please write to Italian Civic Club of Brushton, care Anthony P. Ferragonio, secretary, 912 Blackadore avenue, Pittsburgh.

BOWL MATCHES GOLDSTEIN, CRAWLEY

Phil Goldstein, of the Hill, and Tommy Crawley, of the South Side, old rivals, will meet in the 10-round main bout at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, next Monday night, it was announced today by Matchmaker Jules Beck. The bout was closed after prolonged dickering with the managers of both principals.

It will be their fourth meeting. They first clashed at Motor Square Garden on Christmas Day, 1926, when Crawley won. Six months later they fought to a draw and shortly afterward Crawley scored his second victory over the Jewish star. Efforts to bring them together again have failed until now.

Two eight-round bouts and a six-rounder will complete the program for Monday night.

HEENEY TESTS CAMPOLO

Tom Heeney, the Hard Rock, as washed up as he is, should furnish the fans some sort of a line on the ability of Victorio Campolo, the new Wild Bull of the Pampas, when they clash in the main bout at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tonight. Campolo is the Argentine giant who is bigger than Jess Willard.

Angus Snyder meets Jack Roper and Ted Sanwina is on with Phil Mercurio in the 10-round preliminaries and Paul Swiderski boxes Roy Wallace over the six-round route.

Young Guido, of Sharon, and Johnny Plai, of Greenville, meet in their postponed battle at Conneaut Lake Park tonight.

Ray Foutts, Junction Park matchmaker, has signed Larry Madge, of Cleveland, to box Nordi Smith, Negro, of Newark, O., who holds a victory over California Joe Gans, to box the six-round semi-final of his show Thursday night of next week. Johnny Dunn, of New Kensington, and Homer Rogan, of Newark will appear in the 10-round main bout. Ted Yarosz will be one of the principals in the other six-round bouts and, in one of the two four-rounders, Pete Mazzeo, former amateur champion of Cleveland, will be featured.

Young Zabish and Harry Taylor have been matched for their sixth meeting in one of the three 10-round bouts at Johnstown on the night of August 26. Zabish has won two of the first five clashes and the others have resulted in draws.

PECK TO BOX WELCH

Georgie Peck, of the North Side, and Teddy Welch, of McKeesport, will box the 10-round main bout at Armco Field, Butler, next Tuesday night. Frank Monroe, of Fair Haven, boxes Chuck Zetnack, of Glassport, again in the semi-final; Hugh Fetzer, of the North Side, will meet either Mickey Solmen, of New Castle, or Lou Terris, of Kittanning, in the second bout, and Carl Montabano and Cowboy DeLuca will box a return bout in the opener.

Tom Ford, of Chicago, is anxious to show his lightweight, Hershie Wilson, of Danville, Ill., here. He prefers Phil Goldstein, Tommy Crawley or Tony Herrera as Hershie's opponent.

Benny Schwartz, of Baltimore, returned home yesterday disappointed over his showing against Johnny McCoy at the Meyers Bowl Monday night and is anxious to redeem himself. He has asked the promoters to bring him back against the same foe.

PARKES TRADED

HARRISBURG, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The Harrisburg NY-PA League club last night announced the deal by which (Red) Parkes, right-handed pitcher, has been traded to the Williamsport club, for Bill Knowlton also a righthander and a cash consideration.

Philadelphia Company nosed out Equitable Gas, 6 to 5, in their Philadelphia Company League game at Mellon Field last evening. Sellers gave a base on balls with the bases filled, forcing in a run.

Carnegie Steel was stopped by Reick-McJunkin, 6 to 1, in their Commercial and Industrial League game played at Garfield Park. Engleman gave only four hits.

A nine-inning scoreless tie was played by Verona and Edgewood in the Greater Pittsburgh League last evening at Verona. Powley and Bob Garbeck staged such a tight pitching duel, backed up by good support that neither team was able to push a run across. Art Garbeck hit a triple.

BENSON SIGNED BY THIEL

GREENVILLE, Pa., Aug. 14.—Thiel College has selected C. O. Benson, former University of Illinois star basketball player, as its new coach of that sport here this fall, injecting the Big Ten Conference style into the Tri-State Conference collegiate section. Benson comes from St. Louis, where he has been coach of the freshman team at Washington University for the last year.

Although there are but few veteran holdovers, much attention has been given to new basketball material with the incoming year. Benson will succeed Gerald Loebs, former Heinz House coach, who left here to take graduate work at New York University after two years at Thiel.

LIFERS TACKLE REINECKERS TONIGHT

By TOM BIRKS.

Still keeping after the elusive second half title in the city loop, the Reliance Life boys will tangle with the Reineckers at Reliance Field this evening. Manager Ed Miller is far from being downhearted at the lead of the Smilers. Plenty of ball games have to be played before the winner is proclaimed, and Reliance Life will be in there fighting. The game will start at 6:30 o'clock.

MEET JIMMY SMITHS

Beltzhoover tangles with the Jimmy Smith Club at Magee Field this evening in the Inter-County League, and in the Steel City circuit the fans will have the Dispatch-Harris club fight at Washington Park to take in. Many leagues have completed their regular schedule, but in most loops there are many postponed games to get out of the way. Managers should lose no time in getting these played off.

W. O. W., with a win over the East Liberty Red Sox, threw the Sox aggregation into first place in the Central League standing. Jednak's outfit went to Mellon Field fighting mad, and it seems as though the Roosevelt Club will be the one to stop the Greater Pittsburgh champions, that is, if they are stopped.

MAY CUT CARD

It is possible that Verona Community will not play its two home games in the West Penn League. Manager Bill Bright is anxious to keep the pitching staff in shape for the Greater Pittsburgh League, and the two elimination series tilts. The Community nine figures on taking one of the eliminations to the Community town, and does not want to overwork the club.

ATHLETICS STRETCH LEAD TO 12½ GAMES

BRUINS GAIN BY BEATING BRAVES

Associated Press.

The Athletics are skipping merrily along again as eastern American League clubs prepare for the second series of their final western invasion. Following Rube Walberg's brilliantly pitched effort against the Tigers on Monday, old John Picus Quinn turned in a neat game yesterday to shade Victor Sorrell by 4 to 3 in the Mackmen's last appearance of the season in Detroit. It now remains only for Mose Grove to turn in a good game, and he probably will get his chance at Cleveland today.

Grove's next effort will mark his fifth attempt to wrest his eighteenth victory of the season from Old Man Percentage. He last won on July 25.

A'S LEAD 12½ GAMES

The victory of the Athletics gave them three out of four in Detroit and enabled them to stretch their lead to 12½ games, their greatest margin of the season. The Yankees were nosed out in Cleveland by 3 to 2.

Quinn gave the Tigers eight hits, two more than the Macks exacted from Sorrell, but the game was not nearly so close as the score sounded. Cronin's fumble gave the home team a run in the first, Marty McManus hit over the fence for one more in the ninth after the day had been lost. Home runs by Sammy Hale and Jimmy Foxx, his twenty-seventh, provided Quinn with his winning margin.

Fred Heimach turned in high class ball against the Indians for eight innings only to weaken in the ninth. Wilcy Moore then rushed to the rescue, not of the Yankees but of the Indians. Hodapp greeted him with a triple which drove in the two runs needed to win.

The Red Sox escaped from Chicago with the last game of the series, 8 to 2. The Browns turned on the Senators, 14 to 2, in the getaway game at St. Louis.

REDS TRIM GIANTS

With half of the National League clubs idle because of the advancement of the games in the schedule at Brooklyn and Philadelphia, the Bruins nosed out the Braves by 4 to 2 in the last game of the series at Boston, and increased the Chicago lead to eight and one-half games. Carlson was in trouble only in the fifth. The Braves in first round gained a lead of 2 to 0, but Hal clamped down upon the home forces from that point.

The Reds trimmed the Giants by 3 to 1 in the last five games at the Polo Grounds, and at the same time broke the spell of Fred Fitzsimmons had held over them. Big Fritz had a record of five victories over the men of Hendricks until yesterday, four of them by the shut-out route.

COLUMBUS RIOT TO BE PROBED

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—President Thomas Hickey, of the American Association, will go to Columbus, O., tonight to conduct a personal investigation of the free-for-all fist fight during the Columbus-Milwaukee game yesterday, which resulted in the serious injury of Umpire Joseph Rue.

The free-for-all was precipitated when Umpire Larry Goetz, arbiter at the plate, ordered the Columbus bench cleared, charging some of the Columbus players were berating him for his decisions and for chasing another Columbus player from the field because he protested a decision.

Rue was struck on the head with a pop-bottle thrown by an irate fan and within a minute scores of fans swooped on the playing field. Joe Carr, baseball magnate, was struck on the jaw and only the prompt assistance of Milwaukee players stopped the fans from attacking Goetz, President Hickey was advised.

Hickey hoped to determine why only one police officer was in the baseball park at the time and what assistance the Columbus Club offered.

Fist fights and riots have been all too frequent for Hickey's satisfaction this year and he has warned recently he will henceforth do more than levy fines and suspensions against the guilty ones.

GOLF
AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

Why does a ball lying on top of grass in short rough usually top straight up in the air when struck with a wood club?

Answered by
WILLIE MacFARLANE
Former National Open Champion and one of the world's great golfers; Bermuda Open, 1929; Bermuda Mid-Ocean, 1929.

A ball lying on top of long grass seldom should be played with wooden clubs, unless the club has a fairly deep face. The reason is this: should the shot be taken a little deep, the ball usually will hit the top of the face of the club and result in just a little pop fly shot. The iron clubs, having deeper faces, give a much better chance for good results.

Try to play the ball using the deepest faced iron club you have, and also try to pick the shot as cleanly as possible. Should you try to hit down, the club back has every chance of going completely underneath the ball, leaving it in practically the same place as before the swing was made.

A deep face mashie usually is the surest club for this kind of shot. Try to forget the extra few yards you might get with a wooden club.

W. VA. GRIDIRON CARD 'TOUGH'

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 14.—West Virginia football fans were virtually unanimous in rating the 1928 Mountaineer football schedule the hardest in the 36-year history of the grid sport at the university, yet the 1929 card is unquestionably more difficult than that of a year ago.

Eight of the 10 opponents met last season again will be encountered this fall. The newcomers will be Duquesne and Detroit. Elmer Layden's Duquesne University eleven, which lost only one game in 1928, and which defeated W. & J. at Washington, will be met in place of the Haskell Indians. The Dukes, who boasted the largest squad in the Tri-State district a year ago, will furnish much tougher opposition than did the Redskins at Wheeling.

Instead of meeting Lafayette College as in 1927 and 1928, the Mountaineers will clash with Detroit University, an eleven which has not been tied or beaten since Nortre Dame won an early-season game in 1927 by a 20-0 count. Detroit climaxed the 1928 season by winning from Georgetown University, 33-13, and ran its string of consecutive triumphs to 15. Braxil, halfback; Connell, captain and halfback, and Maloney, fullback, won national recognition by their brilliant play during the season.

West Virginia Wesleyan, Davis-Elkin, Pitt, Washington and Lee, Oklahoma Aggies, Fordham, Georgetown and Washington and Jefferson, without exception, are expected to be stronger this season than last. Wesleyan, after a poor season, is expecting to stage a come-back; Davis-Elkins loses but two regulars from the team that defeated West Virginia and the Navy on successive Saturdays last year; Pitt had one of the best "November" elevens in the East after a poor start, and the Panthers expect to begin just where they left off in 1928.

SEEDED STARS ADVANCE IN W. MD. PLAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN
Staff Correspondent

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, Md., Aug. 14.—Seven seeded racqueters brushed into the quarter-final round of men's singles play in the tenth annual Western Maryland tennis championships here yesterday. Favored by excellent weather, the netmen battled under a blazing sky and nightfall found the tournament well ahead of schedule with likelyhood of semi-final jousting by tomorrow.

Three Pittsburghers were among the septet to enter the bracket of eight. Marion Rinehart, giant Stanton Heights ace, caught a hard and dangerous hitter in youthful Randolph Shields, Washington-Lee lad, but proved too experienced and strong at the barrier and therefore copped, 6-0, 6-4.

G. A. Swain, Westinghouse veteran, staged a protracted driving duel with Dr. E. N. Flowers, clever Clarksburger, and after pulling out set one, 13-11, raced through to victory in the second frame, 6-1.

Paul Sullivan, P. A. A. performer, defeated Don Snyder, rangy Greensburg strokesmith, in a rather wierd encounter that saw most of the effective play centered in forecourt. The verdict read 6-2, 7-5.

COHN VICTOR

Sam Cohn, West Virginia state titleholder, found a worthy opponent in Young Doran Brown, Davis-Elkins star, and triumphed only after a stiff tussle, 6-3, 6-3. B. F. Arkle, crack Wheeling youngster, overwhelmed two rivals, James Allen, another D-E boy, and Sam Keller, Duquesne University racquet leader, both by 6-2, 6-0 tallies. Keller, who previously had downed Richard Davis of Ashville, 6-3, 6-2., drove prettily with Arkle, but lacked the net game to cope with the latter's steady, pace-laden baseline work and crisp, accurate volleys.

Billy Ramsay, Uniontown flash, had jlenty of trouble with Fred Selby, slender Wheelingite, but finally grabbed off 6-1, 4-6, 6-3.

Tack Hammer, cagy and resourceful Greensburg luminary, overcame a fine, sound stylist, Bill Weber, of Clarksburg, 6-2, 6-2. The contest was quite well played, with Hammer's superior tactics and steadiness deciding the issue.

DOUBLES OPEN

Mens' doubles got under way late in the afternoon, the favored teams of the Rinehart and Sawin, Ramsay and Hammer, and Cohn and Smith annexing straight-set wins. Don Snyder and Randolph Shields fought uphill after being down one set and 1-4 in the second to outlast Lane and Lou Florian, little Washington pair, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3. The summary:

MEN'S SINGLES—ROUND TWO.

M. C. Rinehart won from B. F. Hoover by default; Ad Lane defeated Nelson Offutt, 6-2, 6-0; B. F. Arkle defeated James Allen, 6-2, 6-0; Sam Keller defeated Richard Davis, 6-3, 6-2.

ROUND THREE.

W. S. Ramsay defeated Fred Selby, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3; Paul Sullivan defeated Don Snyder, 6-2, 7-5; M. C. Rinehart defeated R. T. Shields, Jr., 6-0, 6-4; B. F. Arkle defeated Sam Keller, 6-2, 6-0; E. T. Hammer defeated W. H. Weber, 6-2, 6-2; Sam Cohn defeated Doran Brown, 6-3, 6-3; G. A. Sawin defeated Dr. E. N. Flowers, 13-11, 6-1.

MEN'S DOUBLES—ROUND ONE.

Rinehart and Sawin defeated Bugbee and Davis, 6-3, 7-5.

ROUND TWO.

Cohn and Smith defeated Miller and Jones, 6-0, 6-1; Snyder and Shields defeated Lane and Florian, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3; Ramsay and Hammer won from Keller and Sewick by default; Arkle and Selby defeated Murphy and Spencer, 6-0, 6-1.

State Game Preserve May Be Expanded

DUNBAR, Pa., Aug. 14.—It became known today that negotiations are under way which may result in approximately 1,000 acres being added to the state game preserve in Fayette County. At the present time the state preserve in Dunbar, Stewart and Wharton Townships comprises practically 8,000 acres ideally forested and situated for preserve purposes. The 1,000 acres which are being considered for annexation are contigious. The addition of this increased acreage, if made, will result in the local preserve becoming one of the most important state-owned tracts in Western Pennsylvania.

Bucs May Buy Parenti of Albany

BOSTON, Aug. 14.—Frank Parenti, star second baseman of the Albany Club, may soon be purchased by the Pirates. Pittsburgh agents were in Albany recently watching the little Italian whose batting and fielding have been distinctive features in the Eastern League this year. Competent critics there say that Parenti is the best keystone tender in the league.

The Eastern Leaguer is not much larger than Lloyd Waner, but he is said to sparkle in his infield play. He is a right-hand batter. Another star of the Albany club, who may rise to the majors in the course of time, is a Pittsburgh boy. Gerald Fitzgerald, star outfielder, who has been starring for the local club under a Newark, option. Manager Tris Speaker, of the Newark club, likes Fitzgerald's style and Gerald will be recalled soon. He is the same size as Paul Waner and he bats and throws left-handed, too.

Uniontown Coach Talks With Gridders

STOCKS SLIDE AFTER GOING TO PEAKS

Steel, Westinghouse, G. E. Recede From New Highs As Bull Drive Slows Up

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(AP.) — The wild "bull" movement, which has been under way in some of the high-priced industrials and rails since last Friday's drastic break, showed signs of slowing up today under the heavy selling inspired by fears of another large increase in Federal Reserve brokers' loans this week.

A sprinkling of issues, including U. S. Steel common, General Electric, Westinghouse Electric and Consolidated Gas, were whirled up 8 to 16 points to new high records in the early trading, but sagged 2½ to 6½ points below their highs in the early afternoon selling movement.

FAVORITES SAAG

Meanwhile, the rapidity of the recent advance induced heavy profit-taking and some short selling in other stocks, giving the general list an irregular appearance. At least a score of the recent favorites dipped 2 to 8 points below yesterday's final quotations.

Several of the large commission houses urged extreme caution in the making of new committments, and this tended to bring in selling from small traders and investors throughout the country.

Operators for the rise bid aggressively for stocks of high current earning power on the theory that no major reaction in the market was likely until general business showed signs of slowing up. Weekly steel trade reviews reported some seasonal curtailment in demand, but no appreciable reduction in output. The latest batch of earnings reports gave further testimony to the prosperity enjoyed by most corporations in the first half of the year.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—Reports of frost in Canada did a good deal to send wheat prices upward here today after downturns at the start. Noticeable strength which the corn market developed was likewise a factor on the side of higher prices for all grains. Opening ⅜c to 1⅞c off, wheat afterward rose sharply above yesterday's finish. Corn started at ½c decline to ¼c advance and subsequently scored rapid general gains. Oats followed corn. Provisions went lower.

With uneasiness prevailing about frost reports from Canada and extremely pessimistic crop advices otherwise from there, the wheat market here made only a brief response today to Liverpool quotations lower than due and to word of increased shipments from Argentina. Current advices asserted that regardless of what railroads or banks might say, the Canadian Northwest has suffered a crop disaster the like of which has not been known for 25 years, and that a person may travel all day and see nothing but thick miserable stretches of grain hardly a foot high and other stretches almost burned off.

It was added that a maximum estimate of the 1929 Canadian wheat yield was 225,000,000 bushels and that a large part of this total was fit only for feed. Influenced largely by such Canadian reports, previous sellers of Chicago wheat future deliveries made haste to switch to the buying side, and the market ran up sharply, with commission house purchases taking on large proportions. Meanwhile, Minneapolis reports were also at hand telling of the biggest flour business of any week so far this season.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The cotton market opened steady today at a decline of 3 to 9 points in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables, while there appeared to be some realizing or reselling by buyers of yesterday, which may have been influenced by uncertainty as to the showing of the weekly weather report. Trading was comparatively quiet with a moderate demand promoted by talk of continued need of rain and high temperatures in the Southwest, and prices held fairly steady at the decline.

October was ruling around 18.23c and March 18.80c at the end of the first half hour, or about 8 to 10 points net lower. Liverpool cables said that covering and continental buying had been supplied by realizing in the market there.

A fair inquiry for cotton cloth was reported in Manchester from India, but yarns were said to be slow.

A spurt of covering followed publication of the weekly weather report and prices advanced to 18.36c for October and 18.91c for March contracts or about 2 to 6 points net higher. The demand soon tapered off however, while the bulge seemed to bring out a little more liquidation and the market eased again late in the morning. At midday active months were 13 to 18 points net lower with October selling around 18.18c and March 18.71c.

LONE STAR GAS UP IN LOCAL MARKET

Stock Adds Large Fraction To Price in Early Trading; General List Holds Firm

The sensational advances in the big stocks on the New York board had only minor reflection in the dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange in the early market today.

The brilliant dash of Westinghouse Electric to $250 a share and the continuance of the record-breaking move in United States Steel, together with the marked strength in Standard Oil of New Jersey, greatest of the oil companies, improved sentiment here, but there was no such rush to buy stocks as was witnessed in the New York market.

Lone Star Gas displayed definite improvement on an upturn at the start which carried it a large fraction above last night's close. Western Public Service, also in the gas division, was moderately active, but did not break out of its recent trading range.

In the miscellaneous industrial section the prices were held to within fractions of the previous day's finals. Westinghouse Air Brake went ahead to a new high price in response to the further gain in the stock on the "big board."

Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt ranged around $27 a share, the price at which it has been holding for some time. The "tip" which reached the Street a short time ago that Screw and Bolt was ready for a 10-point advance, has not made good so far, but many of the bulls on the issue are confident that a movement will get under way this fall, perhaps earlier.

STREET SHIFTS BASIS IN NEW TRADE ERA

Rate at Which Public Will Be Willing to Capitalize Earnings Market Riddle

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The basic riddle in connection with the long term future of stock prices is the rate at which the public will be willing to capitalize earnings.

In this new era in trade and finance, Wall Street has already changed its basic arithmetic. About a year ago John J. Raskob directed attention to the fact that standard industrials, which once sold at eight to 10 times annual earnings, were then quoted at around 15 times earnings. The rate of capitalizing earnings in favored industrial and public utility shares has since risen to 20 to 35 times earnings. On the other hand, railroad stocks are still available at between nine and 12½ times earnings.

VALUES CHANGED

G. M. Loeb, ticker tape philosopher, has pointed out:

"If people begin to think of stocks in terms of 10 times earnings instead of 20 or 30, we can have trouble in the stock market even if earnings increase."

The proper level of stock prices must remain in the realm of conjecture as long as the financial district is without an accepted yardstick of values. In recent years not only have values been changed, but the footrule itself has been radically altered.

One reason for the altered yardstick is widespread recognition that American business has become institutionalized, and it is now feasible to predict with reasonable certainty which large corporations will continue through the years to succeed. Accordingly, the risk factor, which is reflected in the price speculative securities, has been reduced, and investors have been willing to accept without a large discount the computed expectations of future stock values. That is a primary reason for the changed yardstick.

GROWTH NORMAL FACTOR

A second factor is the recognition that growth is a normal factor in the case of well established business corporations. Accordingly, the collective financial mind is of the opinion that it is fallacious to assume that net earnings of a given favored corporation will be no larger than now in five or 10 years. In times of financial optimism, the public has shown a willingness to express in current bids for stocks its confidence in future values. The price of selected stocks reflects not only established earning power, but also discounts a belief that there will be a regular progession in earnings through the years.

If interest rates were alone considered in determining the rate at which corporate earnings should be multiplied, the rate would have fallen instead of risen during the last year and a half. However, irrespective of prevailing preference for common stocks as long term investments, the analytical buyer will not acquire stocks to yield less than good bonds, assuming that the results are averaged over a period of years. Accordingly, the net average return of good stocks each year should be between 5 and 6 per cent over the next decade, in order to equal the performance of reasonably good bonds acquired at present prices.

DISCOUNT POSSIBILITIES

Expressed in another way, stocks would not be entitled to sell at more than 16 to 20 times computed average earnings during the next 10 years, with further adjustment for the postponement of a compensating adequate immediate cash return to the stock buyer. Accordingly, to sell at 32 times current earnings, a stock would have to double its average earning power during the next decade, in order to justify its present price.

Stocks which sell at 15 or more times earnings are reflecting expectations of a rapid increase in earning power. If profits for a company in this class should become stabilized at current peak levels, showing no further gains, the development would be construed as bad news from a speculative standpoint.

Furthermore, even if there should be an increase in earnings, though at a less rapid rate than anticipated, it likewise would constitute an adverse speculative development. Accordingly, under Wall Street's new arithmetic, it will be necessary to assess the market significance of earnings statements with a new subtlety, comparing achievements with expectations.

Technically, stocks which are liberally discounting future possibilities will be more vulnerable than those which are reflecting only present values.

CHEAPNESS FACTOR

Under the new conditions, cheapness becomes a relative, rather than an absolute, factor. The discriminating buyer is perpetually searching for securities which are relatively undervalued. In making comparisons it is well, however, to compare like situations. A company with high current earnings which has achieved its maximum growth, may not be worth 10 times earnings, whereas a developing company, building for the future, might be attractive at 25 times current nascent earnings.

Price reflects popularity, as well as intrinsic worth. Frequently bargains are to be found in neglected or temporarily depressed industries.

In spite of the rapid recovery of stock prices from Friday's precipitous declines, it is probable that there has been a substantial change in the total of brokers' loans. There has doubtless been substantial shifting of stocks from thinly margined accounts into those of better fortified individuals, who buy for cash or at least on a more conservative basis. There have been repeated demonstrations of reserve buying power by institutions and individuals below recent peak price levels.

Westinghouse Air Brake Rise Stirs 'Street'

"THE Air Brake move is on at last and the price tag is above 100." So ran the gossip in stock market circles yesterday when Westinghouse Air Brake shook off the fetters of several months' stagnation and pushed its way to above $60 a share, a new high record price under the present capital setup. The move really got under way about three weeks ago but the incident of the discount raise intervened and the interests responsible for the present upturn stepped lightly for several days and only yesterday opened up with the big guns.

Rumors of all sorts circulated through the Street and as the company is regarded as a strictly Pittsburgh concern, Fourth avenue and the customers' rooms of the local brokerage houses buzzed with the dozen or more stories, each of which was supposed to be the "low-down" on the situation and the actual reason for the present advance. Traders who have been waiting patiently for action in the stock were gleeful over its performance and it was mainly among this element that the talk of the "price above 100" was heard. However, nearly everyone agreed that the stock was "due" and that the move was probably "on."

Many Rumors Circulating.

THE rumors circulating through the Street covered every possible development from a split-up to a consolidation with Westinghouse Electric. One of the in between yarns was that powerful banking interests had added materially to their holdings and it was insisted that such purchasers do not buy stocks for a five-point rise. Monday's turnover in Air Brake was about 35,000 shares and it was said most of this buying was of Pittsburgh origin. Circulation of this report naturally attracted traders in other quarters and yesterday orders were reported coming from many points.

Actual figures covering the first half of the year are indisputable proof that the company is coming out of the depression which caused a drop in earnings last year to a point which barely covered dividend requirements. The $1.37 earned on the stock for the first six months of 1929 was a gain of approximately 50 per cent over the same period last year. It is too early to predict the full 1929 results but it is felt in some quarters that ratio of improvement will be larger for the second half and that the year's profit will exceed $3.

Heavier Brake Developed.

RAILROAD car building is much larger this year than last and it seems assured that the surplus equipment acquired through increased operating efficiency has been absorbed. No sensational car buying program is anticipated but Air Brake is always able to prosper in a normal buying period. The company has perfected a new and heavier air brake, made necessary by the longer and heavier freight trains, and the Westinghouse engineers are confident of its success and that it will make more secure the company's position as the leader in this field.

Final field tests of the new brake will be made this month. Two designs have been patented. One brake was completed according to specifications of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the other was designed according to the Westinghouse engineers' own theories. Both types will be tested on the Southern Pacific this month.

Consolidation Gossip.

THE rumors of a pending consolidation with Westinghouse Electric were rather vague but observers who favored the report pointed to the fact that Westinghouse Air Brake, Westinghouse Electric and the new Baldwin Locomotive were all pushing higher in unison yesterday. Baldwin is generally accepted as having a place in the Westinghouse Electric plans but yesterday was the first time the Street discussed Air Brake as a possible participant. According to the gossip, a big holding concern to be known as the Westinghouse Company will be formed.

N. Y. Subway Business.

ANOTHER report accompanying the rise in Air Brake was that the company will profit substantially on contracts for installation of safety equipment in the New York subway. This class of business comes through Air Brake's subsidiary, the Union Switch & Signal Company, which shares the bulk of the orders in this field with General Railway Signal Company, of Rochester, N. Y.

In addition to the installation of safety appliances, Union Switch also has a patented car-retarder, the use of which is steadily spreading among American railroads. The car-retarder system is one of the most important labor saving inventions in railroad history. By this system freight trains are assembled and re-assembled in the big yards by a mechanical braking process operated from central towers, thus relieving the necessity of trainmen riding the cars and operating the old hand brakes.

Stock Exchange Topics

Stocks Move Up Despite Belief in Forthcoming Market Reaction.

DESPITE the belief in many quarters that a secondary reaction is likely to occur at this time the stock market continues to move forward under the leadership of the high grade issues which were brought to the fore after last Friday's setback. There were no particular bullish developments during market hours to account for the strength. Call money renewed at 7 per cent and was later available at 6 per cent, and this was viewed as being satisfactory for this time of the month. Trade reviews continued to tell of the high operations in the steel industry, but also told of diminishing backlogs and the ability of producers to keep deliveries at a closer pace with demand. Domestic buying of copper is in larger volume and foreign purchases have been up to expectations. With conditions such as these prevailing in two of the country's leading industries, coupled with the outlook for the fall and winter months, many market observers feel that stocks in these sections have some distance to travel before fully discounting prospects.

Considerable success has been met by the retail stores which have been opened up in the past year or so by the mail order houses. Sears, Roebuck proposes to continue adding to its chain and will add 25 new wholesale and retail department stores to its nation-wide chain in cities of more than 75,000 to be in operation by 1930. Plans also call for the establishment of 30 chain stores in smaller communities. Monthly sales of both Sears, Roebuck and Montgomery Ward have been mounting and indications are that new high records will be established in 1929.

AT present levels Union Carbide and Carbon is selling about 10 points under its high for the year. Since receding from its top, stock has been consolidating its position and is now believed to be in line for higher levels. Company maintains an elaborate research department, and many new processes and chemical products have been developed. The latest is reported to be a new and cheap method of manufacturing alcohol from coal and oil.

Since the Wall Street News pointed out that the showing of Bethlehem Steel in the current quarter may exceed the $4.17 a share reported for the June quarter, the stock has established a new record high. Company's plants are operating slightly above capacity, and officials have repeatedly told of the bright outlook for the balance of the year. Bethlehem's operating units are in a high state of efficiency, and margin of profit is greater than for some time past. A further dividend increase or an extra appears to be looming.

FROM the present market action of some stocks not a few tape readers are of the opinion that the era of split-ups is here. They point out that within a short time many of the high priced shares will be reduced to quotable figures and surpluses distributed before Congress again devotes its attention to this item in balance sheets of leading corporations. In this category are placed Allied Chemical, General Electric, Commercial Solvents, U. S. Steel, American Telephone and Telegraph and even some of the rails.

In the past wide swings have occurred in Simmons Company and predictions are now made by Chicago interests that the stock is destined for higher levels on the current rally. It is even termed the "Chicago favorite." Enormous gains are being recorded in monthly sales and it is understood that developments of a highly constructive nature have occurred which are not revealed by company officials for trade reasons.

Monon-West Penn Gas Property Valuation

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Testimony that the reproduction value of the Monongahela-West Penn Public Service Company's gas holdings in the Morgantown and Fairmont districts is $8,042,437, was offered before the Public Service Commission by Spencer A. Covell, at a hearing on the company's application for increased rates in Morgantown and vicinity.

The reproduction value as estimated by Covell included $726,329 which he designated as the "going concern valuation." Covell, a representative of the Senderson and Porter, Engineering firm, of New York, also estimated that accrued depreciation would reduce the valuation of the gas holdings to $6,572,931. The valuation figures covered both the Fairmont and Morgantown districts.

What is Demanded of a Trust Company Executor or Trustee?

WHEN a man is considering the appointment of a Trust Company to act as executor and trustee of his will, his first thought is "safety."

He wants to be sure that the estate which he has created for the future well being of his family will be ably and economically managed.

He examines the past record of the institution he is considering.

He weighs the present management for integrity of purpose, sound financial judgment, breadth of vision, deep understanding of the human equation.

He demands unquestioned financial strength—plus an organization fully experienced to discharge its obligations with a minimum of detail for his heirs. The consistent growth of this—the oldest Trust Company in Pittsburgh—indicates that we measure to the requirements of conservative people.

STEEL ACTIVITY CONTINUES HIGH

Production Holds Steady but Curtailment Is Noted In Recent Deliveries

Seasonal curtailment is making itself felt in the steel industry, but thus far the chief effects have been a decline in backlogs and a shortening of deliveries, according to the Iron Age. Production has shown little reduction and the downward trend is not marked.

With the two largest steel producers still operating at close to rated ingot capacity, most of the loss in output is accounted for by other mills. In the Greater Pittsburgh district the total falling off since the first of the month is estimated at 5 per cent, and similar recessions are reported in some other centers. Chicago, on the other hand, reflecting an unusual demand for plates for pipe manufacture, continues to produce steel at a capacity rate.

The return to hand-to-mouth buying, heretofore mainly evident in lighter rolled products, is being more widely felt. At Pittsburgh, deliveries on shapes and bars can now be made in two or three weeks. This change is not necessarily of great significance, the experience of the industry in recent years is ample proof that a high rate of output can be maintained without heavy forward obligations. Undoubtedly the vacation season, now at its height, is also a factor in delaying purchasing programs.

NEW USES FOR STEEL

The growth of miscellaneous uses for mill products has made it more difficult to gage the trend of steel consumption. At the same time the wide diversification of demand makes for a more even flow of business, with increased consumption in some direction tending to neutralize declines in others.

Among new outlets for steel the most outstanding in its stabilizing influence is the manufacture of pipe for gas and oil lines. This factor has been most important at Chicago, where steel bookings for the week were the sixth largest so far this year.

While the sharply reduced requirements of the automobile industry, the largest single consuming group, are not to be overlooked, Cleveland reports an upturn in specifications from a number of motor car makers who are bringing out new models. Whether this can be taken as an augury of general recovery in automotive demand is uncertain, in view of the large stocks of used cars reported in dealers' hands.

RAILROAD ORDERS

Railroads placed 75 per cent of the fabricated steel work awarded during the week, which totaled 43,000 tons. Outstanding transactions were 14,500 tons for two Pennsylvania Railroad bridges across the Hackensack River in New Jersey, and 9,400 tons for a New York subway section. Fresh inquiries call for 42,000 tons of which 16,000 tons is for railroad and highway bridges.

The railroad equipment market is also more active, with new inquiries out for 1,300 freight cars.

Aggressive selling of Alabama iron has further accentuated competition in northern markets. Southern foundry iron is now being freely quoted at $13, Birmingham, for deliveries in the Chicago district, and that price has been shaded 50c a ton in one large transaction. The attention of southern producers has also been turned to Europe, following the receipt of inquiries for pig iron for shipment to Italy.

Heavy melting scrap at Pittsburgh has advanced 50c a ton on a large sale to a consumer. In face of this evidence of strength, shipments have been held up by two users and rejections are more frequent.

The Iron Age composite price for finished steel declined to 2.398c a pound, from 2.412c, the figure at which it has held since March. The pig iron composite remains for the second week at $18.42 a gross ton.

IRON TRADE REVIEW

General conditions in the iron and steel markets remain exceptionally favorable for this time of the year, though there is further slowing down in midsummer buying, and production is off a little on some of the lighter lines of finished steel, says the Iron Trade Review. Mills are operating at an average above 90 per cent for the country mainly on the momentum gained through heavy orders previously placed, and at this time there is comparatively little quarterly buying underway. Production is holding up especially well on the heavier steel products. The general list of prices exhibits firmness.

Measuring the World's Gases and Liquids

Probably few consumers of gas and water ever wonder where the meter, which ticks so industriously in their basement, was made. A surprisingly large percentage of them is made right here in Pittsburgh. This city is the home of the only company in the United States making a complete line of meters for measuring gases and liquids . . . the Pittsburgh Equitable Meter Company.

Fifty years ago, George Westinghouse drilled a gas well on his property in Homewood. Searching for a means of preventing the tremendous waste, he devised a meter for measuring gas. A company for manufacturing the meter was formed, which later became the Pittsburgh Meter Company. In 1927 this company was consolidated with the Equitable Meter Company, thus forming one of the largest meter organizations in the country.

BUGS BAER Says

OUR INFORMATION CANNOT BE QUESTIONED

THOMAS EDISON has annexed the brightest boy in America. The kid lives on the Pacific Coast and is so bright he thinks of the answer before you ask the question.

"Bugs" Baer

This boy will be deported to East Orange, New Jersey.

His future is assured. For when Thomas goes to collect his big dividend, the boy inherits Edison's insomnia.

We protest against the last questionnaire from East Orange. First, Edison stays awake 20 hours every day and sleeps four.

Which is a perfect system. If you reverse it.

We sleep 20 hours a day. And work four. A very good method because you are only silly four hours a day.

The questionnaire, itself, was unfair to organized labor.

Does Ethel Barrymore owe her histronic ability, her figure, her beautiful voice and her artistic career to heritage or to Melba toast?

The answer is not fair to burned biscuits.

How can the indicator on a gasoline pump charge you for 15 gallons when your tank holds only 10?

Now, Mr. Edison you shouldn't ask a question like that. It is liable to shatter the foundations of our entire civilization.

At what time does the hypothenuse of a right-angle detour coincide with the apex of weekly installments on your piano?

That's easy. Every time the doorbell rings.

What happens when an irresistible force meets an immovable body?

Oh, Mr. Edison, your questions are getting simple. When an irresistible force meets an immovable body, the result is a merger.

Thomas, if that boy gets careless, we will send you our telephone number tattooed on a California grapefruit.

It's the first thing you will see at breakfast.

Mr. Edison had plenty of morose questions like that to ask. But we are getting too old to play such childish games.

Thomas has the correct version on intelligence. Like Col. Moseby, who got there fust with the mostest men, Thomas beats you to the question.

Now, we could go out to East Orange, by invitation, and ask Mr. Edison some questions that would make an elephant's trunk stop curling after peanuts.

The very first question would be so startling that we would have to phone in the second question from a long distance away.

WEDDING BELLS

Maybe I'm Wrong

by JOHN P. MEDBURY

A man can consider himself a failure when a girl doesn't even love him enough to hate him.

You're Right

Momentous Moments

A flaming youth made love to a wax dummy the other day and she melted in his arms.

Take It or Leave It

It's silly for the reformers to be making a lot of new laws. We have more than we can do to break all the old ones.

Social Accomplishments

Having two automobiles. One for pleasure and for one the mortgages.

Our Own Vaudeville

Ho—You used to tell me that I was the cream in your coffee.

She—You were, but you turned sour.

THINK TWICE BEFORE YOU GIVE MORTGAGE

The above picture sermon is from THE FARMER'S GUIDE, published thirty years ago. If the farmers had taken the advice of this worthy journal they wouldn't be in the fix they're in. Study the above helpful cartoon, for instance. The sign indicates quite clearly that the farm isn't worth much. And yet the man went ahead and mortgaged it, and now he's headed the wrong way again. The following statistics (from The Farmer's Guide) show "how easy it is to accumulate a fortune. The table shows what would be the result at the end of fifty years by saving a certain amount each day, and putting it at interest at the rate of six per cent":—

|---|---|---|---|
| One cent | $ 930 | Sixty cents | $ 57,024 |
| Ten cents | 9,504 | Seventy " | 66,528 |
| Twenty cents | 19,006 | Eighty " | 76,032 |
| Thirty " | 28,512 | Ninety " | 85,537 |
| Forty " | 38,015 | One dollar | 95,041 |
| Fifty " | 47,520 | Five dollars | 475,208 |

A New Birthright

Some Don't Like It.

The Rev. Canon Chase says the duty of the United States to God is to promote prohibition. Prohibition in the opinion of Canon Chase is this nation's "Divine birthright."

The layman wonders why inspired writers of the Bible did not know about that.

"Use wine for thy stomach's sake."

"Give strong drink unto him that is ready to perish, and wine unto those that be of heavy heart."

Then there was the miraculous transformation of water into wine at the wedding feast. Possibly all this wine was non-alcoholic, simply grape juice.

According to the learned Prof. Maurice Loeper, of the Sorbonne, wine helps digestion, supplies iron to the blood, contains vitamins, and has radio-active properties.

He says, although you need not believe him, that those qualities do not exist in ice water.

'No Communism,' China

Tell Wall Street How.

China's government promises "to stop the growth of Communism and Russia's Communist propaganda in China."

With plenty of fighting inside her own borders, China needs no outside war.

But Russia must not tell the 400,000,000 Chinese that they are downtrodden and might be happier under a different government.

If China succeeds in suppressing Russian propaganda, some Chinese can make money telling Wall Street how it was done.

The Street worries about "Bolshevist propaganda in America," although persuading an American to trade his automobile, radio, vacuum cleaner, bungalow and savings for the works of Karl Marx should not be easy.

Sleep, Great Blessing

Be Thankful, If You Have It.

Have you sound sleep? Then don't envy any man his millions.

An American named Singer, knighted by the King for the amount of American money he spent in London, was taken to a hospital suffering from nervousness caused by insomnia.

In the morning he was found dead, clutching a piece of paper on which he had written that sleep was impossible and he could endure life no longer. He poisoned himself.

The majority of us go through life not appreciating or thinking of our greatest blessing. If you can sleep well, and every night restore your vitality and courage, you should be grateful.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

US GIRLS have a lot of fool notions—

AMONGST THEM BEING THE THEORY THAT WIVES SACRIFICE MORE THAN HUSBANDS.

'Taint so!

To begin with, the very principle of marriage implies sacrifice for males. Marriage is a woman's institution, not a man's. Consider the derivation of the word matrimony. MATER-MONY. MOTHER-MONY. Does papa take the lead in that combination? He does not. It's MAMA'S-mony and for a very good reason. Marriage was instituted to protect mothers and babies. Fathers didn't need protection—nor want it. They preferred a light heel and a wide range—the wider the better. But mothers and babies needed homes and males to protect those homes. Hence—MATRIMONY.

Marriage answers a woman's deepest necessity, but it violates a man's most cherished desire—the desire for FREEDOM.

"But we sacrifice our freedom too," Us Girls cry. "We give up our girlhood—"

Oh, pooh!

Give up our girlhood? We do indeed! And most of us work overtime trying to do it. If that be sacrifice, then we certainly leap at it, sisters.

Marriage involves real sacrifice for men, not sentimental theory. If you doubt it, try to support a family.

Theoretically, it's the Missis who bears the heavy burden of the family. According to her, Pa's contribution to that job is a mere bagatelle.

"Lookit him," says she. "What does he do, any way? Work just eight hours in a nice tidy office. Then he can come home, wash up, eat his supper, then sit down and read his paper in peace. But my work is NEVER done!"

With that she grabs herself a martyr's crown and puts it on amidst the sympathetic sniffles of her fellow sufferers. Piffle! This theory that "woman's work is never done" is just another piece of our cherished, feminine hokum. It is true that, with little children in the family, a mother's labors are spread over a greater period of time than a father's—often over the whole 24 hours. But even then she is able to adjust her day somewhat to meet her physical need. She can postpone a job, or rest between jobs as her husband cannot do with the boss and the time clock at his heels.

And infancy, at its worst, lasts but a comparatively short period. For only a few years of her life does a mother's slavery to babies persist. After that, the average American mother of a small family has an amazing amount of leisure. But the man's drag continues, usually for the length of his days. How much time does Mama actually need to devote to the children when they are in "hi" or college? But consider Papa, hustling to foot the bills.

Then comes the final, clinching argument which is supposed to make all critics so ashamed that they'll go off and have a good, hard cry.

"Think of Birth," quaver the mothers. "Think what pain we endure to give our children life and our husbands sons and daughters!"

All right. I'll think about Birth. I can. I'm a mother myself. And what I know about Birth is plenty. I'll not only think about Birth, but I'll also think about every other twinge and ache we women endure in our careers as wives and mothers. AND I'M FORCED TO STATE THAT I THINK US GIRLS OVERRATE OUR TUMMY ACHES.

How about Father? He gets plenty of aches himself during his long years of service—including that keenest anguish of all, the constant dread of what will happen to the Missis and the Kids if he does a fadeout. But does anyone drop a tear over his fallen arches? I'll say they don't!

Fortune forced me to face the job of being father as well as mother to my son. I gave him life. I also gave him the makin's. I had an excellent chance to compare the hazards of the maternal and paternal program. And believe me, Mama has nothing on Papa when it comes to Feeling Low.

It's not a jolly job to bring a baby into the world. But, at that, it's a lot easier than the job of paying his way after you get him there. One involves several highly unpleasant hours. The other means at least 21 hellbustin' years.

I'm strong for you, sisters, and I'll gladly back up most of your acts. But when it comes to grabbing off the laurels for sacrifice—ALL MY BIG, WET TEARS GO TO PAPA!

Bible Passages

Stephen Full of Faith

(The Acts 6; 1-8)

AND in those days, when the number of the disciples was multiplied, there arose a murmuring of the Grecians against the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the daily ministration.

Then the twelve called the multitude of the disciples unto them, and said, It is not reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve tables.

Wherefore, brethren, look ye out among you seven men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business.

But we will give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word.

And the saying pleased the whole multitude: and they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghost, and Philip, and Prochorus, and Nicanor, and Timon, and Parmenas, and Nicolas a proselyte of Antioch:

Whom they set before the apostles: and when they had prayed, they laid their hands on them.

And the word of God increased; and the number of the disciples multiplied in Jerusalem greatly; and a great company of the priests were obedient to the faith.

And Stephen, full of faith and power, did great wonders and miracles among the people.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

A FELLOW was going to work on the car with his next-door neighbor one day.

"Say, Jones," he says, "that's a savage bulldog you got, ain't it?"

"Why, he's a little rough with some people, but generally he don't pay no attention to most folks."

"Well, he runs out and scares my mother-in-law every time she passes your house, and twice he has tore her skirt and one time he bit her."

"Oh, ain't that terrible! Well, we're about to get rid of him anyhow, and now we'll do it right away."

"Get rid of him? How?"

"We're going to have a guy come and kill him."

"Say," says Smith, after thinking a while, "would you sell that dog to me for 10 bucks instead of having him killed?"

THE PASSWORD OF THE DAY

By Herbert Kaufman

THE Seven Wonders of the ancients are such nursery toys, in contrast to the THOUSAND MARVELS of the DAILY NEWS, that history will soon blush to record them.

Jules Verne's reputation as an imaginative novelist shrinks with every new submarine improvement and Zeppelin world tour.

One can hardly credit the Eighteen-hundreds with their amazement at Bellamy's "Looking Backward." And even H. G. Wells' early rambles through make-believeland begin to BORE these flying times.

Prof. Raspe, author of the Munchausen stories, died convinced that the farthest flight of future fancy could NEVER indulge in more remarkable adventures than this hero experienced.

AMONG which, you remember, his return from the north with a frozen bell note that thawed and began to RING the moment he reached a warmer climate.

None of our journeymen wizards has YET duplicated THAT particular performance, but General Electric laboratories recently went it a dozen BETTER, by broadcasting, through a national link-up of radio stations, the sound of electrons discharging in a fragment of uranium.

Those of you who listened-in seemed to hear hailstones beating against glass, and probably read the public announcement that it takes a million million electrons to cover sparsely a PIN-POINT.

After WHICH achievement, subsequent programs will doubtless feature the EAR-SPLITTING din of MUSHROOM growth and the piercing shrieks of PLUCKED roses.

IMPOSSIBILITY will soon be defined as a lazy-brained generation's alibi for SOLDIERING on the job.

The wisest man alive can't START to estimate how much MORE we'll know and do in even a DECADE.

Portable machines for sending pictures by wireless have already immigrated from Europe.

And the little birds, that tattle behind scenes at Hollywood, twitter to editors that the celluloid drama is holding full natural color rehearsals and is coaching its scenery and stars to stand out in STEREOSCOPIC relief.

There's no guessing WHAT will NEXT pop from under scientific or industrial thinking caps.

A VEST pocket automobile, built without axles and running fifty miles on a gallon of gas, is scheduled for mail order delivery, with its own packing case for a garage.

And catalogue houses are shipping ANYTHING in the book with postage and freight charges fully prepaid.

Present methods and systems are ALL headed for the DISCARD. The password for the day is, "Progress or pass out."

ART AND SCIENCE

By Archibald Henderson

THE hard and fast distinction between science and art is a commonplace of criticism. Science is supposed to be a function of the intellect, art a function of the emotions. The tendency of contemporary science is a reversion to the subjective, if not to a form of mysticism. Science is exhibiting an ever closer rapprochement or intimate association with art. There has always been something mythical, if not mystical, about Newton's "force." There is something even more mythical about Einstein's "interval," which denotes some sort of separation in both space and time between two "point-events." The whole Einstein structure is built upon this insubstantial foundation of the "interval." Yet, strange indeed to relate, no adequate physical representation for the "interval" has yet been discovered.

The mathematical notions, the physical concepts, with which the scientist has to deal nowadays are becoming increasingly intangible and complex. We used to think that the ultimate "irreducible" elements—such as "point" in mathematics and "atom" in physics—were the simplest things. Today we recognize that they are the most mysterious and least understood. When Niels Bohr turns an atom of radium into a miniature solar system with 88 electrons revolving about a central nucleus; and other scientists put their pets of physics through equally amazing gymnastics, the average person and even many a scholar throws up his hands in despair and goes down without a gurgle.

Art has been defined by William Morris as the expression of man's joy in his work. Science, the technical pursuit of reality, is likewise an expression of man's joy—his love for the truth. The famous Dutch author, Multatuli, in "The Adventures of Little Walter," long ago said: "The noble thirst for knowledge springs from the same soil in which noble love grows. To press through, to reveal, to possess, to direct, and to ennoble, that is the task of the longing, alike of the lover and the natural discoverer. So that every Ross or Franklin is a Werther of the Pole, and whoever is in love is a Mungo Park of the spirit."

Faraday was one of the most patient, devoted, and ardent seekers after truth the history of science can exhibit. Of him it has been well said that he investigated Nature as a poet investigates the emotions. Of all great men who ever lived, Leonardo is the best illustration of the perfect union of the artist and the scientist. Of him it has been well said: "In the vast orbit in which Leonardo da Vinci moved, there was little or no distinction between art and science. . . . The medium in which this artist worked was Nature, the medium in which the scientist works. Every problem in painting was to Leonardo a problem in science, every problem in physics he approached in the spirit of the artist."

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

August

NOW Summer's tide has reached its flood,
No longer as in spring
The timid growth of peering bud,
The stir of fledgling wing.

Bud grew to bloom, and blossom now
To rosy fruit gives place,
Low droops each heavy-weighted bough
In every garden-space.

Where once the waves of wheat shone green
As far as eye could see,
The tossing grain is ripe to glean,
A widespread, golden sea.

On all the land a hush descends
And smiling Nature seems,
Now that her time of toil ends,
To give herself to dreams.

For dreams are in the haze of gold
Where August's banners fly;
And dream-sweet, drowsy hours unfold
Their petals to the sky.

Wise Words

He lives who dies to win a lasting name.—Drummond.

A cynic, a man who knows the price of everything and the value of nothing.—Oscar Wilde.

So near is falsehood to truth that a wise man would do well not to trust himself on the narrow edge.—Cicero.

The silly when deceived exclaim loudly; the fool complains; the honest man walks away and is silent.—La Noue.

Surplus wealth is a sacred trust which its possessor is bound to administer in his lifetime for the good of the community.—Carnegie.

Hope and patience are two sovereign remedies for all, the surest reposals, the softest cushions to lean on in adversity.—Burton.

A Man's a Man for A' That

But a Title Makes Him Feel Better.

A SOCIALIST BECOMES A PEER.

You see here a well-known British Socialist, formerly called Sidney Webb, now by the grace of the Labor Government and of King George made "Baron Passfield of Passfield Corner."

For years Sidney Webb and his brilliant wife have been known as sincere leaders of radical thought in Great Britain.

Sidney Webb worked for Labor, and the respect that the public felt for him, even when it did not believe in his theories, has had much to do with the success of the Labor Party.

Now, in accordance with the British habit, the Prime Minister, in this case a Union Labor man, Ramsay MacDonald, picks out men that are to be honored by the King, and this Socialist of yesterday is Baron Passfield of today with a seat in the House of Lords.

His wife, by the way, refuses to accept the title for herself and insists on being called "Mrs. Webb."

When they go out to dinner, the title coming first, of course, the servant will announce "Baron Passfield and Mrs. Webb."

The interesting question is, "What effect, if any, will the title have on Baron Passfield's radical opinions?" He sits in the House of Lords among old Conservatives, hears himself called "My Lord" by servants, waiters, etc.

There is a psychological effect hard to avoid.

The French Legion of Honor, with its various ranks, from Grand Officer to simple chevalier, was invented by Napoleon as an easy method of bringing men around to his views.

He said that he could pin that little red ribbon on the coat of a radical and change him into a good Imperialist. And he did.

What's more, the French Republic, which keeps alive the Legion of Honor, has pinned those little red ribbons and little red buttons on some very able American business men and transformed them into some fairly good imitation Frenchmen.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The modern girl's independence and snub for the usual conventions is conspicuously illustrated in her freedom from escorts. She is no longer squired about with the fluttery attention suggesting a hot house flower. She travels alone and without smelling salts.

Her boy friend these days does not call to accompany her to a party, theatre or cafe. She meets him in the reception rooms, thus giving her more time at home for primping. Distances in New York are great and this is largely responsible for the new arrangement.

A young gentleman, say in Greenwich Village, escorting a lady from the upper reaches of the Bronx to a midtown theater, faces not only a problem in time but a problem in finance. Even at a modest estimate the taxi fare in such an emergency is around $10.

Today he escorts her to the subway, elevated or taxi and after lighting a cigarette off she goes alone. On almost any side street late at night will be found girls swinging along by themselves, totally unconscious of the dangers that used to be stressed.

Statistics show unprotected girls are rarely molested these days along highways after nightfall. Many have proved they know exactly what to do in the case of an attack. Even daylight purse snatching has dwindled to almost nothing.

What inspired these rambling observations was the remark of a taxi driver last night. He had just delivered a girl to her home on the upper East Side when I hailed him and was chuckling—a contrast to the usual sullenness of the metropolitan charioteers.

"I just picked up a skirt in front of a downtown theater," he explained. "When we came to the park I knew about lone women fearing a holdup so I headed for Fifth avenue. She rapped on the window and cried: 'Go through the park. I have a police whistle!'"

The police whistle is on sale in several department stores and there is a steady sale to young ladies who galavant about unescorted.

* * *

The neatest bit of trigger thinking is told about a lone lady who completely routed a footpad after midnight in uptown Manhattan this summer. The lady—a newspaper writer—was walking down a lonely street toward the Drive. A man stepped out of an areaway, followed stealthily and when she turned suddenly faced a revolver. In a sepulchral voice she began quoting from Hamlet's soliloquy. His pistol dropped. He peered into her face, turned quickly and walked away tapping his forehead. He thought the lady cuckoo.

Police say the hold-up man is the "yellowest" of all the mugs who prey yet they say it is courting death to scream or offer resistance. He is a coward who will, if frightened, shoot and run.

Tom J. Geraghty, using his daughter's eyebrow pencil, writes a line from California on his new stationery which lists his several accomplishments as "Literature, Continuity, Needlework." Among the books listed by the famous author are: Is Love a Condition? Is Comfort a Station? Are Suburbs Compulsory? Seeing China Through a Glass Eye, Short Journeys Through Revolving Doors, and Is "Bugs" Baer an Animal or an Insect?

* * *

It has been discovered that the only legitimate stage star to achieve a pronounced success in the talkies up to date is Al Jolson. And that whistling in the dark is a lot of Broadway footlight favorites who rushed to Hollywood recently. And are rushing right back again.

And it will likely give the orkorks to oodles of John Barrymore admirers to learn that one of his films hold the record at the biggest movie house in town for touchin' the low mark in box office receipts.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

YOU may not be popular because you monopolize too much of the conversation while you are in the society of other people.

You may be entertaining and there may be many subjects on which you have considerable information.

This being true, others have topics as dear to them in which they are absorbingly interested and of which they would like to talk.

It matters not how much you have that is entertaining and enlightening, the other fellow wants a chance to say something.

His conversation may not be particularly favored by you; perhaps what you have to say is not of special interest to him.

Most people are prone to attach too much importance to their projects that especially appeal to them.

Nevertheless to force them upon others is boresome.

While you may think they should be glad to learn something, your own opinions may be all wrong.

You will find it profitable.

And people will appreciate you to a greater extent.
